Goodridge scorers Jennie Boutain (21) and Diana Troska (18) combined for 39 points, while Grygla had a trio of double figures scorers in Foss (13), Kari Klamar (13) and Debbie Klein (12).

Grygla was kept busy putting up 85 shots, but made just 19 of them (22 per cent). Goodridge also made 19 field goals, out of 66 attempted (29 per cent). Both teams shot 52 per cent from the free throw line, but Goodridge won it by making two more gift tosses than Grygla, with the Huskies going 12-for-23 and the Eagles 10-for-19.

Both teams play Thursday, with Goodridge hosting Plummer that night and Grygla entertaining Lake of the Woods.

Marshall County Central's offense produced just five first half points Monday as the visiting Nordics lost a 43-24 game at Warren.

Kim Vesey and Leslie Goulden of Warren, with 14 and 12 points, respectively, were the game's only double figure scorers as the Ponies built quarter leads of 13-3, 20-5 and 31-12.

No Marshall County Central scorer had more than five points as the Nordics fell to 6-4 for the season, heading into a Thursday night North Border Conference showdown with unbeaten rival Middle River.

"That's been our problem all year," Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde said about the Nordics' lack of offense. "We just haven't been able to get our offense going. We're playing real timid against the press. We're just not very aggressive offensively."

Marshall County Central shot just 19 per cent from the field for the game (9-for-46) and shot 50 per cent at the free throw line (6-for-12). Warren shot 39 per cent from the field (16-for-41) and 52 per cent from the line (11-for-21). The Nordics owned a 26-25 rebound edge, but also topped the turnover figures 29-20.

Plummer ran into foul trouble and Becky Evenson Tuesday as the Cardinals lost a 69-50 game at Mentor.

Evenson scored 36 points for the winners, 20 of them in the second half when the Trojans broke it open. They had quarter leads of 13-10, 33-23 and 49-37.

"The 19 points (victory margin) is not a true indication of the way the game went," said Plummer coach Rick Koivisto. "We got into foul trouble. We had poor defensive positions."

Three Cardinals fouled out of the game, including Jody Pahlen, who had 15 points, and Sheila Sorenson, who scored 11, while Sheila Jaeger, who collected 12 points, played with four fouls.

Mentor had an impressive 60 per cent shooting night (26-for-43), along with a 17-for-28 game at the free throw line (61 per cent). Plummer, meanwhile, shot 32 per cent from the field (21-for-65) and was an accurate, but less-productive 8-for-9 at the line (89 per cent). Plummer finished with a 31-21 rebound edge.

Plummer, 4-5, will visit Goodridge Thursday.

— TRF Youth Hockey —

by John Michael Anderson

Thief River Falls Pee-Wee B team improved its record to 12-2-2 with a win at Moorhead, and a very exciting tie with arch-rival Roseau.

In Moorhead, Thief River Falls led 2-0 after one period, with Roger Anderson and Blake Tangquist scoring goals. It was 4-0 after two periods on goals by Paul Kezar and Paul Borchert. The final was 6-2, with Anderson scoring his second goal and Jeff Shafland adding a single goal in the third period. Goalie Karl Heinrichs had eight saves. At home against Roseau, Borchert's goal late in the third period gave coach Dale Wennberg's team a well-earned 3-3 tie Sunday afternoon. Borchert and Mark Daniels had scored earlier. Goalie Todd Stewart had 20 saves.

Eagles Pee-Wee A team played two strong games, beating Moorhead 11-3 and winning at home against Baudette 8-2.

In Moorhead, Thief River Falls received four goals from Rick Looker, two each from Jeff Novak and Wade Jorde, plus single tallies from Aaron Bruzek, Mike Howe and Chad Kleinvachter in their league win. Seven players scored goals as Thief River Falls used a balanced scoring attack to defeat Baudette. John Seaverson scored twice, while Looker, Robby Coltom, Corey Poole, Bruzek, Howe and Aaron Janisch added single goals. Thief River Falls is now 12-4 for the year, 8-2 in league action.

Bantam Merchants were 1-1 over the weekend, losing 6-3 at Moorhead, with Jason Brunkhorst scoring twice and Mark Minor adding a single goal. They defeated Red Lake Falls 4-3 Sunday, with Chad Numedahl, Mike Nelson, Jeff Brouse and Minor scoring goals.

VFW Bantam A team moved its record over the .500 mark at 9-8 with a 6-2 victory over Moorhead. Steve McGann scored four times while Bill Dicken and Blair Lund added single goals. Shayne Anderson and Kraig Anderson split the goaltending duties, combining for 18 saves.

Bantam B team had a busy weekend, playing four games — three in a 24-hour period.

They were busy scoring goals, too, as they collected 32 in winning three of the four starts. Friday night Thief River Falls defeated East Grand Forks 8-2 in league play with Tim Nelson getting the hat trick and Mitch Welebski scoring twice. Grant Larson, Chris Johnson and Sean Krepp also scored. Saturday morning in Moorhead, Thief River Falls lost a well-played and exciting 6-5 game. John Azure scored twice, while Shoan Nelson, Johnson and Lynne Skibicki also turned on the red light. Then on Saturday afternoon, coach Scott Bergland's team out-scored the Fargo Northside Raiders 10-2 in a one-sided game in Moorhead. Hat tricks by Welebski and Shoan Nelson, plus a two-goal performance by Skibicki and single goals by Bret Haugen and Tim Nelson helped defeat the Raiders, who had beaten Thief River Falls earlier this year in the East Grand Forks tournament. Sunday's rematch in the old arena was closer early in the game as Fargo used its size advanatage, but Thief River Falls scored five third period goals to win the high-spirited contest 9-2. Haugen, Johnson and Welebski were the game's high scorers with two goals apiece. Shoan Nelson, Tim Nelson and Skibicki scored once. Terry Hunt and Kent Holmes split the goaltending duties, each playing two games. Thief River Falls is now 10-6-1, with a 6-5-1 mark in league play.

Grygla Beats Warroad In North Border Play, 59-43

Grygla combined a 52 per cent shooting night from the field with a strong defensive effort Tuesday in beating defending North Border Conference champion Warroad 59-43 in high school basketball action at Warroad.

"We played well — real well," praised Grygla coach Vern Johnson. "It was by far their best ball game of the year."

Grygla doubled Warroad 18-9 in the first quarter, moved out to a 36-21 halftime lead and enjoyed a 48-31 third quarter cushion.

Tony McLean led the Eagles with 18 points, while Wayne Byklum hit 14 and Jeff Klein 12. Chris Runnels supplied most of the Warroad offense with 17 points.

"Our defense really played well," explained Johnson. "We took them out of their offense and forced them to turn the ball over."

Meanwhile, a season-long Grygla problem of low shooting percentages disappeared as the Eagles canned 24 of 46 field goal attempts for their surprising 52 per cent mark. They were 11-for-22 from the free throw line.

Warroad shot only 32 per cent from the field (18-for-56) and 44 per cent from the line (7-for-16). The Warriors had a 42-39 rebound edge, but they also topped the turnover figures 33-18.

Grygla will try to improve upon its 3-6 record Friday at Badger.

Plummer will try to rebound from a disappointing 62-59 Friday night loss at Fisher in a Polar Conference assignment this Friday at Oslo.

"We didn't play well," reported Plummer coach Jim Baron after the loss at Fisher.

It was close all the way as Fisher posted a 15-14 first quarter lead, Plummer went ahead 31-30 at halftime and Fisher regained a 47-42 edge in the third quarter.

Plummer made a run at Fisher at the end. Trailing by nine points with two minutes left and still down seven with 1:23 to play, the Cardinals got within one point and had possession of the ball with 30 seconds still to play before losing it on a game-deciding turnover that led to a Fisher lay-up.

Tim Gagner was the game's high scorer with 22 points for the Cardinals. Brad Jordahl scored 18 to lead Fisher.

Plummer shot only 34 per cent from the field (23-for-64) while Fisher shot 40 per cent (28-for-70). The Cardinals were a shaky 13-for-30 at the free throw line, where the Flyers were 6-for-13. Rebounds were even at 36-apiece. Fisher topped the turnover charts 17-15.

Born in Roseau, Berglund was educated in the Twin Cities, where he graduated from Wilson high school in St. Paul, and attended the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis. A hockey player himself since the age of eight, he was named All-City his junior year in high school, and played hockey with the St. Paul Senior team until 1968.

YOUR CAMPGROUND HOST

PARTICIPANTS IN the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) state park host program in 1982 and 1983 at Itasca state park, Helen and Earl Halvorson of Goodridge received a host award from park manager John Herhusky last year for outstanding service to the Minnesota state park system. DNR is once again looking for state park hosts this summer.

DNR Looking For State Park Hosts

Minnesota state parks are again looking for volunteers to serve as "campground hosts" during the camping season. State park officials said this program has been very successful during the past two seasons.

"Hosts" are responsible, friendly people looking for a chance to meet and assist fellow campers while providing minor services at the campground. They are expected to stay at least a minimum of four weeks or longer in any one park. Exact schedules and duties will be mutually agreed to by the host and respective park manager.

Hosts are generally expected to be available during early evening hours, weekends and holidays. In addition to a free campsite, hosts gain an intimate knowledge of the area in which they serve and have the opportunity to meet people from all walks of life. Officials said that perhaps the most important benefit that hosts receive is a sense of satisfaction knowing they have helped make other visitors' experience at Minnesota state parks more enjoyable.

Campground hosts, usually an active but retired couple, live in the campground in their own unit and provide park visitors with information on park and area facilities, assist in cases of emergencies, remind visitors of park rules, inform the park manager of any problems in the campground and help keep the grounds and buildings neat and clean.

Don Davison, Director, Division of Parks and Recreation, said campground hosts would be stationed in several state parks that have semi-modern campsites between Memorial Day and Labor Day. Persons interested in being hosts this coming summer are asked to contact the park manager for more information at the particular park where they would like to serve or write to: "Campground Host Program," DNR, Parks and Recreation, Box 39, Centennial Office Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155.

Volunteers must be familiar with local points of interest and the location of anticipated services that might be requested by campers.

Volunteers must perform light maintenance work around the campground such as litter pickup, sweeping and stocking of supplies in toilets and making emergency minor repairs when possible and various other duties.

Volunteers may be requested to assist in the Naturalist's campground program.

Volunteers will take no law enforcement measure other than being observant and advising users of unintentional infractions. Flagrant violators will be reported to park personnel responsible for the campground.

Volunteers must set an example by being a model camper, practicing good housekeeping at all times in and around the host site, and by observing all rules.

Volunteers generally work independently. The Park Manager or his designee shall be available daily to help answer questions or discuss problems. Volunteers are responsible to the park manager or his designee. Park manager will provide orientation for "hosts" and assist hosts throughout the summer with any problems which may arise.

Dog Seminar Well Received

Between 50 and 60 people attended a seminar for dog owners and would-be dog owners at Thief River Falls city auditorium on Saturday afternoon. Sponsored by the Pennington county extension service, the session was coordinated by Eloise Wheeler, Pennington county 4-H dog project leader and lasted for about three hours.

Program opened with a film, "AKC and the Sport of Dogs," which was donated by the Agassiz Kennel Club. The film gave a brief history of the purebred dog, and then showed the diverse number of competitive events which are held under American Kennel Club rules, including dog shows, obedience trials and field trials.

Dr. Gemma E. Drees, veterinarian from Red Lake Falls, spoke on dog health. She emphasized the importance of selecting a healthy dog to begin with, and then maintaining the animal's health by careful attention to proper feeding and ensuring that the dog is protected from common diseases with vaccinations. She discussed symptoms of a number of common dog disorders, and emphasized that owners had to assume responsibility for their pets. She also recommended that people who did not intend to be responsible for raising and selling puppies should have their dogs spayed or neutered.

Another film, "Exercise Finished", gave a judge's view of obedience competition, emphasizing his responsibilities and proper ring procedures. Funds for the film were donated by Manit's Sheltie Kennel.

Marian Myhrum, professional dog trainer, gave a demonstration on dog obedience training, showing basic procedures to follow when preparing an inexperienced dog for competition. She also spoke about the 4-H dog project, and gave a number of tips on what judges look for during competition. She emphasized the importance of being consistent when training a dog so that it does not become confused.

Eloise Wheeler gave a demonstration on dog grooming, using her Shetland sheep dog, Canadian Champion Manitoulin's Marcy Lynn, as a subject. Noting that proper grooming was important not only in the show ring, but for the health of the animal as well, she gave pointers for cleaning and maintaining a dog's appearance. She emphasized the importance of establishing the dog's trust, by starting to handle it while it is young, so that it becomes used to procedures such as cleaning ears and teeth and clipping hair and toenails.

Final demonstration was given by Carolyn Raymond of St. Paul, who showed some of the procedures required in utility dog competition. Putting her 10 year old Shetland sheep dog, Singing Springs Monique U.D., through her paces, Raymond demonstrated the complex maneuvers required in AKC trials. Monique sailed over a series of jumps with an agility that belied her advanced age, but did experience some temporary difficulty with a different type of retrieving dummy than she was accustomed to. Monique has been trained and shown since she was six months old, qualifying for the 1976 Gaines National Classic in Newark, NJ. by having three scores over 195 in the novice division; and also qualified for the 1977 Classic in the open division. In addition, she earned one American high in trials at Grand Forks, ND.

Commenting after the seminar, Wheeler said she was pleased with the enthusiastic response from those attending, and said she hoped they would be able to offer other training sessions in the future.

Snowmobiling Reminders Are Given By DPS

With record snowfalls in Minnesota, snowmobiling is experiencing a real resurgence after several years of limited snow cover. Snowmobile purchases, use and applications for dealerships are up. A new manufacturer has even begun production.

Minnesota currently has over 210,000 snowmobiles registered. While that figure is down from the 1976 registration high of 292,488, it is still important for snowmobilers to follow safe operation guidelines and be familiar with applicable laws.

Basic "rule of the trail" is to always be aware of where you are driving. Power poles, cables, fences, stumps and underbrush can be hidden by snow. Visibility is always important and this is shown by the fact that most snowmobile accidents happen at night.

Largest group of operator fatalities involve those in the 18 to 30 age group. However, young children are over-involved in the total number of fatal accidents. As in a car crash, young children are more susceptible to injury or death in a snowmobile crash. In one tragic accident last winter, both a three-year old and a year-old infant drowned in a late evening snowmobile incident. Even in a spill away from water a child's smaller frame offers less protection.

Regulations on times and places where snowmobiling is allowed—or—prohibited may differ in various municipalities and counties. However, state law prohibits snowmobilers from driving within the right-of-way of any interstate highway or freeway. Snowmobilers may not drive on roadway shoulders or inside slopes of state trunk highways and state-aid county roads. Snowmobiles may cross divided highways only at intersections.

Snowmobile travel is legal in the ditches and on the outside slopes of state trunk highways and state-aid county roads. During daytime, snowmobilers can either use the right or left side of ditches and outside slopes.

At night snowmobilers must drive on the right side ditch or outside bank, moving in the same direction as traffic on the roadway. This helps keep motorists from being confused by seeing headlights approaching on the wrong side of the road.

Before crossing a street or highway, snowmobilers must stop completely and yield right-of-way to oncoming traffic. Then, cross at a 90 degree angle to the road and at a place free of hazardous obstructions. Headlights and rear lights must be on when crossing at dusk or during darkness.

Persons under 14 years of age are not permitted to drive a snowmobile across a highway. Operators between 14 and 17 may cross a highway, but only if they are carrying a valid snowmobile safety certificate.

Snowmobiles operating a public street or highway must have brakes adequate to stop and hold the vehicle under all driving conditions, at least one headlight able to show persons and vehicles 100 feet away during darkness, plus at least 16 square inches of reflective material on each side of the snowmobile forward of the handlebars.

Only persons 18 years or older may register a snowmobile. To renew registration, eligible snowmobile owners can apply to the department of natural resources, license section, in St. Paul or any office of a deputy registrar of motor vehicles.

Cost of registration for snowmobiles is $18 for three years. It is necessary to have your snowmobile registered or you cannot operate or transport a snowmobile, even on private property.

Major causes of snowmobile accidents are being thrown from the sled, hitting fixed objects and careless operation. Major causes of fatal accidents are hitting fixed objects and drownings.

Snowmobile operators must remember that driving while intoxicated on a snowmobile is prohibited and a violator is subject to DWI arrest and loss of driver license.

Number of three-wheelers and ATV's has been increasing over the last few low-snow winters. While the deep snow has bogged down some AVT use, it is important to remember that three-wheelers are not allowed on snowmobile trails. Similarily, snowmobiles are not welcome on designated cross-country ski trails.

Ski Trails Are Offered At Minnesota Zoo

There are 10 kilometers of groomed trails at the Minnesota Zoo in Apple Valley with varied terrain; short, easy trails for beginners and longer, more difficult trails for advanced skiers. Starting with the moose exhibit, the trails wind behind some of the Northern Trail animal exhibits and through acres of natural hillsides, ponds and forests.

Ski rental, sales, lessons and accessories are all available daily at the ski lodge located near the children's zoo area. This year there is an expanded lesson program. Small groups get a one-hour lesson for $6 per person plus ski rentals. Large groups are charged $7.50 per person for an hour and that includes ski rental. There are six levels of instruction available.

Depending on snow conditions, trails are open 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. and will be groomed and tracked by machines. Maps are available throughout the zoo and volunteers will be on the trails to assist skiers with directions and general information.

When the skiing is over, tour the zoo and the largest apres-ski warming house in the world — the one and one-half acre Tropics building.

There are 20 per cent discounts for groups making advance reservations, on ski rentals Monday through Friday for zoo members and 50 per cent discount on ski rentals to all zoo visitors on Thursdays.

Two Accidents In 5 Days Hit Warroad Firm

In separate incidents just five days apart, an explosion and a fire at the Marvin Windows plant in Warroad sent two men to the hospital and caused loss of most of the heating fuel supply for the manufacturing building.

On Saturday, January 7, electricians were installing a new electrical controller that starts and stops water pumps for the sprinkling system when a transformer exploded. Two men, Sheldon Espe and Rick Knutson, both 30, were taken to the Warroad clinic, which transferred them to the burn unit of St. Paul-Ramsey medical center in St. Paul, where they were listed in fair condition. Espe was burned over 11 per cent of his body, and Knutson was burned over 18 per cent of his body. Al Sutliff and Steve Doebler were also treated at the Warroad clinic and released the same day. The transformer meltdown left the firm without electricity for several hours, but service was back to normal by Monday.

On Thursday, a fire of unknown cause destroyed a supply of shavings used as fuel to heat the manufacturing building. Fire occurred in a bin measuring 60 feet in diameter and 76 feet high, which was said to be about one-third full. More than a half million gallons of water were used in controlling the blaze.

No injuries were reported, but all of the shavings were lost. More shavings were hauled in from Sprague, Manitoba, over the weekend, and stockpiled in a parking lot. In the meantime, the company drew on another bin of shavings to keep the plant heated. Plans were made to patch the bin and refill it with shavings. Although the company has natural gas as a backup heating fuel, they did not have to draw on it. No estimate was available on the value of the loss.

Donald E. Peres, Pastor Dave Finsaas, Youth Pastor

"I take the same care with animals that Block takes with taxes."

"I know I'm in good hands when Block prepares my tax return. My preparer goes to school every year to get special training. And she does taxes hundred of times. Training and experience— that's what makes you good at your job. I'll care for the animals and let Block take care of my taxes."

Imagine picking your way along a frozen wilderness trail. You're bitterly cold, but see no sign of human habitation, mile after terrifying mile.

Then, thanks to someone who's already gone this way, you come upon a crude shack. Even with shelter you could still freeze to death, but you find wood already gathered for a fire. Later, before venturing on, you too pile high more wood for someone yet to come.

No matter who you are . . . or where . . . your life marks a trail that someone is following. Along that way is the Church—a haven from storms of the world. Yet the building alone is not enough. It must have people to work in it and to gather fuel for the fires of faith.

Begin today to support and strengthen the Church for those yet to come.

Sobering Thoughts

Following editorial is from the Sacramento Bee:

The problem: Because states set different minimum drinking ages, teenagers living in states which fix age 20 or 21 as the minimum, go border-hopping, driving to a state where they are legally entitled to drink. On their way home, hundreds of tipsy adolescents are killed and more injured each year in car accidents. The solution: A uniform national minimum drinking age of 21.

That's the approach unimously recommended by the Presidential Commission on Drunk Driving. The commission urged that the federal government deny highway funds to states that refuse to change their laws — the same approach taken a decade ago to set a national 55-mph speed limit. (Federal legislation flatly mandating a uniform minimum drinking age would probably run afoul of the 21st Amendment which, in repealing Prohibition, gives the states responsibility for regulating commerce in alcohol. But because states depend heavily on federal highway money, the threat to withhold funds would achieve the same objective.)

President Reagan disagrees. While acknowledging the "slaughter" caused by drunken driving, Mr. Reagan insists that it's up to the states to address the issue. But although there are instances when use of the federal club is misplaced — as in the insistence that states permit right turns on red lights — this isn't one of them.

Disparate minimum drinking ages are the cause of this aspect of the teenage drunken driving problem, and while the states might conceivably act in concert to solve it, there's little evidence of that occurring. Changes in state law have come slowly, and not always with an eye to uniformity. When, for example, Wisconsin rewrote its statute, it raised the drinking age from 18 to 19; that doesn't keep Illinois teenagers, who can't legally drink until age 21, from crossing the border.

Obviously, the impact of setting a nationwide age 21, minimum drinking standard won't be confined to those who cross state lines in search of a drink.

It will cut down teenage drinking generally, and so reduce the 4,900 deaths caused annually by young drunken drivers. Congress should enforse the commission's recommendation and offer a national answer to a problem of national scope.

Ludeman Law Ludicrous

It was bad enough when a movement appeared afoot to push the state into selling more of its public lands. There have been numerous sales of stateheld lands over the years but accelerated sales were considered to pacify a demanding public and perhaps to give a one-time boost to state income.

Now Rep. Cal Ludeman of Tracy, an Independent-Republican, wants the state department of natural resources to give 200,000 acres of land away! First impression of the suggested give-away is that the Minnesota House member must have been wearing his earmuffs too tight during the December cold spell. Something must have restricted the blood supply to the part of the brain that affects the reasoning process.

Second impression is that the suggestion must be a gag, a hoax, a trick of some sort to awaken public interest or jar public apathy. Surely no one could be serious about such a suggestion. There has to be a catch, a wry turnabout, a surprise ending, a hidden motive begging discovery.

Alas, it is not so. Not only is Rep. Ludeman apparently serious about his far-out idea, he plans to have it formulated into proposed law for introduction to the 1984 legislative session. The legislature needs more whacko schemes on which to waste its time.

Let's take a look at the Ludeman logic as it was recently presented in the Minnesota Mascot in Lyon county. The paper says Ludeman will propose that the state give 40-acre parcels to new owners in return for "their promise to improve the land". The article states the new bill being worked on by the legislator ". . . will force the DNR to identify at least 200,000 acres for the first phase of the give-away, which would be a modern version of the Homestead act."

Ludeman is quoted as saying: "There are three important features of this plan. First, the DNR, with approval of the county boards affected, would identify parcels not requiring large expenditures for local services, such as roads. These parcels will be adjacent to private property, clustered with other parcels to be sold, and accessible by road."

He added that the most interesting feature would be the way in which the land would be offered. "Minnesota citizens would be able to bid an amount they are willing to spend on improving the land over the next five years," he said. "The successful bidder would receive a contract-for-deed for the property." He said the concern of exploitation can be handled by limiting the parcels per bidder and placing conditions on eligible bidders.

To ensure that bid promises are kept, he said, new owners would collect receipts for expenditures on homestead building, tree planting, landscaping or other "land stewardship" practices. "Any failure to complete expenditures equal to the bids over five years would result in default of the contract," he said.

To better understand how such an idea can be hatched, one has to have an indication of where it is coming from. Several of Ludeman's statements provide that insight.

"The main idea is not to raise revenue for the state, but simply to get more public lands in the hands of as many private citizens as possible," he is quoted as saying.

"The state has locked up billions of dollars of resources and has failed to manage it in a way that benefits people," he charges. "This plan would allow at least 5,000 people to experience private property ownership and management."

And then the kicker: "Good stewardship of land, productive management and environmental protection are functions of private ownership, not public control," he said.

The U.S. department of interior, soil conservation service, agricultural stabilization and conservation service, state extension service and others involved with public funds for conservation and environmental protection would be interested in that last bit of insightful wisdom.

Spare us from legislators who would make the public trust a mockery. The Ludeman Law is ludicrous.

Biting The Hand

Following editorial is from the Bemidji Pioneer:

There is always a last straw. In the case of Zimbabwe, the new African nation that replaced the old Rhodesia, it was the resolution in the United Nations condemning the Soviet Union for shooting down a civilian airliner last September.

The delegate from Zimbabwe refused to support it.

The upshot is that the United States has sent word to Prime Minister Robert Mugabe that there will not be as much U.S. economic aid allotted to Zimbabwe, this year. Mugabe's government will be getting $40 million instead of the $75 million it was expecting.

True to form, the prime minister is complaining. We have sent him $200 million since 1980 to help his country get on its feet, and what we hear mostly are complaints.

Mugabe refused to support the Korean airliner resolution on the preposterous grounds that protesting against the outrage would involve Zimbabwe in rivalry between the superpowers. He voted to condemn the United States for invading Grenada on grounds that approving the mission might justify a future invasion of Zimbabwe. Zimbabwe officials boycotted a memorial service for American and French servicemen killed by terrorists in Lebanon; they disapprove of our suppprt of Israel in the Middle East.

In Washing, the administration is justified in wondering whose side Zimbabwe is on. Mugabe professes to be pursuing a "non-aligned" foreign policy, but he has managed to make non-alignment even more anti-American than many of his Third World cousins.

The United States has kept Zimbabwe on its list of nations receiving foreign aid because the government in Harare (formerly Salisbury) seems sincerely dedicated to building a democratic society in the ashes of the old white-dominated Rhodesia. There is still hope that Mugabe can resist the Marxist in his midst who want to put Zimbabwe squarely in the pro-Soviet camp. When the reduced aid checks begin to arrive, Mugabe should get the message that he needs to try harder.

Cooking Corner

Tips To Help You

From Freezer To Microwave, Dinner For Four In Minutes

Today's busy cooks know and appreciate how frozen dishes and microwave cooking leave them more time for family, friends, work or whatever. Now, there's a new trend, combining the two into luscious one-dish meals that treat cook and family to delicious eating with minimum time and maximum taste.

One such example teams frozen macaroni and cheese and frozen barbecue sauce with sliced beef. The simple addition of canned corn, green pepper rings and a topping of corn chips and shredded cheese turns this into a well-balanced casserole meal that's delicious as well as nutritious.

The cooking experts at Banquet Foods invite you to share their recipe:

CRUNCHY BARBECUE BEEF AND MACARONI

- 2 packages (8 oz. each) Banquet Casseroles Macaroni and Cheese
- 4 packages (4 oz. each) Banquet Cookin' Bag Barbecue Sauce with Sliced Beef
- 1 can (8 oz.) whole kernel yellow corn, drained
- 6 green pepper rings
- 1 cup regular corn chips
- 1/2 cup (2 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese

A tasty meal in a dish combines macaroni and cheese with barbecued beef and a topping of crunchy corn chips.

Remove macaroni and cheese from foil pans and place in microwave-safe bowl. Heat, covered, on HIGH six to eight minutes, or until thawed, stirring once. Set aside. Remove barbecue sauce with sliced beef from bags and place in two-quart oblong glass baking dish. Heat, covered, on HIGH six to eight minutes or until thawed, stirring once. Layer macaroni and cheese over beef. Top with corn, green pepper, corn chips and cheese. Heat, uncovered, on HIGH five to seven minutes or until hot, rotating dish once. Makes four servings.

1.7 Million To File State Tax Returns In MN

About 1.7 million Minnesotans are expected to file state income tax returns in 1984, Arthur C. Roemer, state revenue commissioner, stated recently. Of this number, about 1.1 million taxpayers will eventually get income tax refunds back from the state, Roemer said.

Total amount refunded back to taxpayers should be about $363 million, Roemer said. This would be an increase of about $33 million in state income tax refunds over the refunds received in 1983.

Among the changes which taxpayers will find when they fill out their 1983 tax forms is an increase in the surtax from seven per cent to ten per cent. Other changes in the 1983 tax forms and instructions apply mainly to taxpayers who fill out form M-1 or the regular state income tax form used by most Minnesotans. Taxpayers who use form M-1A — the short form first introduced a year ago — will find little change in the form.

Here are some changes to look for in the 1983 form M-1, according to Roemer.

Biggest change in the regular state form is in the process of itemizing deductions. As a result of changes enacted by the 1983 state legislature, taxpayers who itemize deductions will find that the deductions allowed by Minnesota are now basically the same as those allowed by the federal government.

So, if itemizing deductions on both federal and state forms, the total deductions from the federal form can be filled in the space provided on the back of the Minnesota form M-1. As a result, it is no longer necessary to fill out a separate form to list Minnesota deductions.

Another law change made by the legislature is the elimination of three state income tax credits. Credits which have been eliminated are the pollution control credit, the exempt agricultural electricity credit, and credit for state tax paid on gasoline and special fuel used in boats. For the most part, these credits provided only small tax reduction and applied to few people. Eliminating them allowed us to get several lines of type off the tax forms and several paragraphs out of the way of taxpayers trying to wade through the instruction booklet, Roemer said.

Legislature also simplified the process of reporting capital gains and depreciating property and equipment on form M-1. Beginning with the 1983 form M-1, the percentage of a capital gain included in Minnesota income is the same as the percentage included in federal income.

In the past, the percentages were different, and a portion of the capital gain listed on the federal form had to be added back into Minnesota income on the Minnesota form.

Also, if depreciating property and equipment on the federal form, the same amount is used on both federal and Minnesota forms for property and equipment put into use in 1983. However, for property and equipment put into use before 1983, some adjustment has to be made between federal and Minnesota depreciation, Roemer said.

In another change, it used to be possible to reduce Minnesota income by subtracting out the federal investment credit, but the law now says that the credit can no longer be subtracted out. Legislature also raised the maximum amount of income that can be earned and still be eligible for the child and dependent care credit. As a result, more people should be eligible for the credit, Roemer said.

Roemer said that the revenue department will be submitting a long list of proposals to the 1984 legislature aimed at further simplifying the process of filling out state income tax forms.

The 1983 state income tax forms and instruction booklets were mailed to taxpayers in the first week of January. Tax package also includes the yellow property tax refund forms and instructions.

Everyone who filled a 1982 state income tax return should have received the 1983 forms and instructions in the mail by now, Roemer said.

If the 1983 tax package has not yet been received a 1982 state return wasn't filed — the forms and instructions can be picked up at most banks and state offices throughout the state. Or telephone the revenue department and ask to have them mailed. Number to call — 24 hours a day — is (612) 297-3737.

FACTS & FIGURES

WHAT DO ACTUARIES DO?

Today, the average man is heavier than he was 20 years ago... and the average woman is lighter.

The word "actuary" comes from the Latin "actuarius," meaning "keeper of accounts." Today there are nearly 10,000 people in the actuarial profession in the United States, but they are much more than keepers of accounts.

Actuaries are keepers of the past, present and future. By observing past events, such as birth, marriage, sickness, accidents, fire, liability, retirement, and death, actuaries determine their present and future financial implications using high-tech mathematics.

Most Americans' lives are or will be touched by actuarial science. Financial rates for Social Security, group health insurance plans, and vested retirement programs are calculated by actuaries, as are premiums and payments for auto, life, homeowner's, fire, theft and liability insurance.

The roots of actuarial science go back to ancient Rome, where the first mortality tables were formulated. It was not until 1693, however, that Edmund Halley (who plotted the path of the comet) applied precise mathematical discipline in this area; since then actuarial science has brought calculus, probability, statistics, accounting and finance into its fold.

The American Academy of Actuaries represents over 80 percent of all actuaries in this country, and according to the Academy's president, A. Norman Crowder, about half of them are employed by insurance companies, 40 percent are in consulting practice, and the balance work for federal, state and local governments, and a growing number of industries.

Today, actuaries are considering such factors as the effects of smoking on life-span, variables affecting good and bad driving records for auto insurance, and how a person's build, weight and blood pressure affect longevity.

22% Of U.S. Farm Products Are Exported

Based on cash marketings, only 22 per cent of U.S. farm production was exported in fiscal 1983 (October 1982 - September 1983). The "mix" of farm products exported showed some variation but 1983 will be remembered as a very weak export year, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service.

Wheat exports were most seriously hurt. Only 51 per cent of the nation's wheat was exported versus 68 per cent in 1981 and 61 per cent in 1982. Had it not been for CCC credit guarantees (blended credit, for instance), the proportion would have been even lower.

The two largest U.S. wheat markets in recent years — China and the Soviet Union — didn't buy any wheat from January through the end of the fiscal year. Our largest wheat market became India, taking 3.9 million tons, the statistics service notes.

Canada, meanwhile, exported over 85 per cent of its wheat production in 1980 and 1981. Canada, Argentina and the European Community (France) competed intensely with the U.S., each trying to grab market shares for wheat through liberal credit arrangements, subsidy payments and long-term agreements.

Next year, however, promises to be better for U.S. wheat exports. Sales to both the Soviet Union and China should fall in the four to five-million-ton range. The U.S. dominates world feed grain markets. In 1983, though, the U.S. exported only 22 per cent of its corn crop when in recent years roughly one-third of the crop was normally exported.

Soybeans did better than most farm products this year. Since 1979, a little over half of the soybean crop entered the export market and the past year was no exception despite heavy competition.

Fiscal 1984, however, may show some radical changes for soybeans: With a short 1983-84 crop, oil-seed prices will be higher. In such a tight market, U.S. soybean exports may total only 19.6 million tons versus 24.5 million in 1983.

Clarification Of Trailer Law Is Presented

State Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer released from his office this week a clarification of a bill which passed in the 1983 legislature that he says has been creating confusion among local farmers on the question of farm trailer license registration.

Part of the confusion has stemmed from an information card which the department of public safety is sending out with license renewal notices. Sen. Stumpf says the information card is unclearly worded.

"Several farmers that I've met with personally and others who have written and called my office have expressed confusion over changes in registration for trailers," said Stumpf.

Farm trailers under 10,000 pounds which were previously exempt from license fees will continue to be exempt. Only those farm trailers which exceed 10,000 pounds in gross weight and are towed by licensed vehicles on public roads will need to be licensed. They will be taxed as farm trucks, which pay 30 per cent of the base rate schedule.

Senator Stumpf stressed the fact that the change applies only to those trailers previously licensed. Farm trailers that didn't require licensing in the past — those under 10,000 pounds and those which are pulled by farm tractors or are only used in fields — are exempt from this new law. The change was part of the bill to increase weight, width and length of trucks to comply with federal law.

Sparby Would Eliminate Tax Surcharge

State Representative Wally Sparby, DFL-Thief River Falls, says he supports the elimination of the 10 per cent income tax surcharge as recommended by Governor Perpich in his "state of the state" address to the legislature.

"I agree with the governor that it's time to remove the surcharge," Sparby said. "We promised the citizens of the state to remove the surcharge once Minnesota's fiscal crisis had passed, and that time is now."

Sparby noted that current budget projections show a budget surplus as high as $750 million. If the legislature repealed the surcharge effective July 1, as the governor has proposed, Minnesota taxpayers would receive a tax cut of $230 million.

"Because of the program enacted by the governor and the legislature in 1983, the state's financial situation has improved so much that we could repeal the surcharge, put aside a rainy day budget reserve of $325 million, and still guarantee our traditional commitment to social services and education," he said.

According to Sparby, there is strong support among members of the House to drop the surcharge, but he is uncertain of the mood in the Senate. The Senate tax committee chairman does not want to risk more financial problems for the state and has, instead, proposed that the surcharge be reduced from 10 per cent to five per cent.

"Whatever else happens during the 1984 season, the surcharge is sure to stir a lot of debate," said Sparby. "I will support every effort to abolish it."

Rate Increase Slated By Red Lake Electric

At the December 21 meeting, the Red Lake Electric Board of Directors approved the 1984 budget and retail rates. Retail rates will go into effect with electricity members use after January 20, according to Ron Kennedy, manager.

Cost of 1,000 kilowatt hours per month will increase from its $56.50 to $65.50, an increase of $9 or 15.9 per cent. Different levels of consumption will result in different percentages of increase, but the overall revenue increase gained by the rates is 15.9 per cent, Kennedy said.

Net dual heating rate will rise from 2.5 cents per kilowatt hour to 2.7 cents per kilowatt hour. This increase reflects the growing difference between dual heating rates and regular retail rates.

Facilities charge will increase from $5 to $7 per month. This $7 facilities charge better reflects the actual cost of providing service to a farm or residential location, Kennedy said. The retail rate structure of the cooperative continues to allocate cost of groups of member consumers at the actual cost to serve that group.

Budgeted operating expenses total $4.8 million in 1984. This compares with $4.2 million in 1983. The largest operating expenditure will be wholesale power cost which is budgeted at $3.3 million as compared with $2.8 million in 1983. Revenue from 19 million kilowatt hours sold to cooperative members in 1984 will total approximately $5 million.

As stated previously, wholesale power costs from Minnkota Power will increase over $500,000 in 1984. This substantial increase is attributed to the increase in debt service obligation on the Coyote generating plant. Minnkota's debt service obligation on the plant in 1984 will be $23.5 million, up from 1983's $19.3 million. In 1985 the debt service obligation will be $24.5 million, the highest level the annual debt service obligation will reach. This will result in a leveling off of wholesale and retail rates to Red Lake Electric members in the future.

This rate increase and the reasons for it will be among topics discussed at the cooperative's upcoming membership meetings. All members are urged to attend these area meetings.

Few Pennington Farmers Enter Dairy Program

With the January 31 deadline for sign-up in the new federal dairy reduction program fast approaching, only a few contracts have been signed by dairy farmers at the Pennington county agricultural stabilization and conservation committee office. A last-minute rush is still possible.

There are about 100 dairy farms in Pennington county, according to the ASCS office, and there have been a number of inquires about the program and considerable effort made to establish production bases. Pennington county extension service notes that quite a number of farmers have made use of the computer in that office to analyze their individual operations. But only a few have actually signed contracts.

Extension of the sign-up deadline has been requested of John Block, U.S. secretary of agriculture, by a number of U.S. congressmen and senators but no extension has yet been announced. The program offers payment of $10 per hundredweight for reduced milk production over a 15-month period as compared with the established farm base.

NCC Theatre Stages "The Fitzgeralds"

Northland Theatre will present its production of "The Fitzgeralds", based upon the lives of American novelist F. Scott Fitzgerald and his wife Zelda, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Northland community college theatre in Thief River Falls.

According to director Roger Vaughan, F. Scott Fitzgerald was the voice of the lost generation, the Jazz Age, the generation of flaming youth. This show chronicles his rise to prominence with the publication of "This Side of Paradise," and his marriage to Zelda, also a writer, whose desire had been to be a dancer and whose tormented life expired in a fire that swept a hospital for mental and nervous diseases in Asheville, NC.

"The show traces F. Scott's struggle to fulfill the magnificent promise of his youth, including the celebrity status, acclamation and money associated with his fame, his extravagant life on the Riviera and in Rome, and continues through his demise at the age of 44 when he had described himself as "a cracked plate."

The production is under the direction of Northland Theatre director Vaughan and his assistant, Christopher Kays. Scott is played by Kays, Zelda by Wendy Easton, and the narrators are played by Jenee Frolander and Khris Radke.

Tickets will be on sale at the box office prior to performances at $2 for adults, $1 for students and free for N.C.C. faculty, staff and senior citizens.

Arctco Progress Report Given At Jobs Meeting

Optimistic report and projections from Arctco, Inc., were heard by members of Jobs Incorporated of Thief River Falls at the annual meeting Thursday noon at Lon's restaurant. The Actco summary was presented by its president, William Ness.

Also reporting at the meeting were Jerry Sandstrom, executive director, who reviewed activity under the revised structure of the organization, and Arnold Carriere, who summarized the "Job Builders of Thief River Falls" sustaining membership program.

Reelected to the board of directors were Gene Beito and James Winjum while newly elected directors were Roger Reuter, Dennis McCabe and Dr. John Seaverson. Continuing as directors are Ev Ault, William Ness, Arnold Carriere, Arve Moser and David Strong. Directors leaving the board are William Hogan and Dale Olmstead.

At a reorganization of the board of directors immediately following the annual meeting, James Winjum was elected president, Ev Ault was elected vice president and Gene Beito was reelected treasurer. Ault was president of the organization for 1983 and Winjum was vice president. Jerry Sandstrom was reelected secretary and continues to serve as executive director.

In his report on Arctco's first year of operation as builder of the resurrected Arctic Cat snowmobiles, Ness said that the company had first year sales of $7.3 million and that the operation is expected to be quite profitable. He said he expected industry sales to match 1982 and sales in January of 1984 to surpass the sales of January a year ago.

Looking ahead to the 1984 production year for 1985 model machines, he said the company will again build snowmobiles only to dealer order but expects a demand for 6,000 to 7,000 units. The network of about 370 dealers for 1983-84 sales has been expanded to more than 800 for the 1984-85 year. It would appear at this time, Ness said, that from 140 to 175 production workers would be needed to produce the snowmobiles expected to be ordered for the 1985 model year.

In addition to its own production of about 2,600 snowmobiles for the 1984 model year, the Arctco president said the company has inherited the approximately 250,000 Arctic Cats which were built during the era of Arctic Enterprises and are still in use throughout the world. He said that 13 dealer meetings are being planned throughout February and March across the snow belt of the United States to introduce the six models of snowmobiles which will be offered for 1985.

In addition to the Panther and El Tigre models which were produced in the past operating year, the company will offer the Jag, Pantera, Cougar and Kitty Kat for 1985. Ness said that there had appeared to be a good demand for the scaled-down Kitty Kat for children and that the new models would be produced with headlight and windshield. The Pantera, he said, would have a 440 engine, be an excellent deep snow machine and provide a "combination of the best of what Arctco has to offer."

Ness explained that this time of year is one of the worst for management in the snowmobile industry. Engineering and testing is being done for 1985 and 1986 model machines, prints are being updated, prototypes are being built and tested, quality control is working on any defects which might show up in 1984 models and eliminating them for 1985.

The advertising theme for the coming year is being developed, photos of new model machines are being taken, brochures and information materials developed and preparations made for dealer meetings. Machines are being readied for the dealer meetings so that all of the new models can be shown to dealers and work is being done with snowmobile magazines for articles on 1985 model machines.

Service and warranty department is busy, he said, and the company is looking further to vertical integration, including manufacture of the foam seats and additional metalwork in the Thief River Falls plant. Applications for employment are also being reviewed at this time, he said, along with budgeting, working out a credit line with the banks, preparing for audit, conducting an employee survey, investigating further computer use including inventory control and beginning some long-range planning.

Regarding attempts to sell some of the buildings purchased by Arctco from Minstar, Ness said that there had been a number of inquiries and "a few tire-kickers" visiting the site but no likely purchase prospects at the present time.

In explaining the Job Builders of Thief River Falls sustaining membership program, Arnold Carriere noted that the fund-raising campaign is aimed at business and professional people who would like to contribute to the Jobs Incorporated program through their businesses. A display shaped like the side of a building was shown at the meeting with simulated bricks containing the name of the $100 donor attached to it. Objective of the program will

Cathy Spengler Speaks At Lioness Club Meeting

Special guest at the January supper meeting of the Goodridge Lioness club was Mrs. Vern (Cathy) Spengler of Thief River Falls. A leader of the Grief Support group in that city, Mrs. Spengler stated that the purpose of the group was to help the bereaved recognized and cope with the various grief stages: shock, anger, bargaining, depression and acceptance. She said that by sharing ones own experiences, it helps others to cope with theirs. She concluded by saying that anyone interested in attending a meeting was welcome. Those wishing further information were asked to call her at 681-1483.

During the regular business session, projects discussed at the board meeting, January 4, were proposed. First vice president Elaine Wiseth gave information on the Brown Bag style show. Following a discussion, the group voted to sponsor a show at the Senior Citizens Valentine party at the Goodridge center on February 16, at 2:00 p.m. For the event, each member was asked to donate a market basket item.

It was also announced that at the board meeting, a decision was made that special committees will be responsible for surprise programs during the year. The finance committee, composed of Carolyn Pittman, chairman, Sharon Wayne, Peggy Hoffman and Deane Paulson, will be responsible for the February program.

Reports were given on the 1983 fund raising projects sponsored by the Lioness club and supported by the community. It was noted that the funds from the Teas, which concluded November 24, will be used to support the Leader dog, Eye bank, and Hearing foundation. Appreciation gifts were presented to the members hosting the teas.

It was noted that $99 had been added to the fund at a money making project at the Goodridge school. Funds were also obtained at a project which culminated at Lions Ladies Nite held in December at the Trapper and Trader. District Lion president was guest speaker at the banquet. For the event, the steak house had been decorated by the Lioness with the Lions assisting in erecting the Christmas tree.

During the January meeting, members participated in an opinion poll, giving suggestions and ideas in using the money in the activity fund.

Members voted to donate $100 to the physically and mentally handicapped program in Thief River Falls. Selected to make the presentation to Polly Reed, the instructor at the school, were Dorothy Wayne and Sharon Wayne.

President Doreen Sigerud presided at the meeting and announced that the District 5 M-11 International mid-winter convention will be held at the Best Western Inn in Crookston January 27-29. She urged all members to attend the convention and to obtain their new Lionesstone pins for exchanging from Marlys Drengstveit. She stated that those attending the convention will have the opportunity of exchanging pins with the 53 Lion and 11 Lioness clubs in the district. The pins designed by Ethel Wiseth feature a Lionstone car, similar to the one entered by the Goodridge clubs in several parades throughout the year.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

The Customer Is Always Right?

Last summer I purchased a number of items from a Thief River Falls merchant. After presenting them as gifts to my sisters, we discovered that the clasp on one of the necklaces was broken. My mother returned the necklace to the store where I purchased it asking that it be repaired.

The manager of the store denied that the store would ever sell such a cheap piece of jewelry, insinuated that it was bought at a dime store, and suggested that I had just stamped one of the store stickers on the box. When I heard this, I found the cancelled check but was unable to locate the receipt from those purchases. I stopped in at the store to prove that I, the customer, was right. As before, the manager denied having sold the necklace.

I am sorry that people are insecure about the quality of the products they sell. The manager may have saved 50 cents by not repairing the clasp but will never see me as a customer again.

Sincerely,

be to obtain enough $100 Job Builder donors to cover the side of the building. Carriere said the display will be on public view at community functions and business places.

Executive director Jerry Sandstrom noted that Independent Machine Service of Denver, CO, would shut down its operation there on February 6 or 13 and move its equipment to Thief River Falls prior to February 29. Because Bob Puetz had sold his former cabinet shop building to Independent Machine Service, he would add equipment and two more employees at his new location, Sandstrom said.

An effort is being made to attract Medallion Kitchens, which had an extensive fire at its present location, to locate in Thief River Falls. Sandstrom said competition is strong — including a delegation sent by the governor of South Dakota — but available buildings, excellent electric rates, availability of enterprise zone funds and other factors continue to make this community attractive.

Last day of the redemption period under bankruptcy for the alfalfa pellet plant north of Thief River Falls was the day of the Jobs Incorporated meeting, Sandstrom added, and efforts will be made to get the plant back into operation. He also announced that Pepsi-Cola company had made a decision to stay in Thief River Falls and would attempt to sell its present building on First street and look for another building.

A workshop on enterprise zone funding use has been set for February 6 at 7 p.m. at the city auditorium in Thief River Falls. This city has been designated as recipient of $1.74 million in enterprise zone funds.

Sandstrom said he was excited about the work that had been done in six months under the reorganized structure and pleased with the support and cooperation of the community. Jobs Incorporated will have a display at a trade show in Minneapolis in February, he said, and work also continues with making contacts in the Winnipeg area. A local industrial contact survey is headed by Dave Strong, he added, to determine if local needs of industry can be supplied through other local businesses.

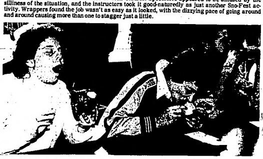
WRAPPING instructors in toilet paper gave AVTI students one friendly way to get "revenge" for the work laid on them in the course of their studies. Spectators appeared to be amused by the silliness of the situation, and the instructors took it good-naturedly as just another Sno-Fest activity. Wrappers found the job wasn't as easy as it looked, with the dizzying pace of going around and around causing more than one to stagger just a little.



CARAMEL apple eating is usually a pleasant activity, but when it is turned into a race it can be tough work. Some contestants bit off more than they could chew. Going got even tougher when Sno-Fest participants got to their second "apple" which turned out to be an onion covered with the same gooey candy. Few competitors got beyond the first couple of bites on that one.

Update Session On Diabetes At Bemidji

Children with diabetes can live full and healthy lives, but only with help from informed health professionals who can provide up-to-date diabetes care and education.

New diabetes management techniques will be discussed at the Holiday Inn in Bemidji on Friday, February 3, from 8:30 to 4 p.m. A program titled "Diabetes Update" will present practical information for doctors, nurses, dietitians, pharmacists and social workers who are involved in diabetes care. Children with diabetes and their families will also benefit from the presentations and the opportunity to ask questions of experts in diabetes care.

"Diabetes Update" is sponsored by the Minnesota Diabetes in Youth program (MDYP), which for the past five years has assisted health professionals throughout Minnesota to provide quality diabetes care and education. MDYP is a partnership of the international diabetes center in Minneapolis and the Minnesota department of Health's services for children with handicaps (SCH).

"Diabetes Update" will cover practical aspects of new methods of diabetes management, such as teaching children and their parents how to monitor and control blood sugar levels. Close self control of blood sugar shows great promise in helping people with diabetes avoid long-term problems such as blindness and kidney disease. The program will also cover new concepts in nutrition, exercise and medication for diabetes.

The program will be presented by staff members of the international diabetes center (IDC) which was founded in 1967 by Dr. Donnell Etzwiler to provide quality diabetes care, education, research and outreach efforts. Barbara Balik, R.N., M.S., will coordinate the program and discuss self blood glucose monitoring. Dr. Etzwiler, pediatric endocrinologist, will discuss current medical management of diabetes. Broatch Haig, R.D., will discuss new concepts in nutrition. Those attending will have an opportunity to ask questions of the IDC staff and local SCH health professionals.

To register for "Diabetes Update," call (612) 927-3727.

TOSSING DOWN the first can, competitors in a pop drinking contest started out full of enthusiasm (top photo), but by the time they got to the third and final beverage (bottom photo), the carbonation was taking its toll, and most of the contestants were looking more than just a little uncomfortable. Some even headed outside for a refreshing blast of fresh air, which hovered at about 15 degrees below zero. Pop drinking was just one of many competitive events held in the commons on Thursday, as part of Sno-Fest activities at Thief River Falls area vocational technical institute.

ANOTHER GIFT for Avis Holum, recently retired from the personnel office in School District 564 after 21 years with the district, was presented from Lincoln high school staff members by Frank Hamerlinck, principal. ## Jazz Festival Is Slated At Bemidji State

Fourteen jazz bands from schools in the United States and Canada will perform in the 11th annual Bemidji state university (BSU) jazz festival February 3 and 4 in the Bangsberg fine arts center.

Groups performing include five bands from the United States: Bemidji, Gary, Grand Rapids and Northland (Remer) high schools from Minnesota, and Shanley high school from Fargo, ND. Nine Canadian bands are all from Winnipeg: Dakota, Oak Park, Sturgeon Creek and Windsor Park high schools and Acadia, Charleswood, Hastings, John Pritchard and Minnetonka junior high schools.

Unlike other jazz festivals, the Bemidji state festival is seen not as a competition but as a learning experience. Guest clinicians critique each band and hold workshops for all interested musicians.

Guest clinicians for this year's festival will be Steve Wright and Steve Houghton. Wright, an accomplished lead trumpet player, is an alumnus of the U.S. air force jazz ensemble, the Airmen of Note, and has backed up famous entertainers like Wayne Newton, Tony Bennett and Sammy Davis Jr.

Houghton, a former member of the famed "One O'Clock Lab Band" at North Texas state university, is a drummer for the Toshiko Akiyoshi-Lew Tabackin Big Band and the Freddie Hubbard Quartet.

Jazz will begin Friday afternoon and continue through Saturday in the Bangsberg main theatre and the Thompson recital hall. Sessions are open to the public.

Festival will conclude Saturday evening with a concert by Bemidji state university jazz bands one and two, under the direction of Steve Konecne. Wright and Houghton will perform as featured soloists. Concert will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the main theater. Admission will be $2 for the general public, $1 with BSU I.D.

For more information on the festival contact the BSU music department, Bangsberg fine arts center, Bemidji state university, Bemidji, MN 56601 (218-755-2915).

Beef Cow And Calf Day Set At Crookston

University of Minnesota's agriculture extension service, department of animal science and agricultural experiment station will be conducting a beef cow and calf day on January 26 from 10 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. at the Northwest experiment station in Crookston.

Topics to be discussed are: developing forage and crossbreeding systems; utilization of cattle breeds; performance and selection programs; developments in estrus synchronization and cattle cycles and how to predict them.

All beef producers are encouraged to attend.

NFO Spokesman Comments On Cattle Sales

"It seems everyone from the National Cattlemen's association to government spokesmen for the public food and health policy are saying they are concerned about the cow market. Well, so am I," says Andy Neutzling, director of the NFP slaughter cattle division.

"The only difference between them and myself is that I've been concerned about the cow market for many years because it is the backbone of the entire beef market" Neutzling stated.

"Their concern today is that the dairyman, with the paid diversion program, will flood the market with cull cows and destroy the whole cattle market."

He explained, however, that the situation is little changed from what it has been for years. The main change, he said, is in the attitude of the producers.

"Perhaps a number of years ago the dairyman and the cattle rancher considered their cull cows as by-products," Neutzling said. "Today, however, it is a major portion of their annual income and both dairyman and ranchers know they need to protect their market."

He noted the dairy cull cows traditionally account for half or more of the boned beef market. He went on to say if dairy steers fed out by many dairymen are taken into consideration the dairymen has even more to lose than the cattle rancher.

"With these things in mind," he said, "do you think the dairyman should try to stop the cattle ranchers from culling in the fall and spring?

"Of course not," he said. "Both need to complement each other and work together to protect their beef market. It is not the amount of cows culled but the distribution and delivery that make or break a market.

"For example," Neutzling pointed out, "today we see $27 cows in the west due to heavy fall culling by the ranchers but $35 to $36 in the midwest due to a lack of cows.

"The National Farmers organization has taken action for its members and moved cows out of the west into the midwest, giving extra income for those ranchers. "If we could have more cattlemen using the National Farmers collective bargaining program you would see less of this high spread between areas of the country.

"We have enough segments in the cattle industry attempting to destroy our markets. We don't need cattlemen against cattlemen," he concluded.

Patterson New Director Of News Council

Minnesota news council has named Tom Patterson, 41, Minneapolis, as executive director, according to an announcement today by John E. Simonett, associate justice of the Minnesota supreme court and volunteer chairman of the council.

The 24-member news council is a private not-for-profit organization which hears complaints against the media. Half of the council members are from the media and half are public members.

"Together, we represent an effort to promote a free, fair and honest media," Justice Simonett said. "We are pleased to have a person of Mr. Patterson's experience join our efforts."

Patterson is a 1964 journalism graduate of the University of Minnesota. For the past 13 years he has held various positions with the Minnesota Medical foundation, including director of communications and director of annual giving. He began his career as a reporter-photographer for the Albert Lea Evening Tribune and was editor of an award-winning employee magazine for Northern State Power company from 1965 to 1967. From 1967 to 1971 he was with International Dairy Queen, Inc., Minneapolis, first as director of communications and later as director of advertising and public relations.

In 1983, 73 persons or groups voiced complaints against the media to the council. Most were settled by the parties themselves, with council assistance. When cases are heard by the full council, decisions are published but carry no penalty or weight of law.

Northern State Bank Reports Very Good Year

Addition of $500,000 to its surplus account to bring capital accounts over the $8 million mark was announced at the annual meeting of Northern State bank of Thief River Falls last week. Deposits were up 10 per cent over the previous year.

Gene Beito, bank president, said that the increase in capital accounts increases the bank's lending ability to $600,000 for any one customer. Total assets of the bank are now $63 million, he said, and 1983 was a good year for the bank's operations.

Reelected to the board of directors were Beito, Orville Hanson, Stan Wilson, Clyde Christensen, Norris Melander and William Ness.

Officers reelected were Beito, president; Hanson, senior vice president and cashier; Orville Botner, Fred Dallmann and Steven Stokke, vice presidents; Dee Schmidtgall, insurance manager; Louise Breznay, auditor; Barbara Bjerken, real estate loan officer; David Beito, data processing officer; Rosalie Fournier and James Morrissey, loan officers; Tim Erickson, installment loan officer; and Kurt Klosterman, assistant installment loan officer.

Beltrami Added To Counties On Disaster List

Disaster relief loans for farmers in Beltrami county who were hit by a combination of natural disasters in 1983 were announced Thursday by Congressman Arlan Stangeland.

Farmers who lost at least 30 per cent of their crops and who cannot obtain loans elsewhere will qualify for loans covering 80 per cent of their losses, up to $500,000.

The interest rate on these loans is normally eight per cent, but at the drought summit meeting in Chicago with agriculture secretary John Block last summer, farm-state leaders persuaded Block to lower the interest rate on the first $100,000 of disaster loans to five per cent.

"That increases the purchasing power of these disaster loans by up to $3,000," Stangeland said.

Beltrami county disaster declaration was issued by Block on Thursday morning, after Congressman Stangeland urged him to study the impact on crops of heavy rains, excess moisture and alternating rounds of extreme heat and cold during the growing season.

During the past 12 months, Congressman Stangeland says he has secured 1983 disaster relief for Red Lake and Pennington county farmers and 1982 relief for Marshall, Pennington and Red Lake counties.

Accompanying those disaster declarations were special loans from the U.S. Small Business administration to help businesses in disaster areas to survive the loss from lower farm income. The SBA loans cover 85 per cent of disaster-related losses, up to $500,000.

Congressman Stangeland also persuaded the Farmers Home administration (FmHA) to open a new FmHA office in Crookston and to train special teams to help in processing disaster relief requests.

Late last year, he also secured commitments for FmHA's "Limited Resource Loan Fund" for farmers in disaster-stricken areas, and sought extra leniency from the FmHA in determining the repayability of extended loans.

Congressman Stangeland also helped to persuade Secretary Block to forego an appeal of a court order to release $600 million in economic emergency loans. That effort avoided several months of delay in providing assistance to farmers who needed the extra loans.

Problem Without Solution?

Is hunger really a problem in the United States of America? Apparently it is for some people under some situations, although it is likely that no one will ever know how serious a national problem it is. Hunger is personal. If you don't have any or enough food to eat, it's a problem. If you're well fed and comfortable, the term takes on a different meaning.

Most Americans would agree that despite unbelievably high national debt and widespread individual economic difficulty, there is easily enough wealth in the nation so that nobody needs to be without the basics of food, clothing and shelter. That such conditions exist, and are allowed to persist, is an unrefutable indicator that our current social welfare system is not working.

An editorial in the Milwaukee Journal states, ". . . in this free and wealthy nation, it's intolerable that people should have to sleep on heating grates in mid-winter, or settle for one meal a day at a church feeding program or skip eating at the end of the month when food stamps are gone and many community food pantries are bare. . . . The unemployed, uneducated, unhealthy of this country shouldn't be denied basic food and shelter. They shouldn't have to supplement inadequate diets by digging in dumpsters."

The editorial adds: "Maybe one problem is semantic. If the panel is looking for starvation, that will be hard to find. What the panel should be looking for is more subtle evidence of malnutrition. As Howard Spivak, a pediatrician at Boston City Hospital noted, 'Malnutrition in this country doesn't present itself as it does in Third World babies. These kids don't have big bellies. These kids are not poster children. But the impact of malnutrition has an impact on their growth and development.'

"To persist in denying the hunger problem is to ask for major health problems which are much costlier to solve than to prevent," the Journal editorial concludes. "To fail to address the homeless problem is also to ask for costly health and safety problems. The United States must do more for the poor at home if it is to show that it knows how to responsibly use its wealth."

It is easy to write and talk about the hungry and homeless in this nation but much more difficult to eliminate the situation. Certainly there have been instances where requests have been made for help and those requests were rejected because the applicant failed to comply with laws, rules or regulations. Inflexibility of programs often subverts their intent.

What must also be recognized is that there are people among this nation's millions who won't ask for help, who are mentally unable to seek help, who don't think they need help, who don't know there is help, and even those who are incapable of being given help. No program, no combination of programs, can reach everyone in all circumstances under all conditions at all times. To expect perfection is to be totally unrealistic.

While there may be responsible program changes which can be made to help alleviate anguish and suffering which is not being addressed now, we believe our nation has been and continues to be a compassionate and caring one. And we believe there are likely more people receiving public assistance who don't deserve it than there are deserving people who are unable to get help.

What we are saying is that as long as human beings are free to be human beings, with all their personality quirks and diversity of mental and physical conditions, no program can meet all needs of all people. That is no excuse for not trying, of course, nor is it meant to be. But we must realize that there is no way to totally eliminate occasional poverty and its results. And no amount of studies, commissions, documentaries, editorials, benevolent organizations or critics can solve a problem which has no solution.

You Tell 'Em, Judge!

Our editorial hat is off to Judge Kosanda of Grand Forks county court. We commend him for his attitude and forthrightness as reported in a recent article by Mike Burbach in the Grand Forks Herald.

Kosanda had just had his second session with four people who were causing disruptions at the entrance to the Grand Forks air force base. The three men and one woman were charged with blocking traffic by holding hands across a base access road Monday evening. Earlier that same day they had been in Judge Kosanda's court, charged with criminal tespass on Sunday by stringing a banner protesting the arms race across the main gate at the base.

At the Monday hearing the judge had ordered the four to pay $50 in court costs, but deferred imposition of the sentence for one year. A relatively harmless offense likely did not require a stiffer sentence. But the judge was justifiably miffed when the four apparently headed right back for the base on their release and defied the law again. On Tuesday he sentenced each to 45 days in jail with 35 days suspended.

"The court is curious," the judge is quoted as saying at the Tuesday session. "Do you like it up there in our jail?" When each defendant said no, the judge noted, "The jailer tells me you seem to be having a ball up there." One defenant replied, "Well, we try to be friendly and get along with people."

Judge Kosanda was critical of the group for allowing one of the member's children to bounce a ball against a wall in the courthouse. The floor was dirty and the wall was getting dirtier with each bounce. The judge noted that painting the walls cost money.

"In all candor," he is quoted as telling the group, "I don't have anything against any of you personally, but I think you should show some respect for other people's property along with your other high ideals. . . . I'm going to make you a promise. If you come in here again, you're going to get a long sentence."

The judge is right on track in his actions. He steadfastly refused to let the group members use the court as a soapbox for their protest and he made it clear that one act can be tolerated, a second defiance of law is not permissible and further acts of defiance will meet with stiffer penalty. He has been more than fair and the group is fore-warned about any further nonsense.

Hung Up On Digitals

Kay Rosengren, writing "Kay's Kolumn" in the Kittson County Enterprise at Hallock, had the following humorous comments on another step into the modern world of regimentation and precision:

Once up a time, time for me was "about 6:30" or "around noon."

No more.

We, proud children of the new technology that we are, are digitalized.

We replaced our old and raucous wind-up alarm clock with a shiny and up-to-date digital clock radio. When I roll over to turn it off, its numbers. . . large and lighted. . . tell me it is 6:26 a.m., not "about 6:30."

I leave the house at precisely 7:40 a.m. each workday morning, thanks to those wonderful little stick-up digital clocks which are all over our house.

Back in the days when I was dependent on a conventional clock, I used to leave for my job "about 7:40"; sometimes it was 7:34 and sometimes it was 7:44 and most times my riders were about crazy.

The reason, incidentally, that we own so many of those cute little digitals is because I am by nature a wary consumer. The first two I bought each came with a one year warranty; they were so inexpensive that I was sure that they were designed to stop dead on the 366th day after purchase. So I bought replacements on their first anniversary. I just knew their numbers were up.

It is now a year and one half later, and the originals and their successors are all merrily displaying away with nary a second lost.

It's enough to destroy a body's belief in planned obsolescence.

That's the good news. The bad news is that twice a year those little marvels have to be reset. (After the first time I set them, I seriously considered ignoring the semi-annual time change altogether with the rationale that if God had wanted us to have Daylight Saving Time, the Bible would have told us so).

But there is a better way? I stop just about any passing child over the age of 10 and say, "This is a stick-up."

Before I can say, "Dig that crazy digital!", the child, as if by magic, has the clocks set. . . and not with just the correct time, but with all of those other functions boasted about on the packaging.

How does it go? "And a child shall lead them."

Borrowed Nonsense:

The mother was explaining Thanksgiving to her four-year-old daughter, "And what did the pilgrims have for dinner?" she asked. "I don't know," the youngster replied. "What goes 'gobble gobble'?" the mother hinted. The child's eyes lit up. "Pac Man!" she exclaimed.

PUNK was the dress code of the day on Thursday at Thief River Falls AVTI, and these four students were among those who played it to the hilt. Black and white printing, unfortunately, cannot really do justice to the color combinations worn by the group, which included multicolored pastel hair. Other dress codes observed included: hat day on Monday, gross and grub day on Tuesday, western day on Wednesday, and jersey day on Friday.

Northmen Lose 15-5 Contest To UMC On Wed.

University of Minnesota-Crookston shattered a 4-4 first period tie with seven unanswered second period goals Wednesday en route to a 15-5 Minnesota Community College Conference hockey win over Northland in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

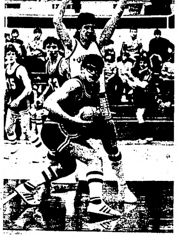
It was the second one-sided UMC win in the 1983-84 season series that began with an unexpected 5-4 Northland victory back on Dec. 7. The two northwestern Minnesota rivals will close out the four-game series Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at Crookston.

Northland, beaten by UMC 13-6 the previous Wednesday, appeared ready to spring another upset when Bob Martin opened the scoring at 1:13 of the first period, and Jim Dillon pumped in three goals for a first period hat trick.

But that 4-4 tie evaporated in the second period when the Northmen put just one shot on goal while UMC peppered the Northland net. The Northmen collected seven penalties for 24 minutes worth of infractions in the second period, and UMC scored twice in a seven-second span during a five-minute Northland major penalty.

Sophomore wing Tom Folske led the UMC attack with a three-goal hat trick.

UMC goalie Wayde Stallmo had to make just 19 saves while Northland netminder Jay Boomgaarden kicked out 45 shots.



THERE WAS no place to go for Thief River Falls' Jeff Hamerlinck when 6-7 East Grand Forks center Warren Menge stretched out his arms during Friday's high school basketball game played here. Jeff Langan (15) and Randy Erickson (53) of the Prowlers looked on as Hamerlinck grabbed the rebound and looked for the outlet pass. The Green Wave won the game 55-48.

Plummer Defeats Oslo At The Free Throw Line

Free throw shooting hasn't been a Plummer strong point this winter, admitted head coach Jim Baron, but Friday the Cardinals made them down the stretch in a 58-50 Polar Conference high school basketball win at Oslo.

"We worked on free throws a lot during the work," explained Baron, and although the Cardinals missed 10 gift tosses in the first half, they came back with a 13-for-18 showing at the line in the fourth quarter to snap a brief two-game losing streak and improve their season record to 7-4. Four different players were involved in the free throw success down the stretch.

"That's the first time our free throws have come through for us this year," acknowledged Baron.

Plummer owned quarter leads of 15-14, 26-24 and 41-37.

Tim Gagner scored a game-high 23 points for the winners, with Duane Franklund and Eric Eskeli adding 12 each. Ken Zola led Oslo with 13 points.

Plummer went 18-for-42 from the field (43 per cent) and finished 22-for-37 at the free throw line (59 per cent). Oslo was 24-for-65 from the field (37 per cent) and was just 2-for-8 from the line (25 per cent). The rebounds were even at 32-apiece. Plummer topped the turnover figures 24-21.

"We played a pretty fair game all around," noted Baron.

Plummer will be at Gonvick-Trail Friday.

Roseau ....... 53

Marshall County Central won its fourth straight game Friday, collecting a key 66-53 North Border Conference win over Roseau in Newfolden.

Match-up of conference title contenders was close until Marshall County Central pulled away midway through the fourth quarter. The Nordics had quarter leads of 14-8, 28-25 and 43-40.

"We just wore them out," explained Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "Our bench played very well."

Chad Swan of the Nordics and Gregg Welin of the Rams had a scoring duel that saw them both hit 28 points. Swan got 18 of his in the second half and was joined in double figures by teammates Kevin Boe with 16 and Ken Krohn with 10, along with the Rams' Lonnie Kompellen with 13.

"We were real pleased with the win," said Ueland. "It was a big win for us."

Shooting figures were similar. Marshall County Central was 24-for-55 from the field (44 per cent) and Roseau was 23-for-49 (47 per cent). But the Nordics were 18-for-27 at the free throw line (67 per cent) where the Rams were 7-for-15 (47 per cent). Marshall County Central had a 30-27 rebound edge and Roseau topped the turnover charts 21-12.

Marshall County Central, 7-3, will visit Strandquist Tuesday and will have a Saturday afternoon North Border showdown with Lake of the Woods at Baudette.

Badger ....... 53

Grygla overcame a poor free throw shooting performance to beat host Badger 59-53 Friday.

Tony McLean and Jeff Klein scored 19 and 18 points, respectively, for the winners, who missed 21 of 32 free throw opportunities that would have put the game away. The Eagles missed seven straight free throws down the stretch as the Rockets narrowed the gap.

Grygla had quarter leads of 17-10, 30-20 and 41-27 as the Eagles won their second game of the week and improved their record to 4-6.

"We were happy with the win," mentioned Grygla coach Vern Johnson. "We did some things pretty well — we forced them into turnovers and we beat them up the floor. We just couldn't buy a free throw."

Grygla shot 42 per cent from the field (24-for-57) and just 34 per cent at the free throw line (11-for-32). Badger shot 36 per cent from the field (20-for-56) and 46 per cent at the line (11-for-24). Badger had a 42-33 rebound edge.

Just one start this week will find the Eagles waiting until Saturday to visit Gonvick-Trail.

Middle River returns to North Border Conference play Tuesday by hosting Roseau, a team the underdog Skippers surprised 44-37 at Roseau in the 1983-84 season opener.

Kevin McKeever poured in 28 points — 17 in the first quarter and 25 in the first half — last Tuesday as Middle River overwhelmed Badger 80-37.

"We really out-hustled them," reported Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "We played pretty impressively, especially in the first half."

Middle River owned quarter leads of 23-8, 43-22 and 63-32.

Brian Gillund joined McKeever in double figures with 14 points, a total matched by Badger's Kent Warne, as the Skippers improved their record to 6-4.

Middle River shot 45 per cent from the field (29-for-64) and was a busy 22-for-27 at the free throw line. Badger shot 33 per cent from the field (18-for-55) and only 1-for-3 at the line.

MSHSL Pays Out Money To St. Performers

An analysis of the supplemental allowances distributed to 177 high schools that participated in the 1983 fall season of state tournaments indicates an expenditure of $107,218.08 for the eight sport state meets, reports the Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL).

Total is up $4,706.50 from the 1982 fall season state tournament supplemental allowances total when one less school — 176 — participated in fall season state events.

Total amount represents the travel, meal and lodging allowances paid to schools that have students representing their schools in state tournaments. The totals include allowances for band and cheerleaders as well.

Football allowances totaled $40,385.70. Volleyball was the next highest at $27,579.08. Other allowance totals included: cross country — $15,969.00; girls tennis — $9,920.10; girls swimming and diving — $8,919.70; boys soccer — $2,840.00; girls soccer — $2,680.00; and boys gymnastics — $924.50.

MSHSL Will Sponsor Fine Arts Meeting

Four fine arts advisory committees of the Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) (speech - theatre - debate - music) will meet in the league office in Anoka on Wednesday, February 22, 1984, beginning at 1 p.m.

Recommendations of the committees will be forwarded to the 1983-84 MSHSL fine arts council for their review at a Wednesday, March 28, 1984 meeting at the league office.

TIP Arrests

Arrests made by Minnesota conservation officers with information supplied through the Turn In Poachers program (TIP) totalled 278 during 1983, according to the Department of Natural Resources and TIP Inc. president Robert Larson, Wayzata.

TIP Inc. is a private non-profit citizens group that raises funds to pay rewards offered under the program to persons who provide information to the DNR that leads to an arrest.

Rewards amounting to $24,175 were paid out during the year to 115 persons. Officials said many people refuse the offer of a reward when providing information on violators.

A special toll-free number has been established for those reporting violations under the TIP program: 1-800-652-9093.

Officials noted that nearly twice as many telephone "tips" were received in 1982 than in 1983 but the number of arrests made last year dropped very little.

During December, conservation officers made 55 arrests and rewards were paid to 36 persons amounting to $8,200 for the month.

Of the total number of arrests made under the TIP program during 1983, deer violations accounted for 111 and fishing violations numbered 92.

By region, northeastern Minnesota led all other areas in arrests with 109.

Tax-Forfeited Land

Lake county recently became the first northern Minnesota county to adopt a comprehensive management plan for its tax-forfeited lands, the Department of Natural Resources reports. The plan was developed with special assistance provided through the DNR's county assistance program.

On Dec. 12, the county board formally approved the plan, which was seven months in preparation, and passed a resolution thanking DNR forester Brian McCann who it said "nearly singlehandedly brought together the scattered resources to form the plan which has become fact."

McCann said the Lake county plan was a pilot project and will hopefully encourage other counties with substantial forest holdings to follow suit.

He said Pine county has already begun planning for its tax-forfeited lands and other counties have also expressed some interest.

Lake county plan involved approximately 150,000 acres of tax-forfeited land — "a potentially valuable resource that if properly managed should produce revenue and other local public benefits, including recreational opportunities," said McCann.

Lake county project was also the first use of DNR forestry's computerized "Phase Two" inventory information system currently being developed.

Among the nearly 40 management recommendations contained in the plan are the following:

1—Manage forest resources under the principles of multiple-use and sustained-yield;

2—Retain ownership of memorial forest lands, commercial forest lands with timber production potential, prime recreation, fish and wildlife lands, access to lakes and rivers, mineral lands with commercial potential, and lands on which forest development funds have been spent;

3—Dispose by sale or exchange county lands within state parks or the BWCA, forest land with low timber production potential, urban lands zoned for commercial, industrial or residential use, lands developed for agriculture, and lands providing access to blocks of predominantly state or federal lands;

4—Provide for a mixture of small, informal timber sales and timber auctions to meet the needs of both small and larger timber producers;

5—Utilize DNR recommended timber scaling and timber pricing guidelines in the sale of timber from county lands;

6—Designate areas where fuelwood harvesting is to be encouraged;

7—Focus harvesting on high risk and over mature timber stands;

8—Increase reforestation to regenerate recently harvested areas and to restock non-stocked or otherwise unproductive areas;

9—Fund the construction and maintenance of forest roads;

10—Encourage forest management practices that will also benefit wildlife.

"New products, new technology and expanding market opportunities all point to a continued important role for Lake county as a key timber producer," the report concludes.

New Campsites

New primitive campsites were constructed by the Department of Natural Resources during 1983 on two northeastern Minnesota rivers, it was announced recently.

Two of the campsites were established on the Big Fork river in Itasca county. One of the sites is approximately 3½ miles northeast of the city of Big Fork and the other is 2¼ miles west of the intersection of County Road 14 and Highway 6.

Another new campsite was built on the Little Fork river in St. Louis county south of Highway 1.

Construction of the new sites cost $5,000. There is no charge for their use.

DNR also reported that $15,000 was expended during the year on rehabilitating 70 existing river facilities, located on five rivers. Improvements were made to campsites, portage trails, rest areas and access points on the Mississippi, Cloquet, St. Louis, Big Fork and Little Fork.

Canoe Route maps for these and several other Minnesota rivers can be obtained by writing to DNR Trails and Waterways, Box 52, Centennial Office Building, St. Paul, MN 55155.

Winter Trout Fishing

Department of Natural Resources has reminded trout anglers that the winter season for stream trout and lake trout in lakes outside, or partly outside of the Boundary Waters Canoe Area Wilderness in northeastern Minnesota opened Jan. 14.

For lakes that lie entirely within the BWCAW the season opened Dec. 31.

Season for fishing of both stream trout and lake trout will close March 15 except those lakes entirely within the BWCAW which close March 31.

Department lists the following lakes as lying partly outside of the BWCAW: Snowbank, Seagull, Magnetic, Clearwater and Ram.

DNR fisheries chief Richard Hassinger reminded anglers that there is no season for winter stream trout fishing in lakes located in the counties of Aitkin, Becker, Beltrami, Cass, Crow Wing and Hubbard.

He also noted that although Minnesota ice fishermen may use two lines on most state waters, they are restricted to only one line when angling in designated trout lakes.

Lakes where the restriction applies have been reclaimed with fish toxicants and restocked with stream trout. The lakes are also posted at public access sites.

Hassinger advised anglers to consult the regulations for other details, including limits.

CHILDREN CAN learn more about wildlife through Project WILD, a set of wildlife ecology lesson plans offered partly through the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources and the nongame wildlife program. Teacher In-Service workshops will be held to make Project WILD materials available to the teachers. (DNR photo by Lynn Rogers).

Schools Offered Wildlife Program

There is something new and wild in store for Minnesota's schools — Project WILD.

Project WILD is an interdisciplinary series of lesson plans about wildlife ecology and conservation which can be used by Minnesota school teachers from kindergarten through senior high school.

Project WILD is a cooperative effort of the Minnesota Environmental Education Board, the nongame wildlife program in the Department of Natural Resources and the Department of Education.

Funding of $7,000 to acquire these curriculum materials was derived from donations to the nongame wildlife checkoff on Minnesota's income tax and property tax returns. These curriculum materials are available in two parts — an elementary one for grades K-6 and a secondary one for grades 7-12.

Project WILD was originally developed by the Western Association of Fish and Wildlife Agencies and the Western Regional Environmental Education Council.

Goal of Project WILD is to assist people in developing awareness, knowledge, skills and commitment to conserving wildlife and the environment upon which all life depends.

School teachers and environmental educators will find Project WILD lesson plans particularly easy to use because each lesson is cross referenced by grade level and subject. There are, for example, lessons of value to teachers in art, drama, home economics, language arts, mathematics, physical education, science and social studies.

Only way that teachers, park naturalists and others may obtain Project WILD curriculum materials is to attend a one-day in-service training workshop. Workshops will be jointly sponsored by the Minnesota Environemental Education Board, the nongame wildlife program, the Department of Education and area conservation organizations.

Anyone wishing to be kept informed of when and where upcoming workshops will be held will be placed on a Project WILD mailing list. They should contact Ray Quinn, Director, Minnesota Environmental Education Board, Box 5, Centennial Bldg., 658 Cedar Street, St. Paul, MN 55155 to be placed on the mailing list.

Workshops will be held in both the spring and fall of 1984.

Swimmers Top Fosston 45-38

Thief River Falls won seven of 11 events Saturday en route to a 45-38 dual meet high school swimming victory at Fosston.

Seniors Dave Ose and Craig Goodrich both won two individual events and had a hand in a winning relay effort for the Prowlers, who improved their dual meet season record to 4-2 for the year.

Ose won the 200 freestyle and 100 backstroke, while Goodrich won the 50 freestyle and 100 butterfly. They both swam legs on the winning 200 medley relay, too, along with Jeff Rosetta and Roger Rivera.

Todd Wing (diving) and Eric Ose (100 freestyle) were also individual winners for the Prowlers, who will return to Fosston Saturday for an invitational meet.

Thief River Falls was a 54-18 winning in the junior varsity portion of Saturday's meet.

DNR hotline

1. If I leave my dock out over the winter and somebody runs into it on a snowmobile, am I liable?

There is no violation in Department of Natural Resources laws if you leave your dock out. However, you are responsible for liable proceedings should somebody be hurt or property damaged. Byron Dyrland, Regional Enforcement Supervisor.

2. I recently heard that a skier really does not have to buy a cross country ski license this year and furthermore the money taken in from these licenses goes to general revenue and not to ski trail maintenance. Is this true?

First, skiers that are skiing on public non-federal cross country ski trails are required to wear a cross country ski license. However, tickets will not be issued to those not having the license this season. The point of this legislation is to determine if skiers are willing to pay for their trail systems in the same manner as snowmobilers have been doing for years. Incidentally, ski trails have been maintained in the past using money from snowmobile gas taxes.

Second, the license money goes into a special account in the general fund to be appropriated by the legislature only for ski trail purposes. These purposes include development and maintenance of state-controlled and grant-in-aid ski trails and administration of the ski program. So, the intent of the law is that the money be used for ski trails. Butch Belcher, Regional Trails & Waterways Supervisor.

Public Invited To Attend DNR Fishing Series

LHS Girls Have Tough Schedule

Lincoln high school girls basketball team just completed the toughest portion of its 1983-84 schedule when the Prowlers played Bemidji, Crookston and East Grand Forks in a demanding 10-day span.

Thief River Falls surprised most observers by beginning the year with a 7-2 record. Now, after losing to the Lumberjills 66-45, Pirates 40-36 and Green Wave 61-43, the Prowlers are 7-5.

But despite those recent losses, Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer has been more than happy with the Prowlers' showing against a Bemidji team that is the North Sub-Region 8AA favorite and against the strong Crookston and East Grand Forks teams that are the District 31A favorites after leaving the Class AA ranks following the 1982-83 school year.

"We wanted to be able to play well against those three teams, and we accomplished that," explained Schafer. "We've been able to build on every game. I think we've gotten better and better with each game."

Thief River Falls' surprisingly strong showings on the basketball court this winter is linked to the strong individual play of junior forward Michelle Olson and sophomore center Michelle Puetz. Olson is recognized as one of the top ball players in the area, a player capable of scoring in the 20-point range every game. But at the start of the year the Prowlers had little to complement Olson. Puetz, though, has quickly developed as an outstanding player inside after joining the team late following the completion of the fall swimming schedule that goes past Thanksgiving.

Schafer said Puetz was "phenomenal" in Thursday's 61-43 loss at East Grand Forks. "I think she's established herself as one of the better inside players around here," he said.

Thief River Falls hosts Greenbush tonight (Monday) and entertains Fertile-Beltrami on Tues., Jan. 31, before jumping right back into the thick of another stretch of tough games to close out the regular season schedule as the Prowlers have rematches with Bemidji, Crookston and East Grand Forks, along with first-time encounters with Detroit Lakes and Fergus Falls.

"We've been in these ball games lately," offered Schafer. "Now we have to find out if we can beat those kind of teams."

Post-season play may present an interesting tournament for the Prowlers, who are grouped with Bemidji, Fergus Falls, Detroit Lakes, Park Rapids and Moorhead in North Sub-Region 8AA. There doesn't appear to be a dominant team among them, although Bemidji has a definite edge at this point. Traditional power Moorhead is having a horrible season, and the Park Rapids team is caught in the midst of a teacher's strike there.

Top two seeded teams, by a vote of the coaches, will receive first-round tournament byes, with No. 2 vs. No. 6 and No. 4 vs. No. 5 at the site of the higher-seeded teams on Mon., Feb. 27. Semifinals will be played at the sites of the No. 1 and 2-seeded teams Thurs., March 1, and the North Sub-Region 8AA title game will be played Sat., March 3, at the site of the highest-seeded team.

Miscellaneous

+Annual National Youth Hockey Week will be observed Feb. 4-12 across the United States, with Billy and Roger Christian of Warroad named as the first-ever honorary co-chairmen of the event. Several local activities are planned by the Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association (TRF-AHA) as recognition is given to the coaches, players, officials and administrators of the sport at the various age levels.

+Biggest game to date for the Northland community college basketball team will be played Wednesday when the Northmen travel to Fergus Falls for an 8 p.m. Northwest Division confrontation. The Northmen and Spartans have ruled the Northwest Division in recent years, leaving Brainerd and the University of Minnesota-Crookston on the sidelines. Northland hosts Rainy River Friday, then closes the 1983-84 regular season schedule with five straight Northwest Division games — home and home assignments with Brainerd and UMC, plus a home court rematch with Fergus Falls. Top two regular season finishers in each of the four Minnesota Community College Conference divisions — Northwest, Northeast, Central and Southern — earn berths in the 1984 MCCC state tournament Feb. 23-25 at Normandale community college in Bloomington. Northland women play an identical schedule the rest of the way.

Jacks Beat Prowlers 6-2 . . .

Bemidji Snaps TRF Win Streak

In winning four straight games, said Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand after a 2-1 Tuesday night win over Warroad, the Prowlers were consistently third period winners; deciding close games by controlling play over the final 15 minutes.

Saturday, however, it was Bemidji that was a definite third period winner, and subsequently the Lumberjacks snapped the Prowlers' winning streak with a 6-2 Section 8 high school hockey win at the sports arena.

Ahead 2-1 and 3-2 after the first and second periods, Bemidji broke open the hotly-contested game with three third period goals, running the Lumberjacks' record to 9-3 and dropping the Prowlers to .500 at 6-6.

"In spite of the score, it certainly was a good high school hockey game," said Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "The 6-2 score, I don't think, is necessarily indicative of the kind of game it was.

It was a costly loss for the Prowlers, too, since senior wing Rick Spong was sidelined with a separated shoulder in the third period. He joins another senior wing — Tim Bottem — on the sidelines. Bottem suffered a broken collarbone a week earlier in a 7-4 win at Moorhead, leaving the Prowlers without two of their top wings. Bottem may return to the line-up later this winter, but Spong is expected to be out for the year.

In the early portions of the game is was a case of Bemidji out-rebounding Thief River Falls. That basketball-like statement stems from the fact that the Lumberjacks scored their first four goals on rebounds before displaying their front line quickness for two game-breaking breakaways at the end.

Thief River Falls goalie Steve Solheim made a great save on Scott Johnson, kicking out his point-blank shot after a Thief River Falls defenseman had fallen in front of the net, but Mike Johnson, the trailer on the play, had a wide open net on the rebound at 3:48.

A power play goal by the Prowlers tied it 1-1 at 6:49 when Steve Wiskow finally scored as they kept jamming away at the loose puck in front of Bemidji netminder Steve Peters.

Bemidji took a 2-1 lead into the first intermission, though, when John Port scored on a rebound at 10:33, just moments after Bemidji had killed off back-to-back penalties that had the Lumberjacks skating two men short for 64 seconds.

It became 3-1 when John Yetter scored on a long rebound into an open net at 9:35 of the second period.

Thief River Falls' second power play goal of the night came on a 4-on-3 situation at 14:21 when Scott Novak rifled a low slap shot from the point through a screen in front of Peters, who was outstanding for much of the night.

Yet another rebound goal, this one by Don Sauer who was left uncovered in front of Solheim on a power play, gave Bemidji a 4-2 lead just 1:43 into the third period.

Then came the breakaways to seal it. A burst of speed by Sauer in a race for the puck against a Thief River Falls forward Joe Blankenfeld put him in alone at 7:13 and the Lumberjacks' Pat Braaten was in free on a 4-on-4 situation at 10:37.

"They have a mighty fine hockey club," said Grand of Bemidji, "but we're very, very disappointed about the penalties we took in the third period, particularly taking a penalty when we're on the power play. That showed signs of frustration. And we're disappointed in the play of our defensemen, too," he added.

Meanwhile, Bryan Grand of Bemidji was naturally delighted with the results. "It was a good game for us for sure," he said. "We maybe had a few penalties early that hurt us, but I thought we played well."

He was particularly impressed with the play of Peters, one of seven sophomores on the Bemidji roster that includes just four seniors. "At times early in the game in the first two periods he made the big saves that kept us in there," he pointed out.

Green Wave Able To Hold Off Upset-Minded Prowlers 55-48

Bidding for a second straight Friday night upset win over an area rival, the Lincoln high school basketball team fell short of that accomplishment — but not for want of effort as the game Prowlers challenged highly-regarded East Grand Forks before surrendering a 55-48 decision to the visiting Green Wave.

A week earlier Thief River Falls surprised Crookston 45-44 in overtime. The Prowlers were even bigger underdogs this time around, but they battled the District 31A power and former Region 8AA rival Green Wave for three full quarters before losing ground over the final eight minutes.

"We made it interesting," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt. "Overall we played a pretty good basketball game — we had to against a team like East Grand Forks."

Results left the teams with opposite records — Thief River Falls 3-8 and East Grand Forks 8-3.

"That 3-8 record doesn't in any way reflect the quality of these kids," said Hunt. "It doesn't show how hard they work. They never quit. They hustle; they play hard."

East Grand Forks coach Ray Stinar was complimentary of the Prowlers, too. "They really hustled," he said. "We didn't play well, but give them some credit. They played well. They played harder than we did."

Thief River Falls owned a 14-13 first quarter lead and trailed just 27-25 at halftime. A string of eight straight East Grand Forks points through the middle of the second quarter had pushed the Green Wave ahead 27-18 with 2:36 left, but Thief River Falls ran off the last seven points of the half, including a short turnaround jumper by Jeff Hamerlinck with 37 seconds to play, in making it a two-point game at intermission.

Hamerlinck banged in a short jumper from the lane area for a 29-29 tie 2½ minutes into the third quarter, but that's the last the Prowlers saw of the Green Wave as the visitors collected 10 of the last 14 points of the quarter to open up a 39-33 spread. It was just 37-33 when Jeff Langan hit one from the side for the Prowlers with 23 seconds showing on the clock, but East Grand Forks' Lloyd Schneider scored from the corner at the buzzer for the six-point gap.

Thief River Falls was never closer than a half-dozen points over the final eight minutes. The Prowlers fell behind by as much as 12 when guard Rod Mosher completed an East Grand Forks fast break to make it 53-41 with 1:14 remaining. A long jumper by John Brandt and a basket off an in-bounds play by Randy Erickson brought the Prowlers back within 53-45, but with only 55 seconds to play.

"We knew it would take a near-perfect game offensively to beat them — a low number of turnovers and a high shooting percentage," explained Hunt, "but our passes aren't very crisp. We don't do a real good job attacking people. We didn't function very well against their 1-3 (zone defense) in the second half; we were a little too tentative."

Defensively, though, the Prowlers excelled. The East Grand Forks vaunted inside game featuring 6-6 David Vonesh and 6-7 Warren Menge was held in check. Vonesh wound up with a game-high 16 points, but the sophomore had to come outside to get some of them, and Menge, a junior, mustered just nine points. Mosher, the lightning-quick 5-6 senior, had 11. Brandt led the Prowlers with 14 points, with Langan getting 11.

"I have to compliment the kids on their defense inside," praised Hunt. Erickson, a 6-3 senior, came up with four blocked shots as he battled Vonesh and Menger underneath.

Thief River Falls even ended up with a 25-22 edge in rebounds.

"We didn't clear the boards like we should have," said Stinar, "and we didn't take advantage of their turnovers — we'd get it and turn it right back over to them. We're happy to win, but I think we're capable of playing better."

Thief River Falls did not shoot as well as the Prowlers needed to, either, according to Hunt, with a 20-for-51 showing from the field (39 per cent). They were 8-for-14 at the free throw line (57 per cent). East Grand Forks didn't get as many shots, but they made the ones they got, going 21-for-40 (53 per cent). The Green Wave was also a productive 13-for-25 at the free throw line (52 per cent), including a 10-for-18 fourth quarter. The Prowlers topped the turnover charts 18-15.

Warren will be in the Lincoln gym Tuesday.

EGF Girls Beat Prowlers 61-43

East Grand Forks rallied from a 25-24 halftime deficit to defeat upset-minded Thief River Falls 61-43 in a Thursday night girls high school basketball game in the Green Wave gymnasium.

After falling behind 8-0 at the start, Thief River Falls battled back to a 12-12 draw at the end of the first quarter. The Prowlers enjoyed a four-point lead in the final moments of the first half before surrendering a three-point play on center Michelle Puetz' third foul with just three seconds left in the half.

That proved to be a big play as the Prowlers altered their second half defense in an effort to keep Puetz from getting further into foul trouble, and subsequently the Prowlers were out-scored 37-18 after intermission. They trailed 37-31 at the close of the third quarter. It still wasn't out of sight at 51-41 with 1:40 left in the game, but East Grand Forks ratted off a 10-2 scoring burst the rest of the way to pad the lead.

"The final score wasn't indicative of the play," expressed Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer. "It was a real good ball game. I was pleased. I thought we played well."

Junior forward Michelle Olson scored 19 points and Puetz, a sophomore, had 17, plus 12 rebounds, for the Prowlers. Amy Roche scored 20 for East Grand Forks, getting half of those in the final quarter. Debbie Hawthorne and Micki Lindquist each had 11.

East Grand Forks shot an impressive 57 per cent from the field for the game (27-for-47). Thief River Falls shot 33 per cent (15-for-46). The Green Wave went 7-for-12 at the free throw line (58 per cent), with the Prowlers going 13-for-22 (59 per cent). East Grand Forks had a slight 31-30 rebound edge and topped the turnover figures 15-13.

Thief River Falls, 7-5, will host Greenbush tonight (Monday) in the Prowlers' only start this week.

In Thursday's preliminary games, Thief River Falls hiked its junior varsity record to 7-3 with a 37-23 win, but Thief River Falls' freshman team record fell to 0-4 with a 46-31 loss despite a 10-point effort from Laura Belto.

Northmen Split Games With Mesabi, Vermilion

A 94-87 win over Mesabi Friday night was followed by a disappointing 58-52 loss to Vermilion Saturday afternoon as the Northland community college basketball team wound up with a Northwest Division-counting weekend split on the road against Minnesota Community College Conference Northeast Division foes.

It was the first MCCC competition of the 1983-84 season for the Northmen, who are 9-4 overall. They face their first Northwest Division rival Wednesday in an 8 p.m. game at Fergus Falls. Friday Northland hosts Rainy River of the Northeast Division.

Early foul trouble put a trio of normally high-scoring Northmen on the bench, but sophomore Shorty Johnson and freshman reserve Pat Burke picked up the slack in leading Northland to a 94-87 Friday night win over Mesabi at Virginia.

Mesabi, connecting on 13 of 20 first half free throw opportunities, owned leads of up to eight points for much of the first 20 minutes as Kyle Ramsey, Jon Neumann and Rodney Scales all collected three quick personal fouls for the Northmen.

But Northland battled back, taking a 45-43 halftime lead and holding onto that edge throughout the second half.

"It was a good comeback considering the situation," noted Northland coach Chet Engelman, who had high praise for Johnson, who scored 23 points and pulled down 16 rebounds, and Burke, who had his best output of the season with 19 points. "They did a great job," he said. "Burke really kept us in there."

Ramsey did overcome the fouls to score 22 points and Neumann got 11. Deane Nelson scored 23 for Mesabi.

Northland shot 56 per cent from the field for the game (56) per cent and 82 per cent from the free throw line (14-17), including an 11-for-12 second half. Mesabi shot 46 per cent from the field (37-for-81) and 62 per cent at the line (13-for-21), including an 0-for-1 second half after that productive first half at the line. The Northmen out-rebounded the Norsemen 53-29, but also topped the turnover charts 30-12.

Northland appeared to be headed for a weekend sweep with a 40-25 lead early in the second half Saturday afternoon against Vermilion in Ely, but the Ironmen stunned the Northmen by pulling out a come-from-behind 58-52 win.

"That was the most disappointing game in my life," said Northland coach Chet Engelman. "Never in my life have I had a team with a 15-point lead in the second half and blow it."

An ice-cold 20 per cent second half shooting figure did the Northmen in as they went just 7-for-35 over the final 20 minutes. "We had good shots, but the ball just wouldn't go in," noted Engelman.

Northland led 36-25 at halftime. After blowing that 40-25 cushion, Northland did manage to hang on to a 52-50 lead when freshman guard Dan Flanagan scored with 5:20 remaining.

But the Northmen never put another point on the board in watching a four-game win streak come to an end. They managed to score just 16 points in the second half.

Shorty Johnson and Kyle Ramsey were the leading Northland scorers with 16 and 15 points, respectively. John Podominik had 13 for the winners.

Northland shot just 34 per cent for the game (24-for-71) and went 4-for-6 at the free throw line. Vermilion also shot 34 per cent (27-for77) and was 4-for-5 at the line. Northland had a 55-44 rebound edge, but once again topped the turnover figures 24-13, giving them 54 turnovers in the two games.

"Turnovers just killed us this weekend," confirmed Engelman.

String Of Close Losses Continues For Huskies

First-year Goodridge high school basketball head coach Dan Brinkman admitted he is struggling with some self-doubt after watching his team suffer through a string of three straight agonizingly close losses over an eight-day span.

First there was a 40-38 overtime loss to Oslo on Friday The Thirteenth. Then the bad luck continued over the weekend as Goodridge lost a last-second 50-49 decision to Red Lake Falls on Friday and dropped a 58-54 contest to Oklee on Saturday.

Those three losses by a combined total of just seven points dropped the Huskies, who figured to fare well in preseason talk, to 4-7 for the year.

"I never thought this team would be 4-7," admitted Brinkman. "I think the blame has to go to me. I think my inexperience at being a head coach is showing."

Goodridge will try to snap its string of tough-luck losses Tuesday at Erskine. The Huskies will be at East Grand Forks Sacred Heart Friday.

A controversial finish added to the Goodridge frustration Friday in a 50-49 home court loss to Red Lake Falls.

A pair of Scott Groven free throws brought the Huskies a 49-49 tie with 25 seconds remaining. Red Lake Falls worked the ball for the last shot, setting up Dan Kees for a base line drive. As he went to the basket, both referees blew their whistles when contact occurred between Kees and Goodridge defender Tony Wiseth. The official under the basket, closest to the play, explained frustrated Goodridge coach Dan Brinkman, called an offensive charge on the play, but the trailing official overruled him, calling a blocking foul on Wiseth.

That put Kees at the free throw line with four seconds left, and he made one of two shots for the game-winning margin.

"That's two close games we've played our guts out," said Brinkman, "with nothing to show for it. "We can't play any better than that. We shot better than they did; we out-rebounded them; I think we did everything better, but we still lost. I'm at a loss what to do."

Behind 14-10 at the end of the first quarter, Goodridge went ahead 23-20 at halftime, only to fall behind again in the third quarter 35-28.

Randy Ellefson of Red Lake Falls was the game's high scorer with 18 points. Brinkman had high praise for the play of Groven, who scored 16 points, and Jared Sjulestad, who had 13. "They had excellent ball games," he pointed out.

Goodridge shot 47 per cent from the field (18-for-38) and 65 per cent from the free throw line (13-for-20). Red Lake Falls shot 33 per cent from the field (16-for-48) and 53 per cent at the line (18-for-34). The Huskies had a sizeable 42-25 rebound edge, with Groven grabbing 11 and Tim Wayne 10.

Another third quarter dry spell cost Goodridge Saturday in a 58-54 loss at Oklee.

Goodridge, ahead 18-16 at the end of the first quarter, owned a 36-30 halftime lead, but was out-scored 14-7 in the third quarter to fall behind 44-43.

It was another down-to-the-wire job, with Goodridge losing grip on a three-point lead over the final two minutes. Trailing 56-54, Goodridge watched its shot at a tie on a jumper by Tony Wiseth bounce off the rim with five seconds left. In an attempt to get another shot at it on the ensuing jump ball off the rebound, the Huskies left themselves wide open for a game-clinching Oklee lay-up at the end.

"We played excellent basketball in the first half," explained Goodridge coach Dan Brinkman. "We shot 74 per cent and our press was working well. But then we came out in the third quarter and nothing went right for us."

A balanced Oklee attack featured four scorers in double figures, with Loring Mercil and Richard Hendrickson both getting 14 while Tom Olson and Kevin Enerson both had 10. Ross Parnow scored 13 points to lead the Huskies, who also had a balanced attack as Scott Groven scored 12 and Wiseth had 11.

Goodridge shot 42 per cent from the field (21-for-48) and 60 per cent from the free throw line (12-for-20). Oklee shot 48 per cent from the field (21-for-44) and 67 per cent at the line (16-for-24). The Huskies out-rebounded the Bobcats 34-26.

Snowmobile Rally Finale Is Set At Quadna

Quadna Mountain Resort, located at Hill City, has set the dates for a snowmobile "Rally Finale" March 23-25.

Quadna general manager Jay Diebold states "Quadna traditionally has opened the snowmobile season the first weekend in December, we figured why not finish the season at Quadna in March?. . ."

Weekend schedule will include hill climbs on the downhill ski slopes, drag races, speed traps, dual slaloms, family fun and cheap prizes.

"We've had so much fun with the snowmobilers in December, we decided to offer a more casual, less competitive, yet challenging weekend," states Diebold.

This will be the first year for the "Rally Finale" with various experimenting expected. "The imagination just may run wild" states Mark Crowl, Quadna's recreation director and chief snowmobile contact.

Not to limit the weekend to only snowmobilers, there will be events planned for the three-wheeler enthusiast also.

SURROUNDED BY white-shirted East Grand Forks defenders, Thief River Falls guard Ryan Drees tried to bring the ball up-court against the Green Wave press in the second half of Friday's basketball game played in the Lincoln high school gym. Drees was met by Warren Menge (50), Rod Mosher (12), David Weber (20) and Lloyd Schneider (42) of the Green Wave, with John Brandt of the Prowlers (33) looking for a pass. East Grand Forks won it 55-48.

Middle River Girls Beat Marshall County Central

Unbeaten Middle River held rival Marshall County Central scoreless in the first quarter Thursday as the host Skippers defeated the Nordics 56-36 in North Border Conference girls high school basketball action.

Middle River didn't get off to a tremendously fast start, either, but while the Nordics went 0-for-9 from the field, the Skippers were at least 2-for-6, and they added four free throws in posting an 8-0 first quarter lead. It was a low-scoring 19-8 at halftime and 29-15 through three quarters before the points finally began to appear on the scoreboard in the final eight minutes when the Skippers out-scored the Nordics 27-21.

It was win No. 12 this winter for the Skippers, with the Nordics dropping to 6-5.

But Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde said he wasn't displeased with the Nordics' play. "Really, I was pleased with the game, except for the final score," he said, "and the final score really doesn't indicate the kind of game it really was. I thought it was a lot closer than what the score might indicate. Defensively I thought we played fairly well, but we got into foul trouble; we sent them to the foul line too much, and they just don't miss free throws."

Middle River had a productive 24-for-37 night at the free throw line (64 per cent), including a 13-for-14 fourth quarter (92 per cent) when the Skippers' Paula Rantanen was a perfect 7-for-7 at the line. Marshall County Central, on the other hand, was 10-for-19 shooting free throws (62 per cent).

Diane Black led a balanced Middle River attack with 16 points, with Jody Christofferson joining Black and Rantanen in double figures with 13 points. Only Marshall County Central double figure scorer was Karen Busch, who came off the bench to score 10 points.

Middle River shot 36 per cent from the field for the game (16-for-45), with Marshall County Central shooting 31 per cent (13-for-43). The Nordics' charts showed Marshall County Central with an 18-14 rebound edge and atop the turnover count 22-20.

"It was a good defensive game by both teams," reported Middle River coach Tom Neibauer. "The defense was a lot better than the offense."

Neibauer took pride in the Skippers' ability to shut out the Nordics in the first quarter. "Any time you can hold a Mjelde-coached team scoreless for over nine minutes, you're doing something right," he mentioned.

Those free throws came in handy, admitted Neibauer, but the Skippers, he said, deserve some of the credit there, too. "We took the ball to the basket. When you do that, you draw the fouls."

Marshall County Central has just one game this week, hosting Hallock Thursday. Middle River visits Grygla Tuesday and drives to Badger Thursday.

A balanced scoring attack, not usually a Plummer trademark, helped spark the Cardinals to a 63-48 Thursday night Polar Conference win at Goodridge.

Jody Pahlen, who joined the 1,000-point club earlier this season, has been supplying the bulk of the Cardinals' offense to date, but this time around the Plummer attack featured Sheila Jaeger with 17 points, Sheila Sorenson 16 and Pahlen 15.

"It was good to see balanced scoring," acknowledged Plummer coach Rick Kolvisto.

Goodridge coach Patti Johnson was surprised, too, at the Plummer balance. "They had a couple of girls come out of the woodwork and score for them," she said.

Johnson also said the Cardinals' defense created problems for the Huskies' offense. "Their press really bothered us," she mentioned, looking at a 23-16 Goodridge chart-topping figure in that category.

Plummer jumped out to an 8-0 lead the Cardinals never surrendered in posting quarter leads of 14-8, 33-18 and 43-34.

Diana Troska scored a game-high 20 points and Lori Sjulestad had 14 for the Huskies.

Plummer shot 38 per cent from the field (28-for-73) and 54 per cent from the free throw line (7-for-13). Goodridge shot 32 per cent from the field (21-for-65) and 67 per cent at the line (6-for-9). Plummer built a 49-37 rebound edge, according to the Cardinals' figures, with Sorenson and Pahlen grabbing 14 rebounds each.

Goodridge, 2-7, was scheduled to visit Strandquist tonight (Monday). The Huskies will be at Red Lake Falls Thursday. Plummer, 5-5, hosts Oslo Thursday, with the Cardinals looking to snap a four-game home court winless streak this winter.

| Grygla | 41 |

Grygla let a six-point fourth quarter lead slip away Thursday as the host Eagles lost a 46-41 North Border Conference game to Lake of the Woods.

It was close throughout. Grygla led 9-8 at the end of the first quarter. It was a 19-19 tie at halftime, but Grygla nursed a 31-29 lead into the fourth quarter.

"I thought we played well," explained Grygla coach Mike Gast. "We did a good job rebounding against them, and we played good, tough defense." But the Eagles missed three easy lay-ups when they had the fourth quarter lead that would have put the game away, pointed out Gast.

He had special praise for the Eagles' Kathy Foss, the game-high scorer with 14 points despite constant game-long defensive coverage. Debbie Klein of the Eagles added 10 points. Sonya Smith led a balanced Lake of the Woods attack with 12 points.

Lake of the Woods managed to get off just 42 shots against the strong Grygla defensive effort, but the Bears made 20 of them for a solid 48 per cent shooting night. They were a less-accurate 6-for-16 at the free throw line (37 per cent). Grygla was 17-for-56 from the field (30 per cent) and 7-for-11 at the line (64 per cent).

Grygla is now 3-9 for the year, but the Eagles' last four losses have been by a combined total of 20 points. They host Middle River Tuesday.

Freshmen Win 48-27 Decision

Thief River Falls defeated Grand Forks South junior high 48-27 Thursday in a freshman basketball game played at the city auditorium.

Griff Newland scored 11 points and Jarrod Kalaness had 9 in a balanced scoring attack for the winners, who owned a 12-8 first quarter lead, maintained a 20-16 halftime edge and then out-scored South 28-11 in the second half, which included a 30-23 third quarter spread.

Kent Hodne scored 10 points for the visitors.

Thief River Falls, 3-5, will be at Grafton Thursday for a 4:15 p.m. game.

Northwomen Lose . . .

NCC Handed Two Setbacks

Mesabi and Vermilion handed the Northland community college women's basketball team weekend road losses, dropping the Northwomen to .500 for the year at 6-6. It was their first Northwest Division-counting games of the season, however.

Playing at Virginia Friday night, Northland lost a high-scoring 79-75 game to Mesabi. Playing at Ely Saturday afternoon the Northwomen fell to Vermilion 97-52.

Northland will be at Fergus Falls Wednesday for a 6 p.m. game and will host Rainy River Friday in another 6 o'clock outing.

It was one of the most productive offensive games of the year for Northland, but the Northwomen still came up short in a 79-75 loss to Mesabi.

Trailing 39-31 at halftime, Northland out-scored Mesabi 44-40 in the second half to make it close.

"I thought we played very well," reported Northland coach Deb Jacobson. "Near the end, though, we took a couple of shots we maybe shouldn't have taken. But I thought it was a good game."

Tara Nicholson scored 22 points for the Northwomen, with Karen Sovde getting 19 while Brenda Dahl and Jenyne Beehler each added 14. Martha Marchileon had a game-high 23 points for Mesabi.

Northland out-shot Mesabi from the field, but Mesabi won it at the free throw line.

Northland shot 46 per cent from the field (35-for-76) and 56 per cent from the free throw line (5-for-9). Mesabi shot 43 per cent from the field (33-for-77) and 52 per cent from the line (13-for-25). Northland had a 58-31 rebound edge, but also topped the turnover figures 29-24.

It was a costly game for the Northwomen who lost the services of their top ball handler, freshman Kari Skoglund of Middle River, for the second time this season with a first half knee injury. She just recently returned to the line-up with a new knee brace.

Ten Vermilion players put their names in the scoring column, and half of them hit double figures, in a 97-52 romp over Northland.

Vermilion led 42-21 at halftime.

"They're tall, and they shoot well from the outside," explained Northland coach Deb Jacobson. "There was nothing we could do to stop them."

Sophomore Tara Nicholson had another high-scoring game for the Northwomen with 21 points, 17 of them coming in the second half. Karen Sovde added 11. Becky Svomala led the high-scoring Vermilion attack with 18 points.

Northland shot only 36 per cent from the field for the game (21-for-58), while Vermilion shot 47 per cent (44-for-93). Northland shot 67 per cent at the free throw line (10-for-15) where Vermilion shot 45 per cent (9-for-20). CarQuestions & Answers
Preventing Starting Problems

As you're going to and coming home from work in the dark this time of year, one thing you particularly don't want to tangle with is a car that won't start.

The CARQUEST Corporation has some simple hints on how you can help prevent starting problems.

The battery is the heart of the electrical system when it comes to starting. If you're in a cold climate, the battery has to work even harder. Studies have shown that the lower the temperature, the more the battery "thinks" it's starting a progressively larger engine.

In colder climates the lubricants in the engine and auxiliary parts, such as the starter, alternator, power steering and air conditioning, get "thicker." It takes more energy to turn the engine over at a speed that'll get the job done.

That's why drivers need to check on the condition of their car's battery regularly. Check fluid levels in all cells, check the cables and the connections.

Your local Qualified Counterman can supply several helpful tools, testers, chargers and parts, including battery cable terminals, that allow the do-it-yourselfer to get a fresh, tight connection without the cost of replacing an entire cable that is otherwise good.

Another do-it-yourself project that can help prevent starting problems is to check the distributor and spark plugs and replace any item that is corroded, cracked or generally past its prime. A tune-up not only saves gas and makes for a smoother running vehicle, but it greatly improves the chances of continued good starts. The stronger the spark, the better the start.

Your Qualified Counterman can also help the do-it-yourselfer with new, state-of-the-art, moderately-priced solid state diagnostic and tune-up tools (such as timing lights) that make the job of preventing starting problems a real pleasure.

DONATING BLOOD requires little effort and only minimal discomfort as Ruth Coltom of Thief River Falls demonstrated during the blood drive held last week at Northwestern hospital chapel by United Blood Services of the Upper Midwest. She was one of about 120 people who gave up a few minutes of their time and about 450 mls. of the life saving fluid.

GIVING TOGETHER made donating blood a family activity in many cases last week. At right, Gordon and Frances Anderson were screened by Kristi Baer and Jan Falk of United Blood Services of the Upper Midwest. About 120 units of blood were drawn over the two day drive, making it the first successful blood drive of the new year.

Jaycee Women Salute Jaycee Chapter Here

Debbra Swanson, president of the Jaycee Women organization of Thief River Falls, issued a slaute to the Thief River Falls Jaycees during the official Jaycee Week January 15-21.

Mrs. Swanson hailed the local Jaycees as "a group of young men in our community who still believe in the philosophy that service to humanity is the best work of life." She noted that there has been a Jaycee chapter in Thief River Falls for 49 years and that the need for volunteers exists now as much or more as ever.

During the past year the Jaycees have been involved in such projects as Summerfest '83, Operation Christmas for the needy, Miss Thief River Falls pageant, haunted house for Halloween, Falls Delivered Meals delivery and sandbox fill.

In addition, Mrs. Swanson said, the Jaycees have contributed to the wading pool project, Thief River Falls United Way and national muscular dystrophy association. Projects coming up include Winterfest '84, radio days, sponsorship of a circus in April and concessions for the international snowmobile race February 25-26.

"We of the Jaycee Women proudly salute the Jaycees for their many contributions to the Thief River Falls community," the Jaycee Women president added.

Tourism In MN Is Topic Of BSU Meeting

Hank Todd, the director of tourism for the state department of energy, planning and development, will address the social and economic impact of tourism in northern Minnesota during a 7:30 a.m. January 25 campus-community breakfast in the Beaux arts ballroom at Bemidji state university.

In addition to supervising the tourism division, Todd is responsible for planning and directing the state's tourism program. Prior to assuming his current position, he was a tourism and travel representative with the department, working closely with the state's tourism industry and supervising the staff of the tourist information center.

In September of 1982, he was elected the state travel director of the year by the national council of state travel directors, a group affiliated with the travel industry association of America.

Campus-community breakfast series is sponsored by Bemidji state university and brings leaders of education, business, government, and industry to Bemidji to speak on topics of general concern to area citizens.

Individuals interested in attending Todd's presentation can make reservations for the continental style breakfast by contacting Dorraine Schlichting, academic affairs, Bemidji state university, Bemidji, MN 56601 (218-755-3996) prior to noon, January 24.

Extension Of Dairy Sign-Up Asked Again

Congressman Arlan Stangeland has informed agriculture secretary John Block that any decision to extend the sign-up deadline for the new dairy program should be made as early as possible.

"Do not wait until January 31 to announce an extension," he said. "Delaying your decision could create confusion among dairy farmers."

Congressman Stangeland asked Block to extend the January 31 deadline until at least February 15 earlier this month, citing paperwork logjams facing farmers and ASCS officials who must implement the program.

"An extension would not only ease the paper-jam, it could also encourage more farmers to enroll in the program," he said. "The wider the participation, the more successful the paid diversion will be.

"It would seem unwise to limit participation because of an arbitrary deadline. That would undermine the year of negotiations we needed to set up this program."

Congressman Stangeland held two informational meetings for dairy farmers and ASCS officials in early January. Over 300 attended the Melrose meeting and 200 were at the meeting in Detroit Lakes.

"There is a lot of interest in the dairy program," Stangeland said. "That interest could be turned into participation if farmers are given time to complete their plans."

While Congressman Stangeland said he will pursue a deadline extension, he urges all dairy farmers who are interested in the program to start their applications.

"Don't rely on an extension after January 31," he said. "If this program is right for your farm, do what you can to be enrolled before the current deadline."

State Fair Meeting Held In St. Paul

Financial figures released during the 125th annual meeting of the Minnesota State Agricultural society show that the 1983 state fair experienced operating expenses of $6.96 million. The society, governing body of the state fair, met January 15 through 17 at the Radisson St. Paul hotel.

During the society's general business session January 17, Arthur Sprengeler, Plate, was reelected to his second one-year term as president of the society.

In other elections, Leonard Ramberg, Minneapolis, was reelected to a two-year term as society vice president; William Korff, Faribault, Eileen Roehlke, Rogers, and Howard Morris, Cokato, were each reelected to three-year terms on the society's board of managers. Mike Heffron, St. Paul, was reappointed general manager of the state fair.

Mayme Green, St. Paul, and Waino J. Kortesmaki, Edina, were elected to the state fair hall of fame. Mrs. Green managed the employee cafeteria at the state fair for 52 years. ## Agriculture Is "Great Source For Strength"

Calling agriculture "a great source of strength for our country", Senator Rudy Boschwitz announced that March 20 has been proclaimed as "National Agriculture Day".

"American farmers not only provide abundant agriculture supplies here at home, but are responsible for feeding people the world over. Agricultural exports help maintain our balance of trade. A special agriculture day helps all Americans recognize the personal stake they have in the future of this most basic industry," Boschwitz said.

Boschwitz is a member of the Senate agriculture committee and a cosponsor of this resolution which passed in December of 1983.

"Agriculture is the backbone of Minnesota's economy, and it's well known that the farmer has recently come upon bad times because of declining exports and record surpluses at home. A day designated as "National Agriculture Day" will make all Americans aware of the plight of the small farmer and more supportive of our nation's basic industry.

"There has never been a time of prosperity in Minnesota's history unless the farmer prospered first. Agriculture is the largest industry in our state. Minnesota's taxpayers have become well aware of agriculture's importance during the past couple years. When farmers are losing money, they don't pay taxes and the state suffers budget deficits. When the farm economy is strong, not only is the state budget healthy, but business across Minnesota is able to grow and prosper," Boschwitz said.

Adolescent Sex Class Offers Some Answers

Many questions are often raised by the issue of adolescent sexuality, both by parents and young people. A class titled "Adolescent Sexuality — The Role of Parents" is intended to answer some of those questions, and will be held from 7 to 9:30 p.m. for four consecutive Mondays, starting January 30, at Thief River Falls area vocational technical institute.

Among questions frequently raised by parents of adolescents are the following: Why won't they listen to me? Why do they always have a smart-alecky answer to everything? Why are their friends so much more important than us? Why are they getting into trouble?

Among questions adolescents frequently face are the following: Am I normal? Am I the only one who feels this way? Why are my parents so mean? Why are my friends better looking, better dressed or more popular than I am?

Reasons why young people become sexually active are often complex and difficult for others to understand. Persons interested in learning more about the answers to these questions should register for the class by calling 681-5424. Early registration is encouraged since enrollment is limited.

Jobless Taxes Set By Record Of Employers

Unemployment tax rate notices will be mailed to all employers January 27, according to the Minnesota department of economic security.

New employers have been assigned a 2.7 per cent benefit cost rate for 1984. Employers with an unemployment experience record are assigned rates from 1.0 to 7.5 per cent, depending upon the number of workers laid off. Those laying off more workers pay higher rates.

Employers with rates higher than one per cent will pay unemployment taxes on the first $9,800 in wages paid to each worker. Employers with one per cent rates will pay taxes on the first $8,000 in wages to a worker. These taxes are used to pay unemployment benefits.

Voluntary contributions made within 30 days from the date notices are mailed may entitle the employer to a lower tax rate.

Because of the deficit status of the unemployment fund, the 1984 legislature may enact changes affecting the taxable wage base or the tax rates.

United States milk production during December totaled 11.3 billion pounds, three per cent more than November of 1983 above December of 1982. Accumulated milk production during the year at 139 billion pounds was two per cent above the 1982 production.

Production per cow averaged 1,020 pounds during December of 1983, 12 pounds above December of 1982. Total number of milk cows stood at 11.1 million head during December, down slightly from November but up 46,000 head from a year ago.

Two Applied For Assistant Supt.

Appointment of a three-member board committee to interview candidates for the position of assistant superintendent in School District 564 took place at the regular meeting of the board of education Monday evening in the school district service center.

Two applications have been received for the assistant superintendent position, it was reported Monday evening. Named to conduct the interviews were Hank Hallstrom, Archie Cameron and Myrle Carlson. An assistant superintendent would have primary supervision in several areas outlined under an administrative reorganization plan reviewed by the board at its last meeting.

Approval was also given Monday evening to the administration of the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute to submit a plan and budget request to the state board of vocational education. The plan calls for the AVTI to lease the former Arctic Enterprises hangar at the regional airport for the AVTI aviation mechanics program from May 1, 1984 to May 1, 1986 for $10,000 each year, and to purchase the building at that time for $90,000.

Elementary principal William Desrocher presented material to the board concerning results of Iowa basic skills testing in the Thief River Falls school system. He noted that in national comparisons, reading is one of the areas in which School District 564 students perform the best. Board members expressed an interest in a statewide comparison and the district is attempting to obtain those statistics.

Jerry Prickett, supervisor of buildings and grounds, reported on a PCB and asbestos testing workshop he attended recently. He recommended to the board that a firm be contacted to check into the extent of the problem in the local school system and then report on necessary corrections. The board approved proceeding with this recommendation and suggested that tests be made to determine any formaldehyde problem that may exist.

Bid of the Williston (ND) school district in the amount of $2,005 was accepted for one used 1974 model IHC school bus.

Supt. Robert Block reminded board members of the meeting scheduled for Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the Lincoln high school cafeteria to review with the Thief River Falls Education association the budget and balances for 1983-84 and 1984-85.

Parental concern about the all-day, every-other-day kindergarten was expressed and discussed, as were letters of commendation to the special education staff from the Parents Advocacy

THE FITZGERALDS — F. Scott and his wife Zelda — are subjects of the play by that name to be presented Thursday, Friday and Saturday in the Northland community college theatre. The lead roles are played by Christopher Kays and Wendy Easton, shown here in a toast scene from the production which will have an 8 p.m. curtain each evening. The play is under the direction of Roger Vaughan. Admission will be $2 for adults, $1 for students with NCC faculty, staff and senior citizens admitted free. Tickets will be on sale at the college box office prior to performances.

Fair Hopes To Contract For Entertainment

Board of directors of the Pennington county fair association reaffirmed interest in contracting a well-known entertainer for the 1984 Pennington county fair in July when the board met Monday evening in the courthouse meeting room in Thief River Falls.

Skip Swanson, president of the board, noted that the board members had determined a preference of Don Williams from among entertainers believed to be available and that contract negotiations are underway. At the present time, however, no contract arrangements have been made with anyone, he said.

Last year the county fair association attempted the "big name" program sponsorship for the first time and contracted with Charley Pride for two evening shows. The performances were exceptionally well received, Swanson said, although the association incurred a slight loss due to cost involved in making some expensive but semi-permanent improvements in facilities, and electrical service, those expenses are expected to be nonrecurring.

The board is working with the same agent who handles Williams' contracting in an effort to secure "The New Grass Revival" group as a lead-off group if Williams can be contracted. The Oklahoma based group includes the 1983 banjo player of the year, Swanson noted.

In other decisions Monday the board decided not to have a tractor pull at the 1984 county fair and to consider a draft horse pulling contest, an area talent show and a combine demolition derby. Horse racing appears to be unlikely due to scheduling problems but the popular auto demolition derby rated strong approval.

The board decided to reorganize into seven areas of responsibility with a vice president from the board of directors in charge of each area. The divisions would include arena, grandstand, grounds, barns, personnel, promotion and publicity and other activities.

It was also decided to activate a campaign for sale of life memberships in the association during the 1984 year to increase community involvement in the organization.

Harry Hanson, Arden Lundeen Families Cited

Two eastern Pennington county farm families are being notified today of their selection for special honors through the Red River Valley winter shows at Crookson.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hanson of rural Trail have been selected as valley farmer and homemaker for Pennington county while Mr. and Mrs. Arden Lundeen of rural Oklee have been selected as the county's honor dairymen. They will be recognized during special events at the Red River Valley winter shows in February.

Lincoln Band Preparing For Norway Concert Tour

Having officially decided to accept an invitation to be the Sons of Norway official American representative in Norway during the summer of 1984, Lincoln high school wind ensemble members are beginning preparations for the 15-day trip, according to band director, Doug Engstrom.

Engstrom said the band was selected from among 36 bands in Minnesota to which the offer was made. The invitation was seeking a high school band to be the Sons of Norway official American representative in Norway during the summer of 1984.

The two-week tour from July 1 through July 15 will include about two parades, two outdoor concerts and two indoor concerts in Norway, according to Paul D. Erickson, fraternal and public relations manager for the Sons of Norway organization headquartered in Minneapolis.

"Many of our Norway members would like to celebrate the Fourth of July in the same spirit that Norway's constitution day, Syttende Mai, is celebrated in America," Erickson wrote in his letter of invitation. "A band such as yours would be the center point of the Fourth of July festivities and we expect all performances during the tour to arouse a great deal of interest."

Norwegian Sons of Norway members and their friends will provide a portion of the lodging at homes in cities visited on tour, enabling band members to visit informally with the Norwegians in their homes as well as reduce cost of food and lodging.

Erickson estimated that $1,000 to $1,200 per person would be necessary to cover all the expenses of the two-week tour, plus additional individual money for souvenirs and personal expenses. Engstrom said that the greatest part of the expense would be provided by the families of the approximately 47 band members who plan to make the trip, with some funding to come from the band boosters organization. A request for funds has also been made to the local Sons of Norway lodge.

Official notification of the Thief River Falls band's selection was received in early January and final local approval given at a meeting of parents shortly thereafter.

Engstrom said that an

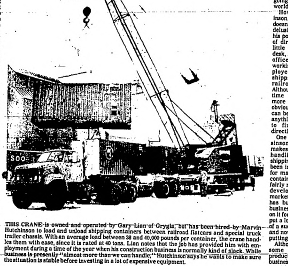
World-Wide Shipping Is Done Through TRF Firm



THIS CRANE is owned and operated by Gary Lian of Grygla, but has been hired by Marvin Hutchinson to load and unload shipping containers between railroad flatcars and special truck trailer chassis. With an average load between 38 and 40,000 pounds per container, the crane handles them with ease, since it is rated at 40 tons. Lian notes that the job has provided him with employment during a time of the year when his construction business is normally kind of slack. While business is presently "almost more than we can handle," Hutchinson says he wants to make sure the situation is stable before investing in a lot of expensive equipment.

by Dave Berg
Times Reporter

Thief River Falls hardly qualifies as an international shipping port, but one local company, Hutchinson Transfer, is responsible for handling relatively large volumes of products coming from and going to countries all over the world.

However, Marvin Hutchinson, owner of the company, doesn't appear to have any delusions of grandeur about his position. Dressed in a pair of dirty coveralls, he spends little time sitting behind a desk, and is only caught in his office when he isn't out working alongside his employees as they unload shipping containers from railroad cars or trucks. Although he has about 10 full time employees, and hires more as they are needed, he obviously leads by doing, and can be found doing just about anything, from driving truck to fixing equipment and directing traffic.

One of the aspects of Hutchsinson's business which makes it interesting is his handling of containerized shipping. Although he had been in the trucking business for many years, the move to containerized shipping is a fairly recent development. By developing more local markets for the process, he has built it into a thriving business. "I'd been working on it for about three years, and put a lot of feelers out, and all of a sudden it hit, caught fire, and now we're having trouble putting out fast enough."

Although he still trucks some furniture and other products, a large part of his business now involves shipments of agricultural products grown in this area, most of which are headed for markets overseas. His biggest mover at the time is beans, which are being hauled from Stephen and other locations. At other times it may be sugar, sunflower-seeds or other commodities. What makes his company different from other transporters in the area is the way the commodities are hauled.

Specially designed containers made to stack inside the hold of a ship are hauled to Thief River Falls from various locations in the east, by the Soo Line railroad. The containers measure 20 feet long by 8 feet wide by 8.5 feet high, and are hauled four to a flatcar. The railroad drops the cars on a siding here, and Hutchinson and his employees use a crane to lift the empty containers off of the flatcar and onto specially designed chassis, which can be pulled by trucks. Containers are then hauled to the source of the commodites where they are filled and sealed. They can then be hauled back to Thief River Falls and loaded back on the train.

Soo Line hauls most of the cars to Minneapolis, then to Sault Ste. Marie, MI., where they are transferred to a Canadian Pacific train and hauled to Montreal. There the containers can be loaded directly onto a ship which can travel down the St. Lawrence Seaway to the ocean and destinations all over the world. Marv notes that the major advantage offered by this method is that the cargo only needs to be handled by hand one time, (when it is put into the shipping container) eliminating labor costs and risk of contamination. The containers are also waterproof.

MARV HUTCHINSON notes that the logo on this regular truck trailer refers to a nickname given the trailers which ride "piggyback" on railroad flatcars. While specially designed shipping containers seem to have "caught fire" and have his company working overtime to keep up with the demand, he notes that they are still handling regular trucking and the "pigs" which are often cheaper to ship than drive over the road.

Three-Wheeler Race Planned By TRF Jaycees

Thief River Falls Jaycees are planning a three-wheeler race at the Pennington county fairgrounds, starting at 12:30 p.m. Saturday, February 11. Registration of drivers will be held from 10 a.m. to noon.

According to committee chairmen Dick Zeman and Dave Cariveau, they will have stock classes for riders aged 16 and under with machines from 90 to 125 ccs. and from 175 to 200 ccs. Riders 17 and over will have classes for 175 ccs. and over, 125 modified, and 90 to 125 stock. Stock classes will compete for trophies. Three drivers will be required in each class in order to run that class.

For pro class riders, this will be the second to the last race of the season, with drivers working to accumulate points. They will compete for trophies and 100 per cent payback of entry fees. Pro classes will include 200X and 250 ccs. All drivers under age 17 will be required to produce their parent's or guardian's signature in order to register.

Cariveau notes that this year's track will be twice the size of the one used last summer, with a front straightaway of about 350 feet. Persons desiring further information may call Dick Zeman at 681-3339, or Dave Cariveau at 681-2430.

TRF United Way Goal Exceeded For This Year

Thief River Falls area United Way's board of directors has announced that its 1983-84 campaign goal of $60,124 has been exceeded, with recent pledges and contributions bringing the total to $60,916.

This represents a 23.5 per cent gain from the prior year's campaign, and makes this the first time in the past five years that area United Way campaign goals have been met or exceeded.

Board members expressed particular satisfaction in this accomplishment, and credited a new campaign format which involved larger numbers of community volunteers, as well as extra dedication from a number of groups, who exceeded even this year's across-the-board gain. These included K-Mart, United Parcel Service, KTRF-KSNR, Marcraft, Digi-Key, Northwestern hospital, Northwestern Bell, Occupational Development center and School District 564.

According to the board, the volunteer nature of the organization makes it possible for approximately 91 cents out of each dollar to reach intended agencies, making it an especially effective way to give charitably.

For the next two months, allocation committees will be reviewing funding requests from various agencies. When completed, these reviews will be presented to the board for action on each allocation. United Way's board of directors meets every month, and welcomes suggestions from the public.

Support Group On Divorce To Meet Thursday

A divorce support group will begin meeting on Thursday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the United Methodist church. This is a nine-week program created to help divorced, separated and widowed persons work through and deal with the different stages of grief in their lives.

Among topics discussed will be how to cope with being alone, being a single parent and overcoming hurt feelings.

Hagen And Weston Vows Exchanged In Colorado

Marriage vows were exchanged at the First United Methodist church in Greeley, Colo., on December 18, at 7:30 p.m., by Stephanie Hagen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hagen of Greeley, and Donald A. Weston, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald A. Weston, Sr., of Springfield, Mo., and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Riggan of Piedmont, Okla.

Honor guests at the ceremony were the bride's grandparents, Mrs. Olaf Hagen of Thief River Falls and Mr. and Mrs. John McWilliam of Winger, together with the bride's aunts: Mildred Joppru of Thief River Falls, Sue Flermoen, Brooklyn Park and Irene Sjulstad of Phoenix, Ariz.

Rev. Wes Kendall officiated at the double ring ceremony attended by 150 relatives and friends. Organist Sue Pfund played "Trumpet Voluntaire," for the processional with Bill Pfund, the trumpeter, providing the accompaniment. He also played "The Lord's Prayer," following the exchanging of the vows. During the candle lighting ceremony, Anita Templeton sang "These are the Best Times." Prior to the ceremony, Shannon Spencer and Shelley Hagen played the miramba duet "We've Only Just Begun."

For the event, the church was decorated with white poinsettias, Christmas greenery and Christmas trees trimmed with white lights and aqua bows. Matching bows marked the pews, and baskets of aqua poinsettias, white roses and greenery complemented the narthex.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, entered the church through a garland archway. She was attired in an organza gown with sheer bishop sleeves gathered into beaded Cluny lace cuffs. Coordinating lace with pearl trim complemented the fitted, empire bodice, split neckline and bouffant skirt with chapel-length train. A beaded lace headpiece held her tiered blusher and fingertip veil, with Cluny lace appliques and trim, designed and made by Bev King of Denver, Colo., and formerly of Thief River Falls. She carried a bouquet of white silk roses, aqua violets, ming fern, greenery, pine cones and aqua Christmas balls.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was her sister, Shelley Hagen of Greeley. Bridesmaids were Sue Reiten and Mary Ellen Harmon, both of Greeley, and Carol Freeman, Montrose, Colo. They wore princess styled aqua satin gowns with sweetheart necklines and capped sleeves, made by the bride's mother. Each carried a muff with aqua poinsettias and ming fern.

The acolytes Marylynn Howard of Greeley and Kodee Ruff of Kersey, Colo., wore dark green floor-length gowns matching the dark green tuxedos worn by the best man, Mark Howe, Weatherford, Okla., and the groomsmen: Lonnie Cline, Pratt, Kans., Joe Howard, Greeley, and Mike Ruff, also of Greeley. Serving as ushers were Mitch Miller, Greeley, David Weston, Tuttle, Okla., and Jerry Weston, Piedmont, Okla., brothers of the groom. The rings were carried by Jerame Maes of Greeley.

A reception at the Greeley Senior Center followed the ceremony. The four-tiered wedding cake, decorated with white roses and Christmas greenery, was cut and served by Sue Flermoen, Brooklyn Park, aunt of the bride, and Royce Howard, Greeley, a friend of the couple. Coffee and punch were served by Mildred Joppru, Thief River Falls, and Irene Sjulestad, Phoenix, Ariz., aunts of the bride.

After a skiing trip to Winter Park, Colo., the couple is at home at Greeley.

The bride is a graduate of Greeley Central, attended Fort Lewis college at Durango, Colorado State university at Fort Collins and is attending UNC at Greeley. In addition, she is clerk at Roleys and a First Impression color consultant. The groom is a graduate of A. J. Terrell high school at Blanchard, Okla., ERT Technical school in Oklahoma City, Okla.; Eisenman Chemical school in Greeley, Colo., and Embalming school at Oklahoma City, Okla. He is assistant manager for Chaparral Service and Supply company and is a self employed Broken Home Specialist.

initial survey of band members' parents indicated that 26 were in favor, seven opposed and 22 unable to answer immediately or having further questions. Majority of comments were favorable to making the trip, he added.

In presenting information to the Sons of Norway organization, band officers Andrea Ault and Nora Hushagen summarized the organization as follows:

"The Lincoln high school wind ensemble is comprised of students from ninth to 12th grades. This ensemble has received starred ratings at state-region large group competitions since 1976. In June of 1981 they participated in "Festival of the Rockies," an international music festival held at Estes Park, CO. Each spring this ensemble makes a concert tour. These tours have reached throughout Minnesota as well as Canada.

"The Lincoln high school jazz ensemble selects its membership from the wind ensemble's personnel. Having performed for many different occasions, events and concerts, this group has also received top ratings in competition. Frequently this ensemble invites top clinicians and performers to work and solo in concert with the band.

"The Prowler marching band consists of both concert bands as well as the flag corps, color guard and majorettes. Annual special performances of the band include half-time shows, college parades and our annual 'Band Night' show. In 1981 the Prowler band was awarded first honors in marching competition held in Fargo, ND.

He is currently the director of the Lincoln high school wind ensemble, concert band, jazz ensemble, Varsity Blue and Prowler marching band. He has been on the staff at Northland community college in Thief River Falls as director of the college jazz ensemble and community band, and he was an instructor in theory and individual lessons. ## Apply For State Scholarship Or Grant Soon

Students who plan to attend a Minnesota post-secondary educational institution in the 1984-85 school year can now apply for a state scholarship or grant and, under a new continuous application process, apply through May of 1985.

Application forms may be obtained from high school counselors, financial aid officers at post-secondary institutions, and from the higher education coordinating board, which administers the program (400 Capitol Square, 550 Cedar Street, St. Paul, Minnesota 55101). The 1984-85 school year runs from July 1, 1984, to June 30, 1985.

Students currently attending a Minnesota post-secondary institution can still apply for a scholarship or grant for the 1983-84 school year (July 1, 1983, to June 30, 1984) through the American college testing program until March 15, 1984, and receive an award for the full year. From March 16, 1984, until May 31, 1984, applications can be sent directly to the coordinating board.

Although old priority deadlines have been eliminated as a result of program changes and a new data processing system, the coordinating board encourages students to apply as early as possible. More than $48 million will be available for the 1984-85 school year.

World-Wide Shipping Goes Through TRF

Bean sales are generally arranged by a broker in Fargo, although other shipments are arranged in other locations. Hutchinson notes that they also receive some loaded containers from places all over the world. Most of these have been industrial supplies from Europe, destined for Canadian cities. These were loaded onto a chassis and hauled to their destination by truck. Marv notes that since the containers are sealed, he seldom knows what they contain unless he looks at the paperwork, which he seldom does.

Although when the containers come in empty they are loaded four to a flatcar, he notes that after they have been loaded, they can only be loaded according to the weight capacity of the car, and usually can be loaded three to a flatcar. Most of the containers have a gross allowable weight of 44,800 pounds. Railroads, like truckers also must observe legal weight limits.

Although Hutchinson estimates that the savings over hauling "over the road" is substantial, he says the real savings is in the reduced handling at the shipping port.

Although he does some business with the Burlington Northern railroad, he notes that since his office and operating space is leased from the Soo Line, and is adjacent to their tracks he naturally does most of his business with them. "They're a pretty progressive company and worked closely with us in getting this set up. They work hard to be competitive."

He leases the truck chassis through them as well, and is responsible for seeing that they are maintained and repaired. Originally the containers were shipped to him on the chassis, much as "piggyback" trailers are now, but problems in getting enough chassis to keep up with the demand resulted in the decision to bring in a crane to enable him to load and unload the containers directly from the cars. The railroad now leaves as many as 50 containers off at one time for him, and if he has no chassis immediately available, they can be placed directly on the ground.

"It's really a job keeping up with the scheduled shipping dates on all of this," he says. "Those ships can't be kept waiting." He credits his wife Eileen with keeping track of the books and seeing that the orders are taken care of on schedule. "She's kind of my right hand man," he says with a wink.

He estimates that they handled about 1,000 containers last year and figures they will move about 1,500 this year. "It looks pretty good right now," he says, but adds that he wants to "wait and see" before he makes too big an investment. He allows that the money is "pretty good. . . once you get it," but notes that the wait can be a long one before payment is received.

Marv says he would like to improve on the business in the not too distant future by possibly getting some type of computerized system to keep track of orders and bookkeeping. "I'd kind of like to get my boy involved in it one of these days," he says. That gives some indication that the man has faith in his business.

Animal Health Product Misuse Can Be Costly

Beef producers can be proud of the fact that almost 99 per cent of all cattle leave the farm free of illegal drug or pesticide residues. That has helped give this nation's livestock industry the reputation of producing the safest, most wholesome food in the world.

Still, on rare occasions, government inspectors find illegal residues in slaughtered animals. Unintentional misuse of animal drugs or pesticides is often the reason. This is doubly troublesome to cattlemen:

First, any hint of contamination, no matter how small, could serve to undermine consumer confidence in our beef industry. That could cause reduced consumption of beef.

Second, the cattleman who markets animals with illegal residues may lose income from the condemned carcasses, and may possibly face prosecution.

Accidental misuse of animal health products can be easily avoided, suggests the Animal Health institute, the trade association of animal drug and pesticide manufacturers. As a start, get into the habit of always reading and following label directions on all the animal health products you use.

That goes for "old familiar" products as well as new ones. Approved dosage and use recommendations may change, so you should check the label each time you use the product. Also, it's better to check the label and be sure than to trust it to memory.

Here are some other suggestions from the Animal Health institute:

— Plan your animal health program. Include all products: feed additives, implants, therapeutic drugs, etc., as well as pesticides. Consult your veterinarian as you're outlining your plans.

— Feed or administer the right amount. Remember that more is not better. By the same token, don't under-dose. A precise amount of the drug needs to be in the animal's system to do the job.

— Observe withdrawal times carefully. Always figure withdrawal time as the time before the animal leaves the farm for the slaughter house. Don't include a few days in transit as part of the withdrawal period.

Using animal health products properly isn't difficult — it does take some time and forethought, though. But if you can avoid the problems that misuse of these products can bring, that effort will be well-spent.

Animal Health Product Misuse Can Be Costly

Beef producers can be proud of the fact that almost 99 per cent of all cattle leave the farm free of illegal drug or pesticide residues. That has helped give this nation's livestock industry the reputation of producing the safest, most wholesome food in the world.

Still, on rare occasions, government inspectors find illegal residues in slaughtered animals. Unintentional misuse of animal drugs or pesticides is often the reason. This is doubly troublesome to cattlemen:

First, any hint of contamination, no matter how small, could serve to undermine consumer confidence in our beef industry. That could cause reduced consumption of beef.

Second, the cattleman who markets animals with illegal residues may lose income from the condemned carcasses, and may possibly face prosecution.

Accidental misuse of animal health products can be easily avoided, suggests the Animal Health institute, the trade association of animal drug and pesticide manufacturers. As a start, get into the habit of always reading and following label directions on all the animal health products you use.

That goes for "old familiar" products as well as new ones. Approved dosage and use recommendations may change, so you should check the label each time you use the product. Also, it's better to check the label and be sure than to trust it to memory.

Here are some other suggestions from the Animal Health institute:

— Plan your animal health program. Include all products: feed additives, implants, therapeutic drugs, etc., as well as pesticides. Consult your veterinarian as you're outlining your plans.

— Feed or administer the right amount. Remember that more is not better. By the same token, don't under-dose. A precise amount of the drug needs to be in the animal's system to do the job.

— Observe withdrawal times carefully. Always figure withdrawal time as the time before the animal leaves the farm for the slaughter house. Don't include a few days in transit as part of the withdrawal period.

Using animal health products properly isn't difficult — it does take some time and forethought, though. But if you can avoid the problems that misuse of these products can bring, that effort will be well-spent.

Viking Church To Show Film

Rev. Dale Van Deusen, pastor of Viking Covenant church, has announced that a new film, "The Living Word" will be shown at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, January 29, free of charge and open to the public.

Featuring narration by Billy Graham and Cliff Barrows, the film combines scripture passages, religious art, music and color footage of the Holy Land with a relevance to the twentieth century.

Dairymen Need To Use Care In Animal Drugs

Diligent efforts of dairy producers have helped the industry establish the reputation that the products of this nation's food production system are the safest in the world.

But on rare occasions, illegal residues are detected in a dairy producer's milk. Unintentional misue of animal drugs or pesticides is often the reason. This spells trouble for dairymen, in two ways:

First, any hint of contamination, no matter how small, could serve to undermine consumer confidence in dairy products. That could cause reduced consumption.

Second, the dairyman who markets milk with illegal residues can lose income because of it, and might even face prosecution.

It's easy to avoid misusing these products, suggests the Animal Health institute, the trade association of animal drug and pesticide manufacturers. For starters, develop the habit of always reading and following label directions on all the animal health products used in your operation.

Check not only the less-familiar products you're using, but also your favorite old standbys. Occasionally drug withdrawal times and approved dosage or use recommendations change. At any rate, it's better to check the label and be sure than to trust it to memory.

Animal Health Institute suggests these other ways to avoid using animal health products improperly:

— Keep a health product record. Keep records on what animal health products you're using, and note any important requirements: withdrawal periods, etc. Include all sources of drugs and pesticides. It's a good idea to consult with your veterinarian as you're doing this, as well, to insure that the over-the-counter medications you may be using are compatible with the products he prescribes.

— Administer the right dose — for the right animal. For instance, a dairy cow bolus may not be approved for use in calves. It may not even be the right medication for the calf problem. Check the label.

— Observe proper withdrawal periods. Use ear tag numbers or some other marking to remind yourself when a cow's milk can be marketed after treatment. And when sending veal calves or cull cows to slaughter, figure withdrawal time as the time before the animals leave the farm — don't count days in transit as part of the withdrawal time.

Proper use of animal health products really doesn't take that much time and effort. But if you avoid the problems that misuse brings, you'll consider the effort very worthwhile.

Says Supply Of Hogs Has Little Market Effect

Supply and demand has little to do with the price of hogs in the marketplace or pork on the meat counter, says Merle Suntken, director of the National Farmers organization (NFO) hog division.

Suntken uses charts to show the prices at the marketplace do not rise and fall in direct relation to the numbers of hogs available on the farm. Referring specifically to the trend late in 1982, he showed periods when the number and price relationship was "normal," numbers up and prices down.

But that was followed by a long period when the numbers declined but the price did, too, contrary to supply and demand theory.

"You got greedy," Suntken told hog producers. "The cash market price got higher than the forward contract price in 1982 and you became uncontractual."

Using another chart he portrayed the "wild gyrations" of the cash market for hogs, noting the wide variance between the peaks and valleys on the chart. The forward contract price line, however, traced a more stable line across the chart. Indicating the point where the cash market exceeded the forward contract price, Suntken then traced the sharp drop in the cash price and showed how the drop dragged the forward contract price down with it.

"You, and you alone, can maintain reasonable and stable market prices," Suntken advises hog producers, "but you have to stick together over the long run, sell your hogs regularly on forward contracts and don't completely drop the program for short-term prices. Think of the forward contract as a tool you use to maintain a steady cash flow in your operation."

Suntken also hit hard on the import and export quotas and the decline in the per capita consumption of pork, laying most of the blame on the government's doorstep.

"They're not going to help you," he said, "because the government is totally oriented to a 'cheap food' policy to benefit the consumer. If the hog producer is to stabilize his pricing structure he must do it himself." He encourages using the National Farmers organization program of herd inventory control and systematic deliveries.

Questions On Cancer May Be Asked On Phone

Minnesotans with questions or concerns about cancer may call a toll-free number for answers and information. It's an easy number to remember: 1-800-4-CANCER.

The toll-free telephone system is called the cancer information service and it is cosponsored by the American Cancer society, Minnesota division and the National Cancer institute. Trained lay volunteers and staff answer the calls and can provide specific information on particular cancer sites, detection programs, local resources for cancer patients, treatment and rehabilitation facilities, home care assistance and availability of transportation.

Information about possible causes of cancer, its prevention, detection and treatment is also available. Information given by telephone is often supplemented by written material mailed to the inquirer at no charge.

The service began in 1976 and last year received a record number of 7,275 calls. About one-fourth of the calls are inquiries about cancer in various sites. Other questions cover a wide range of subjects, from the known causes of cancer, the side-effects of treatment, hereditary factors associated with cancer or available resources for patients.

Letters to the Editor

Recently 60 head of cattle died from starvation on a family farm in North Dakota. The mayor of a nearby town who knows the farm family described the scene: ". . . When I actually saw the 60 animals, dead, stiff and frozen, I was shaken with horror and with revulsion . . ." The mayor continues, ". . . 30 days a month, 14 or 16 hours a day. The wife and children work like Trojans by his side. One week off in 13 years, one new car and two used pickups in 13 years. Nothing in the way of boats, motors, motorcycles or playthings. Thrifty and responsible. Always helping in the community, being chairman of the community development association, president of the board of education and chairman of his church. A highly regarded family . . ."

They farm 3,000 acres, part owned by a semi-retired parent, part rented and the balance owed on credit. The cattle died shortly after the farmer could not convince the Chapter 11 bankruptcy court that their feed grain was depleted and cattle were near starvation. Their plea was turned down. Cattle had been shipped, grain had been harvested and was in storage. The farmer had checks in his hand, but his lenders were demanding payments which left him nothing for feed or operating expenses.

Now after the farmer has lost 60 head of cattle valued at $18,000 (publicized on TV), some money has been released to feed those that have survived. The court can re-schedule the farm debt so as to allow the farmer to reorganize his operation. But the future looks bleak.

I visited this family and learned that farmers in the area were doing rather well from about 1940 to about 1952. Wheat is their main cash crop. A government program of providing loans to farmers for grain in storage was begun in the Roosevelt administration at 90 per cent of parity, called the "Ever Normal Granary". The grain trading companies bought the grain at the approximate level of the loan and the farmer repaid the loan, unlike programs of the present that provide loans at one-half cost of production.

The payments of billions of dollars in the PIK and other wasteful programs don't improve farm income. In 1951 farmers received up to $3 per bushel for wheat and bread sold for 18 cents per loaf. Modest homes that are lived in today were built at that time. The family called my attention to their neighbors, saying: "We are all in the same boat!" It is a very serious economic situation.

Their nearest neighbor, a father and son operation, farm 20 quarter sections. A quarter section is the historic homestead (160 acres). They can't do more and they can't make it on what they have, overworked and underpaid! The daughter-in-law, with two small children, said, "We have less than if Tom worked out at the lowest of wages."

Prices are low and going lower. The loan rate influences the market price. The 1983 loan rate was $3.55 and the rate for 1984 is set at $3.30 per bushel, about 45 per cent of parity. The department of agriculture justifies this decrease as necessary to be more competitive, domestically and for export. Reagan stated January 20, ". . . I will keep America prosperous!"

For the farmers that I visited and thousands more, time is running out. Farmers can't be MORE competitive! I asked individual farmers if the government loan were set at 80 per cent of parity — about $6 per bushel — how would it affect you? All answered, "I would be solvent right now! I could buy the feed I need, I could put in my crop and pay in the fall of '84."

Who will benefit if these farmers have to leave the land? The picture that I see is that the land will be acquired by multi-million dollar agri-business corporations and planted by migrant crews, after they have planted in Kansas and Nebraska. The acres would be harvested in the fall, working north from Kansas. How will this affect the price of bread? Today the wrapper costs more than the farmer gets for the wheat, so I don't think the consumer will benefit!

To The Editor:

I have written and sent the following letter to the School District 564 board president:

Dear Board of Education President:

I am concerned to find the board of education has voted to:

(1) Extend the time of service of board members without a public note;

(2) Politicized the election of board of education members and elections;

(3) Made the extension of the term of office during their service term and at this late date; and

(4) Failed to give the public a voting choice on this issue.

This vital issue was handled as "Other Business" on December 20, 1983, and placed on the January 9, 1984 agenda for action. The action was moved by Hank Hallstrom and passed with one dissenting vote — Greg Pribula. Several of those voting for the action were to have stood for election in April.

My concerns are:

(1) This important issue should be voted on through the April election;

(2) Those board members directly affected (April, 1984) should reconsider their participation;

(4) The politicizing of a school board election is a major change (even if proposed and accepted by a legal authority); and

(4) The Eden Prairie, Minnesota, experience with this proposed project was not carefully and fully weighed.

I recommend the board of education rescind its action, proceed with the April elections and place the issue on the ballot.

Very sincerely,
-s- Dr. William Corliss

Norwest Banks Report Boost In Net Income

Norwest Corporation has reported net income of $125,202,000 for 1983, up 40.5 per cent from $89,093,000 in 1982.

On a per share basis, net income was $4.05 per common share, up 31.5 per cent from $3.08 in 1982. On a fully diluted basis, net income per share was $3.89, compared with $2.92 in 1982.

For the fourth quarter, net income was $24,203,000, or 73 cents per share, compared with $9,644,000, or 21 cents per share in 1982.

Cattle On Feed Decline From 1983 Figures

Minnesota feedlots contained 375,000 cattle on January 1, down seven per cent from a year ago, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. Placements during the fourth quarter of 1983 decreased fractionally from the same quarter a year ago. Marketings during October-December decreased 22 per cent from a year earlier.

Farmers expect to market 150,000 cattle during the next three months (January-March 1984), unchanged from the actual marketings for the same period last year.

Cattle and calves on feed Jan. 1, 1984, for slaughter market in the 13 quarterly states totaled 9.91 million head, four per cent less than last year but 10 per cent above 1982.

The cattle on feed inventory included 6.75 million steers and steer calves, up one per cent from last year and nine per cent from two years ago. This group represented 68 per cent of the total January 1 number on feed compared with 65 per cent in 1983. Heifers and heifer calves accounted for 3.12 million, down 12 per cent from last year but 13 per cent above 1982.

Placements of cattle and calves on feed during the October-December quarter totaled 7.25 million, fractionally above the same quarter a year earlier and 16 per cent more than the same quarter for 1981. Other disappearance of 393,000 leaves net placements for the fourth quarter of 1983 at 6.86 million.

Marketings of fed cattle for slaughter during October-December totaled 5.42 million, up one per cent from fourth quarter marketings in 1982 and six per cent more than marketings in the same quarter of 1981.

During the first quarter of 1984, 5.75 million head of fed cattle are expected to come to market. This would be a one per cent increase from first quarter marketings in 1983 and six per cent above 1982.

Number Of Hog Farms In State Falls By 2,000

Minnesota's pork producers took a financial beating for the third straight year in 1983, with the number of hog farms down to an all time low of 22,000 and the value of the December 1 inventory of hogs and pigs was the lowest in size years, according to Agriculture Commissioner Jim Nichols.

This third leading pork producing state lost 2,000 hog farms in 1983, raising the casualty toll for the past three years to 13,000 hog farms that ceased operation due to the production cost-low market price squeeze.

The December 1 inventory estimated the 22,000 hog farms in Minnesota had 4,270,000 production animals, an increase compared to a year ago of 370,000 hogs and pigs.

Average market value was only $56.50 per animal, the lowest since 1977, and made the current Minnesota hog farm inventory asset value $241,255,000. That was nearly a $102 million or 30 per cent reduction compared to the 9.5 per cent smaller year ago inventory.

Only two states reported higher casualities of hog farms in 1983 than Minnesota. Texas lost 4,000 and North Carolina dropped 2,500 pork production units. Virginia matched Minnesota's loss of 2,000 hog farms.

Market prices for slaughter hogs in Minnesota appeared to have bottomed out at 37 cents a pound in mid-November, and strengthened during December to the highest levels since last March. But in the past nine months the daily market price has topped the 50 cent level considered break-even for efficient pork producers less than 20 days at South St. Paul.

Although Minnesota's total hog inventory at year end was up almost 10 per cent from a year ago, the number of breeding hogs, 533,000, was seven per cent lower. Producers also reported intentions to reduce farrowing of the first half 1984 pig crop by 10 per cent.

In 1983 the Minnesota pig crop was estimated at 7,481,000, up 623,000 from 1982.

Soo Line Wants To Purchase Milwaukee Line

Soo Line railroad company filed a motion with the Milwaukee Road reorganization court in Chicago on Friday which contains an offer to purchase the assets of the Milwaukee's core system, according to Thomas M. Beckley, chairman and chief executive officer of the Soo Line.

Soo Line will argue its motion to the court on Monday, January 30.

The purchase offer includes a cash payment of $40,000,000 in addition to assumption of certain outstanding obligations. Under the proposal Soo would acquire and continue to operate the entire core system of the Milwaukee. Soo's plan does not contemplate abandonments of any Milwaukee Road lines.

"A Soo Line-Milwaukee Road combination would strengthen competition for rail traffic in the central United States," Beckley said. "Changing shipping patterns and recent railroad mergers make the combination of the two roads desirable. Quality of service available to Soo and Milwaukee shippers would be upgraded and rail service preserved for shippers who have been threatened with abandonment of lines.

"We believe the resulting offer by the Soo is vastly superior to any other plans now proposed."

The Minneapolis-based Soo Line currently operates more than 4,400 miles of line in seven midwestern states. The bulk of its system runs through territories and cities not served over Milwaukee's approximately 3,000 miles of line. The combination would open new gateways for Soo into Kansas City and Louisville and other areas where direct Soo service is not now available.

Acquisition of the Milwaukee road would strengthen Soo's future traffic base offering benefits to customers in its service territory:

— Competitive rail service would be preserved particularly in Wisconsin. Cities such as Milwaukee, Green Bay, Madison and Wausau would be assured of continued strong railroad competition.

— Competitive rail service for grain products in Iowa and southern Minnesota would be preserved.

— Single-line service would be available for movements of Canadian resources directly to the Kansas City and Louisville gateways.

— New competitive outlets for grain and grain products from Soo served territories in Minnesota and the Dakotas would be opened both to Kansas City and to direct connections with barge operators at various points on the Mississippi River.

— Opportunities for intermodal services would be expanded.

"Combination of the two companies would represent a source of strength for the railroad industry in the Midwest and assure a good future for Milwaukee and its employees," Beckley added.

If Soo's proposal is accepted for consideration by the reorganization court, an application to acquire the carrier would be filed with the Interstate Commerce commission as soon as possible. A timetable for consideration of Soo's offer would also be established by the court.

Traffic Data Collected By New System

A faster, money-saving system for collection of vital traffic information may be just a flick of the switch away under a pilot project by the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

Five of the 61 statewide automatic traffic recording (ATR) sites are in the pilot project. They now are linked by telephone lines for instant transmission of information to a microcomputer in the transportation building in St. Paul, says Douglas Differt, assistant commissioner, program management division.

Five test locations are: Interstate 35 near Wyoming, Chisago county; I-94 near Hasty, Wright county; US 52 north of Rochester and US 14 west of Rochester, Olmsted county; and I-35 near Owatonna, Steele county.

All locations have equipment that count the number of passing vehicles. Three of these also indicate vehicles under or over 21 feet long. Vehicles length indicates a passenger car or truck. These three sites also record speed as part of a statewide collection of information to meet federal law concerning the national speed limit of 55 mph, explains Robert Johns, director, methods and data systems.

Information is currently punched on a tape which is collected by hand from the 56 other sites. However, at the five test tests, the stored information is automatically transmitted over phone lines beginning at 1 a.m. daily to St. Paul, he says. By summer we expect to have the remaining 56 sites converted to the new system.

"The new system cost $155,400," Johns says, "but we anticipate savings in staff time and travel expenditures will pay for it within four years."

Besides these savings, the new system has an additional advanatage, he explains, in that it can be determined almost immediately in St. Paul if there is equipment failure at any of the test locations. Repair technician can be dispatched almost immediately to correct the problem.

Prompt repairs are essential to ensure traffic counts are made at every location. This information is vital to all phases of transportation planning. If equipment doesn't function properly, we can lose valuable information at a location for as long as a month. Before the new system, there was no way to discover equipment failure until the monthly hand-collection of information, Johns said.

Information is used to develop annual average daily traffic volumes, determine vehicle patterns and trends and for forecasting. Statistics are used to help design good, safe roads; to construct, upgrade and plan maintenance schedules for highways; and to help determine the need for improvement at railroad grade crossings.

Abolition Of Tip Credit Is Being Proposed

Representative Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls said this week that a bill to abolish tip credit has been introduced in the legislature and was discussed during a mini-session meeting of the House labor-management relations committee.

The tip credit provision in Minnesota's minimum wage law allows employers of workers who receive tips of $35 or more each month to pay those employees 20 per cent less than the minimum wage — $2.68 an hour. The rationale is that the employee makes up the difference in tips.

According to the testimony presented, the practice of tip crediting creates a number of problems. The counter attendants who testified cited the uncertainty of tip income because it reflects ups and downs in the economy.

Other witnesses said that because fringe benefits, workers' compensation and unemployment benefits are directly tied to hourly wages, the practice of setting hourly salaries artificially-low is a serious problem. They also commented that because people in the serving profession are typically female (approximately 80 per cent, it becomes a women's issue and a pay equity issue.

Sparby said the accounting director from the department of labor and industry estimated the cost of administering and enforcing the law at $75,000 to $85,000 annually. In the accounting director's opinion, it should be abolished because it is difficult to regulate and generates a great deal of confusion among both employers and employees.

A representative from a restaurant chain painted a bleak picture of restaurant closings brought on by dramatic increases in labor costs which, in turn, could cause higher prices for food and drink that would lead to severe dropoffs in business. He likened waitresses and waiters to small business entrepreneurs who can make it through their own efforts. The possibility that restaurant owners might forbid tipping altogether was also suggested as a consequence of removing tip credit.

A spokesperson for the AFL-CIO voiced labor's opposition to tip credit as being unfair to workers. In states where tip credit was removed, he said, restaurants still flourish and the practice of tipping remains — contrary to the dire predictions made by the industry.

Sparby said further hearings will be held before the committee takes final action on the bill.

Persons who have any opinion on this proposed bill and wish to share it with Rep. Sparby may write to his office at 263 State Office Bldg., St. Paul, Mn. 55155.

Waste Board Awards Grants For Disposal

Two separate solid waste resource recovery projects, together involving nine Minnesota counties, were awarded a total of more than $1.6 million in grants and loans by the Minnesota waste management board at its January meeting in Brooklyn Center.

The board voted to award a $300,000 grant and a $700,000 loan to a joint effort by Pope and Douglas counties to construct and operate a 72 ton-per-day solid waste incinerator in Alexandria. The two counties have proposed to sell steam derived from the incineration process to Land-O-Lakes Inc. for use at the firm's Alexandria plant.

At the same meeting, the board awarded a $300,000 grant and $384,000 loan to the Northwest solid waste joint powers board, seven counties in northwestern Minnesota that have agreed to jointly manage their solid waste through a system of four "transfer stations" that would collect wastes until they could be transferred to a proposed incinerator in Bagley.

Steam generated at the Bagley incinerator would be used for district heating. The grants and loans, however, were awarded to help finance construction only of the four transfer stations.

The two awards were allocated out of the board's solid waste facilities demonstration program, an $8.8 million fund authorized by the Minnesota legislature in 1980 to provide assistance to cities, counties and special solid waste management districts in demonstrating and establishing resource recovery facilities that serve as alternatives to solid waste landfills.

The awards culminated the second of four "funding rounds" the board has scheduled for the program. In the first round, the board awarded a $600,000 grant and loan combination to the city of Fergus Falls to assist in the construction of a waste-to-steam incinerator. Thus, a total of $2.2 million, or 25 per cent, of the program's available funds have been awarded.

As with the Fergus Falls project, the two recent awards are contingent upon the recipients' meeting certain stipulations outlined by the board:

— Pope and Douglas counties must provide evidence that they can garner an adequate supply of solid waste to warrant construction of the incinerator and that contracts have been completed to assure a constant flow of waste to the facility.

— Prior to receiving funding for the four transfer stations, the Northwest joint powers board — consisting of Beltrami, Clearwater, Hubbard, Mahnomen, Norman, Polk and Red Lake counties — must demonstrate that financing for the Bagley incinerator has been secured and that the counties have contracted with haulers to transport wastes from the transfer station to the incinerator. The transfer stations would be located in Beltrami, Hubbard, Mahnomen and Polk counties.

Applications from local governments for the third funding round of the grant and loan program will be accepted by the board through March 30. Projects eligible for awards include: "waste-to-energy" incinerators; composting and anaerobic digestion facilities; projects to recycle agricultural wastes, waste tires or wood wastes; "materials recovery" facilities; and transfer stations.

For further information on the solid waste facilities demonstration program or to obtain application forms and a program procedures manual, contact: Ed Welsch, Grant and Loan Officer, Waste Management Board, 7323 58th Ave. No., Crystal, MN 55428; or call (toll-free) 1-800-652-9747.

EILEEN HUTCHINSON takes shipping orders over the phone in the office of Hutchinson Transfer in addition to keeping track of the firm's books. Her husband Marv teasingly refers to her as "my right hand man," noting that "she's the one who sees that everything gets to where it's supposed to go."

Grain Storage Program Set For January 31

Area grain producers are invited to participate at a grain storage management program scheduled for Grygla on Tuesday, January 31. Workshop, sponsored by the Marshall county extension office, will begin at 9:30 a.m. in the Grygla community center.

Program will include discussions on grain storage management and aeration considerations by Harold Cloud, extension agricultural engineer from the University of Minnesota; storage losses from molds and bin heating by Dick Meronuck, extension plant pathologist, University of Minnesota; and Phil Harein, extension entomologist, University of Minnesota, stored grain insects.

Each year Minnesota farmers have storage losses from improper grain storage. Producers are encouraged to attend this update session on the management of stored grain with aeration, according to Ray Thompson, county extension director.

Thirteen Area Students On BSU Listing

Thirteen students from this area have been named to the fall quarter dean's list at Bemidji state university. Named from Thief River Falls were Brad Brown, Gary Heaton, William Reierson, James Hooker and Jean Nelson Marquis. Listed from Grygla were John Nordby and Jill Saurdiff.

Also listed were Dean Johnson and Rolland Roseland, Newfolden; Brenda Olson, Oklee; and Darla Huot, Steven Schmitz and Karen Majeres, all of Red Lake Falls.

Wildlife Art Exhibited At Winter Shows

An exhibit by wildlife artist Don Fundingsland will be presented Saturday and Sunday, February 18 and 19, at the armory during the 1984 Red River Valley winter shows.

Fundingsland began carving five years ago. His first competition, the following year, was the Midwest Decoy contest (Michigan) where he won a blue ribbon with a drake canvasback. Since that time his carvings have consistently won in such competitions as the Ward Foundation world championships, the Louisiana Wildfowl festival and the California open. He received invitations to exhibit in the Easton (Maryland) Waterfowl festival, 1982, and 1983. His work has been on display with the Allen gallery, and the Landmarks gallery, Milwaukee, WI.

Favorite subjects for Fundingsland's carvings are waterfowl, although he has completed a number of songbirds.

He is a graduate of Concordia college, Moorhead. Formerly from Crookston, he is the son of Ruth, and the late Wallace, Fundingsland. He received his master's degree from Washington university, St. Louis, MO. He lives in Waukesha, WI where he is president of Waukesha memorial hospital.

SOMETHING NEW IN EMPLOYEE BENEFITS: GROUP PERSONAL EXCESS LIABILITY
Some 14 million civil lawsuits will be tried in America's courts this year. An alarming number will result in judgments of more than $1 million.
Increasingly, the targets for many of these suits are successful business executives — those who have the most to lose.
There's a bright light at the end of the tunnel, however. Today more and more companies are offering group-marketed Personal Excess Liability Policies such as those provided by INA Aetna. Some are totally paid for by the employer. Others are made available on a co-pay basis or through an optional payroll deduction plan. All are practical, inexpensive, flexible and easy to administer.
We can't think of a better way for a company to tell its employees how much it values their success.
We represent INA Aetna. But we work for you.

SBA Loans Are Approved For 22 Companies

Celso C. Moreno, district director of the Minnesota district office of the U.S. Small Business administration, announced that $5,124,380 in SBA guaranteed loans had been approved for 22 Minnesota companies, and $456,000 had been approved in economic development loans for five Minnesota companies in the month of December 1983. The projected additional employment created as a result of these loans is 445 jobs.

Direct management assistance was provided to 18 Minnesota firms through the Small Business administrations in-house counselors or through support groups like the service corps of retired executives (SCORE), the small business development centers, and the 12 colleges participating in the small business institute program.

One loan, amounting to $160,900, was made to a minority-owned firm, making the total minority component of the December portfolio three per cent of the total loans and two per cent of the total dollars.

Forty-seven loans were paid in full during the month of December 1983.

JOCKEYING OVER 40,000 pounds into position on a railroad flatcar requires a coordinated effort between the ground crew and the crane operator. A mistake could cost someone an arm or worse. Marvin Hutchinson, (center) owner of Hutchinson Transfer works closely with his crew on just about all phases of handling these huge containers which carry products to and from ports all over the world. The Thief River Falls company handled about 1,000 of the containers last year, and Hutchinson estimates that they will move half again as many this year.

Sen. Dave Durenberger

Say the word "lobby" to someone on Capitol Hill, and I guarantee they won't think of the place you buy popcorn in the movie theater. They'll think of lobbyists, the throngs of lobbyists who represent special interests in the offices, halls and hearing rooms of Congress. From disarmament to dairy price supports, lobbying is big business and getting bigger.

Most members of Congress, I think, have a sort of love-hate relationship with lobbyists. On the one hand, they buttonhole me in the elevator when I'm trying to get to a meeting, and they orchestrate letter-writing campaigns that choke my mailroom for weeks. But on the other hand, they can give me information and opinions on issues that reflect the thoughts of the people they represent — farmers, trade associations, labor unions and business owners, just to name a few.

The main purpose of lobbyists, and it's a very important one, is to bring your interests to my door, or at least to my mailbox. But, unfortunately, that doesn't mean I always get a true picture of what my constituents want. Our political system is based on the idea that your views carry as much political weight as the next person's. But the truth is, some interests have better organization, bigger names and more money than others; and those are the interests that are going to make the biggest noise. That's political reality.

To help balance out this inequity, Congress passed laws to open the lobbying business to the public eye. Lobbyists have to disclose many types of activities and expenditures. The idea is to make everybody more accountable, so you and I know what the lobbyists are doing, and you know who's been pressuring me to take a particular side on an issue.

However, these reporting rules for lobbyists — passed back in 1946 — are badly outdated. Many types of lobbying aren't even covered, like today's "hi-tech" computerized mail campaigns. Often these massive, preprinted mailings make the source of a lobbying effort unclear. These days you can even give an organization permission to send me letters in your name, without seeing them yourself. And in the not-too-distant future, look for two-way cable TV as a lobbying tool.

At the same time, lobbying activity in Washington has practically exploded. Nine thousand lobbyists are listed in a local lobbying directory, and the actual number is undoubtedly much larger. And thanks to open meeting rules, lobbyists also have direct access to the congressional hearings and committee meetings where so many decisions are made. Now more than ever, a senior's life is crowded with lobbyists. The need for hard facts on their activities has never been greater.

The ticklish question is, how do we make sure enough information is reported, while not stopping the flow of ideas, concerns and opinions? I have a hunch that instead of the strong-arm approach, we should try relying on a better reporting system — a reporting system that lets the public know what groups are behind a campaign without getting tied up in red tape, complicated rules and new bureaucracies.

Lobbying groups are playing an ever-bigger role in our lives — my life as a senator and yours as a citizen and voter. Think of how many letters you've gotten or ads you've seen in newspapers asking you to "write your congressman" on this issue or that. The abundance of these efforts is part of our political system, but so is the public's right to know who is exerting private pressures on public issues.

CHESTNUT BRASS is the name given to this group of musicians which will present the Thief River Falls concert association's third concert of the season Thursday, February 2, at 8 p.m. in the Lincoln high school auditorium. Admission is by season membership only. The Chestnut Brass consists of two trumpets, a French horn, trombone and tuba and any given concert may include works of J. S. Bach, Scott Joplin and Duke Ellington. Works range from traditional brass music to contemporary and 20th century music to ragtime, jazz and motion pictures scores. Bruce Barrie and Mark Hoxsoll are the trumpeters, Robert Gale the trombonist, Jay Krush the tubist and George Barnett the French hornist. Earlier concerts were the Glenn Miller orchestra and "Chopin Lives!". Remaining concerts will include a Czech folk ballet Tuesday, February 28, and The Vagles March 19.

Child Neglect, Abuse Topic At BSU Meeting

Dynamics of working with families in child abuse and neglect situations will be examined in a program entitled "Working With Families in High Risk Situations," at 9 a.m. on the first day of the Northern Minnesota early childhood special education institute, in the C.V. Hobson memorial union on the Bemidji state university campus February 8-10.

The institute is designed for participants from head start, development achievement center programs, early childhood-special educations settings, and parents of preschool children. The three-day conference will also include eight additional sessions on various early childhood-special education topics.

"The majority of child abuse and neglect happens to pre-school children," said Dr. Daniel Gartrell, associate professor of elementary education and director of the child development training program at BSU.

"The session will train participants to recognize the symptoms of abuse and neglect and to know where to go for help. State law requires that early childhood workers report incidents of abuse and neglect when they become aware of them," Gartrell said.

The speakers at the session will include Lloyd Johnson, director of Beltrami county social service; Dr. Johannas Asmussen, associate professor of education and human relations instructor at BSU; and Terry Boal-Leinbach and Marlys Vollegraph, bi-county head start staff members in Bemidji.

There is a $10 registration fee for non-head start participants. The institute may also be attended for one graduate or undergraduate credit at an additional cost. Registration forms should be returned by January 30.

Forms and additional information may be obtained by contacting Dr. Daniel Gartrell, Child Development Training Center, Bemidji State University, Sanford 208, Bemidji, Minnesota 56601-(218-755-2073).

Direct management assistance was provided to 18 Minnesota firms through the Small Business administrations in-house counselors or through support groups like the service corps of retired executives (SCORE), the small business development centers, and the 12 colleges participating in the small business institute program.

One loan, amounting to $160,900, was made to a minority-owned firm, making the total minority component of the December portfolio three per cent of the total loans and two per cent of the total dollars.

JOCKEYING OVER 40,000 pounds into position on a railroad flatcar requires a coordinated effort between the ground crew and the crane operator. A mistake could cost someone an arm or worse. Marvin Hutchinson, (center) owner of Hutchinson Transfer works closely with his crew on just about all phases of handling these huge containers which carry products to and from ports all over the world. The Thief River Falls company handled about 1,000 of the containers last year, and Hutchinson estimates that they will move half again as many this year.

Washington Report

Sen. Dave Durenberger

Say the word "lobby" to someone on Capitol Hill, and I guarantee they won't think of the place you buy popcorn in the movie theater. They'll think of lobbyists, the throngs of lobbyists who represent special interests in the offices, halls and hearing rooms of Congress. From disarmament to dairy price supports, lobbying is big business and getting bigger.

Most members of Congress, I think, have a sort of love-hate relationship with lobbyists. On the one hand, they buttonhole me in the elevator when I'm trying to get to a meeting, and they orchestrate letter-writing campaigns that choke my mailroom for weeks. But on the other hand, they can give me information and opinions on issues that reflect the thoughts of the people they represent — farmers, trade associations, labor unions and business owners, just to name a few.

The main purpose of lobbyists, and it's a very important one, is to bring your interests to my door, or at least to my mailbox. But, unfortunately, that doesn't mean I always get a true picture of what my constituents want. Our political system is based on the idea that your views carry as much political weight as the next person's. But the truth is, some interests have better organization, bigger names and more money than others; and those are the interests that are going to make the biggest noise. That's political reality.

To help balance out this inequity, Congress passed laws to open the lobbying business to the public eye. Lobbyists have to disclose many types of activities and expenditures. The idea is to make everybody more accountable, so you and I know what the lobbyists are doing, and you know who's been pressuring me to take a particular side on an issue.

However, these reporting rules for lobbyists — passed back in 1946 — are badly outdated. Many types of lobbying aren't even covered, like today's "hi-tech" computerized mail campaigns. Often these massive, preprinted mailings make the source of a lobbying effort unclear. These days you can even give an organization permission to send me letters in your name, without seeing them yourself. And in the not-too-distant future, look for two-way cable TV as a lobbying tool.

At the same time, lobbying activity in Washington has practically exploded. Nine thousand lobbyists are listed in a local lobbying directory, and the actual number is undoubtedly much larger. And thanks to open meeting rules, lobbyists also have direct access to the congressional hearings and committee meetings where so many decisions are made. Now more than ever, a senior's life is crowded with lobbyists. The need for hard facts on their activities has never been greater.

The ticklish question is, how do we make sure enough information is reported, while not stopping the flow of ideas, concerns and opinions? I have a hunch that instead of the strong-arm approach, we should try relying on a better reporting system — a reporting system that lets the public know what groups are behind a campaign without getting tied up in red tape, complicated rules and new bureaucracies.

Lobbying groups are playing an ever-bigger role in our lives — my life as a senator and yours as a citizen and voter. Think of how many letters you've gotten or ads you've seen in newspapers asking you to "write your congressman" on this issue or that. The abundance of these efforts is part of our political system; but so is the public's right to know who is exerting private pressures on public issues.

CHESTNUT BRASS is the name given to this group of musicians which will present the Thief River Falls concert association's third concert of the season Thursday, February 2, at 8 p.m. in the Lincoln high school auditorium. Bach, Scott Joplin and Duke Ellington.* Works range from traditional brass music to contemporary and 20th century music to ragtime, jazz and motion pictures scores. Bruce Barrie and Mark Hoxsoll are the trumpeters, Robert Gale the trombonist, Jay Krush the tubist and George Barnett the French hornist. ## Child Neglect, Abuse Topic At BSU Meeting

Dynamics of working with families in child abuse and neglect situations will be examined in a program entitled "Working With Families in High Risk Situations," at 9 a.m. on the first day of the Northern Minnesota early childhood special education institute, in the C.V. Hobson memorial union on the Bemidji state university campus February 8-10.

The institute is designed for participants from head start, development achievement center programs, early childhood-special educations settings, and parents of preschool children. The three-day conference will also include eight additional sessions on various early childhood-special education topics.

"The majority of child abuse and neglect happens to pre-school children," said Dr. Daniel Gartrell, associate professor of elementary education and director of the child development training program at BSU.

"The session will train participants to recognize the symptoms of abuse and neglect and to know where to go for help. State law requires that early childhood workers report incidents of abuse and neglect when they become aware of them," Gartrell said.

The speakers at the session will include Lloyd Johnson, director of Beltrami county social service; Dr. Johannas Asmussen, associate professor of education and human relations instructor at BSU; and Terry Boal-Leinbach and Marlys Vollegraph, bi-county head start staff members in Bemidji.

There is a $10 registration fee for non-head start participants. The institute may also be attended for one graduate or undergraduate credit at an additional cost. Registration forms should be returned by January 30.

Forms and additional information may be obtained by contacting Dr. Daniel Gartrell, Child Development Training Center, Bemidji State University, Sanford 208, Bemidji, Minnesota 56601 (218-755-2073).

Use Caution In Giving Drugs To Market Livestock

You've heard people describe a questionable plan by saying "Don't bet your paycheck on it." And if you're a rational, prudent individual, you probably wouldn't lay more than you could afford on the dice table at Las Vegas.

Why? Because the stakes are too high, of course. Your losses would be too great.

It's much the same situation when animal health products aren't used properly. If illegal residues of animal drugs or pesticides are detected in livestock, you could lose a lot.

Animals' carcasses could be condemned at the slaughterhouse, and traced back to your farm. Serious and repeated misuse of drugs could lead to fines and prosecution — even imprisonment.

Even if you're a careful drug user, carelessness on someone else's part might take money out of your pocket. Although a very high percentage of all livestock leave the farm free of illegal residues, any hint of contamination could serve to undermine consumer confidence in our safe, wholesome food supply. That could show up in the supermarket — and eventually in the livestock markets.

Finally, keep in mind that chronic misuse of an animal health product could lead to that product being banned, or its use severely restricted. These products help make our modern, efficient system of animal production possible — and losing them could have severe consequences for the livestock industry.

A study commissioned by the Animal Health Institute (AHI), a trade association representing the manufacturers of animal health and nutrition products, estimated what the economic impact would be if key animal health products were banned.

All of the results pointed to an immediate and dramatic increase in herd and flock death losses. Feed efficiency declined, as did overall productivity. For example, half of all broiler chickens would die; total meat production would decline 16 per cent; and feed consumption per pound of gain would increase four per cent in beef, seven per cent in swine and turkeys and 13 per cent in broilers.

Loss of animal health products would translate into reduced income and higher costs for livestock producers. It would also lead to higher consumer prices for livestock products, which might prompt consumers to turn to less-expensive substitutes for animal protein.

Animal health products are profitable production tools, if used properly. Livestock producers in the U.S. can choose from an arsenal of hundreds of pharmaceuticals, pesticides and feed additives to prevent and fight disease, according to AHI.

Millions of dollars of research and testing by manufacturers have established proper dosage and use levels and sufficient withdrawal times, so that livestock at market will be free of illegal residues. But all of that expense and effort will be wasted if the products are accidentally misused.

You can avoid most problems by following these tips from the experts at the animal health institute:

Plan your livestock health program. Consult your veterinarian as you make your plans. Your veterinarian can provide advice on an overall herd health and nutrition program. In addition, your veterinarian knows which diseases and problems are prevalent in your area, and can guide your efforts toward avoiding those problems.

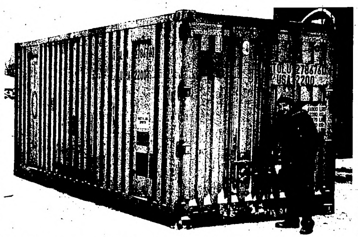
Feed or administer the right dose. The adage "if a little bit is good then a lot is better" definitely does not apply to animal drugs and pesticides. Using more product than is necessary is not only uneconomical, it can also lead to illegal residue problems. By the same token, don't underdose — a certain amount is needed to do the job.

Accuracy is important, too. With potent pesticides, for example, mixing in an extra few ounces of concentrate by mistake could lead to a residue problem.

Observe withdrawal times. Whether administering an animal drug via feed, water, bolus, injection or implant or applying a pesticide, be certain to observe the withdrawal period specified on the product label. Withdrawal period is a specified number of hours or days before the animal is slaughtered but you shouldn't count on a few days in transit to finish out the withdrawal period.

Read the label. Sometimes dosage levels and withdrawal times change. Only way to be absolutely sure you're administering the right dose is to check the label each time.

Taking time to read and follow the label — that's the key to using animal health products properly. When you do that, you'll be sure that your animals are going to market without illegal residues. And that's a much better proposition to stake your livestock investment on.



CONTAINERS for shipping which are handled by Hutchinson Transfer of Thief River Falls are specially designed to stack in the holds of ships, and often come from all over the world. Marvin Hutchinson notes that they measure 20 feet long by 8 feet wide and are 8.5 feet high, and can weigh over 40,000 pounds when loaded. His company transferred over 1,000 of the containers from railroad cars to trucks (or vice versa) last year.

REPORT

From The

Minnesota House of Representatives

by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

"I am pleased to say that we can look back on a year of hard work and accomplishment. The state of our state is much improved today from a year ago." — Governor Rudy Perpich, January 11, 1984.

With these words, Governor Perpich conveyed to members of the legislature his confidence that Minnesota state government is healthy again.

The governor presented his state of the state message during January mini-session and outlined his proposals for the 1984 session which will begin March 6.

As is the case every session, this year's tax issues will spark lively discussion. One of the governor's proposals is to eliminate the 10 per cent surtax on state income taxes. I sense that a good many of my colleagues agree with his idea, but the senate tax committee chariman has announced that he opposes total elimination of the surcharge because he doesn't want to risk additional financial problems for the state. His suggestion is that the surcharge be reduced to five per cent.

In February we will hold the last of the mini-sessions and it is the plan of the legislative leadership that most committees have the major portion of their work completed early so that the regular session will last only about six weeks.

Let me bring you up to date on some other issues which are being discussed in House committees prior to the regular session.

During last week's tax committee meeting, action was taken to raise the income tax deduction for school expenses from $500 to $850 for grades kindergarten through six and from $700 to $1,200 for grades seven through 12. The last time these figures were adjusted was in 1975.

The deduction is for tuition, textbooks and transportation expenses and applies to both public and non-public schools.

Another bill approved by the tax committee will restore $3.5 million in local government aids to 318 Minnesota cities. The aid was approved by the legislature last May, but after the session was over officials discovered the amount appropriated could not cover the amount due individual communities through the local government aids formula. As a result, the department of revenue was forced to cut aid to 318 Minnesota cities. Passage of the restoration bill by the full legislature is virtually assured because of the support of the governor, the legislative leadership, and the chairmen of both House and Senate tax committees.

The January mini-session proved to be a busy week for the House criminal justice division judiciary, as the subcommittee considered and approved several bills relating to crime.

One measure given approval by subcommittee members makes the stealing of a firearm, or the possession of a stolen firearm, a felony. Currently such an offense is considered a misdemeanor if the property is valued at less than $250. According to this bill, however, the theft of a firearm — regardless of value — is a felonious offense, with penalties of up to five years imprisonment and-or a fine of not more than $10,000.

The legislation comes partly as a response to the number of crimes committed involving stolen firearms, which are difficult to trace.

The criminal justice division also approved a bill giving the legislature opportunity to review sentencing guideline modifications before they take effect. Additionally, the bill requires the sentencing guidelines commission to adopt rules outlining the procedures for making future modifications.

Guidelines modifications, once reviewed by the legislature, become effective August 1 of that year, unless otherwise provided by law.

LONG STRINGS of flatcars specially made to handle these shipping containers are often left on a Soo Line railroad siding in Thief River Falls, to be unloaded by Hutchinson Transfer. Most of the containers are brought here empty, and are loaded onto a specially designed trailer chassis. Trucks then haul them to surrounding communities where they are filled with agricultural products such as beans or sugar. Loaded containers are then placed back on the train for transport to Montreal, where they are placed on ships and taken all over the world.

Taxpayers Can Choose From 3 Tax Forms

When taxpayers file their federal tax returns this year they can choose from three different forms depending upon their financial circumstances, the Internal Revenue service (IRS) says.

Single taxpayers without any dependents, who do not itemize their deductions, and whose taxable income of not more than $50,000 a year is from wages, salaries and tips, with interest income of not over $400, may be able to use the form 1040EZ. In addition, when filing a form 1040EZ a taxpayer can claim the charitable contribution for non-itemizers up to a maximum deduction of $25. However, taxpayers who claim extra exemptions for being age 65 or older, or for blindness, and those with divided income, cannot use the form 1040EZ.

Tazpayers who cannot use the form 1040EZ because their income is from dividends or unemployment compensation, in addition to wages, salaries and tips, and whose interest exceeds $400, may be able to use the form 1040A. When using the form 1040A, taxpayers can also claim the child and dependent care credit and take an IRA exclusion.

Of course, some taxpayers may not be able to use a form 1040EZ or form 1040A because of the amount, or kind, of income received, filing status, the need to file certain additional forms and-or schedules, or the need to pay other taxes that can only be shown on a form 1040. In addition, taxpayers may choose the form 1040 because they may want to claim itemized deductions, adjustments to income, or credits that cannot be taken when using the form 1040EZ or form 1040A.

Taxpayers generally receive the tax package which meets the needs of the form they filed in the previous year. Additional forms and schedules are available from local IRS offices, and in many local banks and post offices. Many libraries also carry copies of reproducible tax forms.

Teams Battle For Votes

Three weeks of regular season Section 8-counting games remain, and it's still anybody's guess who the top four teams will be in the first coaches' seeding vote for post-season high school hockey tournament positions.

Top four teams in the coaches' balloting, remember, regardless of their regular season positioning in the Section 8 standings, will be seeded into the Section 8 tournament quarterfinals. Remaining 15 teams will compete for the other four spots through sub-section eliminations.

It appears at this time that Roseau, Bemidji and Fergus Falls, barring a complete collapse, will likely be the leading vote-getters. Roseau and Bemidji, ranking 1-2 in the Section 8 standings coming into the week, meet Saturday in what should be an interesting match-up at Bemidji. The youthful Lumberjacks, who beat Thief River Falls 6-2 Saturday, took a seven-game winning streak into Warroad Tuesday. The Rams are unbeaten in 10 Section 8 games, 11-2 overall.

Fergus Falls, one of the preseason Section 8 favorites, appears to have recovered from some early trouble that produced five unexpected losses, to regain the form that will probably land the Otters a top-four finish among the voters.

It's that No. 4 spot that appears to be up for grabs. Bagley, Indus and Lake of the Woods ranked 3-4-5 behind Roseau and Bemidji in the Section 8 standings to start the week. But the coaches will bypass them to vote for one of five other contenders — Crookston, Moorhead, East Grand Forks or Thief River Falls. Lake of the Woods and Brainerd are darkhorse candidates.

A simple matter of a winning streak would get that fourth spot for any of those teams, but it obviously won't be that easy for any of them since the field — thrown out of whack a bit by the ever-growing list of injuries throughout the section — appears to be awfully balanced.

Thief River Falls was expected to be a Section 8 contender, but the Prowlers, like a number of other teams, have been bitten by the injury bug that has kept them from reaching their full potential. First, they started the year without one of their top defensemen in Brian Johnston. When he finally overcame the leg problems that plagued him, two forwards went out with shoulder injuries — first Tim Bottem and then Saturday night Rick Spong.

Still, Thief River Falls' schedule could be condusive to a strong finish. The Prowlers should rate at least even with Moorhead, Crookston, Hallock, Detroit Lakes and Warroad the rest of the way, and a home game against rival Roseau Feb. 4 should bring out the best in them. A Feb. 17 regular season-ending game against Fergus Falls will not count in the Prowlers' Section 8 standings since it comes after the Feb. 14 cutoff date.

Sub-section play gets underway Feb. 18-20. Section 8 quarterfinal doubleheaders will be played in the Thief River Falls sports arena Feb. 24-25 at 6:30 and 9 p.m. Single semifinal games will be played Feb. 27-28 at 7:30 p.m. Section 8 championship game will be played here Fri., March 2, at 7:30 p.m.

Northmen Eye Playoff Spot

Despite a current eight-game losing streak, the Northland community college hockey team isn't out of the Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) state playoff picture.

Four of the six MCCC hockey-playing schools will be involved in the new state playoff format this winter when the league will be playing two-game, total-game semifinal series at two different sites instead of a single-site, four-team playoff bracket used in the past. Those first round winners, matching the fourth place regular season finisher at the site of the regular season champion and No. 3 at No. 2, will meet in the state playoff finals the weekend of Feb. 24-26 in another two-game, total-goal series.

Hibbing and the University of Minnesota-Crookston, currently 1-2 in the standings, meet this weekend in Hibbing. Rainy River is a close third, with the Voyageurs hosting Northland this weekend.

Meanwhile, Northland, Mesabi and Rochester are struggling to collect wins. After playing at UMC tonight (Wednesday), then in International Falls Saturday and Sunday, Northland finishes its 1983-84 regular season schedule with two-game series Feb. 3-4 here against Mesabi and Feb. 11-12 at Rochester. The Northmen swept the winless Norsemen 10-5 and 9-8 earlier this year in Virginia. They play Rochester just twice, making each game worth four points in the MCCC standings.

By beating Mesabi and Rochester, the Northmen, 5-8 overall and 3-8 in the MCCC standings, can earn a playoff berth.

NCC Teams Will Tackle League Foes This Week

Tonight (Wednesday) the Northland community college basketball team would like to make an extremely close Northwest Division race even closer when the Northmen play an 8 p.m. Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) game at Fergus Falls.

Current Northwest Division standings, based upon play against MCCC Northeast Division opposition, show Fergus Falls at 4-0, Northland and Brainerd 3-1 and the University of Minnesota-Crookston 2-2, with UMC expected to join the Northmen and Red Raiders at 3-1 shortly since Hibbing has confessed to using an ineligible player in a victory over the Trojans earlier this winter and will hand over a forfeit.

Tonight's Northwest Division opener will be a critical test for both the Northmen and Spartans, who have dominated the four-team grouping in recent years. Once again, the top two finishers in each of the four MCCC divisions across the state — Northwest, Northeast, Central and Southern — will compete in the state tournament, scheduled to be held Feb. 23-25 at Normandale.

"If we play well, it will be interesting," said Northland coach Chet Engelman about tonight's confrontation, "but we've been inconsistent and a little shaky in our last three outings."

Northland's 3-1 MCCC mark includes wins over Itasca 82-77, Hibbing 99-66 and Mesabi 94-87, along with a 58-52 loss to Vermilion Saturday when the Northmen blew a 15-point second half lead.

Northland, 9-4 overall, will complete its scheduling assignments against Northeast Division teams Friday when the Northmen host Rainy River at 8 p.m. Rainy River will then be at UMC Saturday, while Brainerd visits Hibbing and Fergus Falls goes to Itasca that same day.

Coach Deb Jacobson's Northland women's basketball team, 6-6 overall and 1-3 in the Northwest Division standings, will play an identical schedule as the men's team, playing a 6 p.m. game at Fergus Falls tonight and taking the court at 6 p.m. Friday against Rainy River.

Meanwhile, the Northland hockey team will have another tough three-game assignment this week with a 7:30 p.m. game at the University of Minnesota-Crookston tonight and a weekend series against Rainy River in International Falls.

Northland, coached by Tony Dorn, Jr., has lost eight straight MCCC hockey games after starting the year 3-0. One of those wins came against UMC when the underdog Northmen stunned the defending state champion Trojans 5-4. But that came back on Dec. 7. In two meetings since then, UMC has romped to 13-6 and 15-5 wins. Tonight finishes the regular season four-game series between the two rivals.

Rainy River and Northland will meet Saturday at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday at 1 p.m. The Voyageurs swept the Northmen by nearly identical 10-5 and 10-6 scores earlier this winter in Thief River Falls.

Northland, after its Wednesday night drubbing at home against UMC, lost both ends of a weekend series in Hibbing, dropping a 9-5 game Saturday night and a 13-3 verdict Sunday afternoon.

Judy Graff (right) and Karla Schires (34) weren't able to stop Puetz, who had a game-high 19 points, on this play. Connie Grovum (left) and Michelle Olson of the Prowlers trailed the play. Thief River Falls won 54-30.

Prowlers Beat Tigers 54-30

One half of basketball was enough to net Thief River Falls a 54-30 girls high school basketball win over Greenbush Monday, but it wasn't enough to please Prowlers coach Tom Schafer.

"First half was all right," he said. "We did everything we wanted to do; we moved the ball well on offense and we played good defense. But the second half . . ."

Sophomore center Michelle Puetz scored 16 of her game-high 19 points in the first half, with junior forward Michelle Olson getting 10 by scoring on a steal and a fast break lay-up with 17 seconds left, as Thief River Falls rolled up a 35-12 halftime lead against the overmatched visitors.

First portion of the third quarter didn't go all that badly, either, for the Prowlers, but then their play deteriorated even though Thief River Falls still owned a 47-21 spread as the quarter ended.

"We played one-half of a quarter of basketball in the second half," pointed out Schafer. "The fourth quarter was a disaster."

Still, it was a win, improving the Prowlers' record to 8-5 and snapping a three-game losing streak. They host Fertile-Beltrami Tuesday.

Puetz' 19-point effort could have been a lot higher, but her success at hitting the short turnaround jumpers in traffic on a steady diet of passes from her teammates didn't carry over to the free throw line where the left-handed shooter was just 1-for-11. Olson finished the game with 18 points. Nobody on the youthful Greenbush roster, which featured eight freshmen and only two seniors, hit double figures.

Thief River Falls shot only 30 per cent from the field (23-for-77) and just 31 per cent from the free throw line (8-for-26). Greenbush didn't fare any better, shooting 22 per cent from the field (10-for-45) and 42 per cent from the line (10-for-24).

In building that halftime lead, when the Prowlers broke open a 12-6 first quarter with a 23-6 second quarter scoring blitz, Thief River Falls was 15-for-39 from the field while Greenbush was just 4-for-18.

Thief River Falls, after building a 40-19 rebound advantage through three quarters, wound up with only a 49-38 edge on the boards. Greenbush turned the ball over 26 times and Thief River Falls lost it 11 times.

Ponies' Offense Beats Prowlers' Defense 64-54

Was it a good offensive effort by Warren or a poor defensive effort by Thief River Falls Tuesday that led to a 64-54 high school basketball win for the Ponies' on the Prowlers' court?

A little bit of both, according to the coaches.

"I thought it was a good game for us. I thought it was one of the better offensive efforts we've had this year," offered Warren assistant coach Bob Mattson, subbing in the post-game interview for head coach Gary Schuler, who rushed off immediately after the final horn for a meeting in Bemidji. "Once we got our transition game going, things went pretty well offensively for us."

In the other lockerroom, Thief River Falls head coach Tom Hunt thought his Prowlers were at fault. "We played real poor defensively at times," he said. "They took advantage of our defensive mistakes."

Thief River Falls fell to 3-9 with the loss. The Prowlers host Mahnomen, another team struggling in the won-loss column, Friday. Warren is 5-3, snapping a brief two-game losing streak that saw the Ponies drop their last two starts to East Grand Forks and Argyle — the first time a Schuler-coached Warren team lost back-to-back games since 1974, pointed out Mattson. "This was a big win for us," he said.

For 2½ quarters the Prowlers made a real game of it. The two teams played to a 13-13 first quarter draw, and the Prowlers, led by guards John Brandt and Mark Bondy opened up a 20-15 lead when Bondy hit a short running jump shot with 4:59 left in the first half. But Warren then out-scored Thief River Falls 13-2 over the next three minutes to grab a 28-22 lead on a three-point play off a fast break by Mike Carlson with 1:25 to play.

Bondy pulled up on a short jumper to close out the first half scoring with 1:07 on the clock as the Prowlers stayed within 28-24. Bondy, with 10 points, and Brandt, with 8, netted 18 of the 24 first half Thief River Falls points.

"I thought our guard play offensively was good," confirmed Hunt. "That was the best Bondy has looked offensively this year."

Thief River Falls stayed close for the first part of the third quarter, with a jumper from the side by forward Jeff Langan keeping the Prowlers within 32-30 with 3:54 remaining.

But another Warren burst, this one starting with another three-point play by Carlson, netted nine straight points and a 41-30 cushion until Brandt hit one from half-court at the buzzer, making it 41-32.

"We didn't play very consistently — offensively or defensively," mentioned Hunt. "We had droughts offensively two or three times."

Brandt scored on a fast break to start the fourth quarter as the Prowlers crept within 41-34, but they never got closer. Carlson and 6-4, 215-pound Mike Turgeon both slipped underneath for easy baskets to open up a 45-34 gap, and the Ponies would match that 11-point margin seven times over the final five minutes before a free throw by Turgeon gave them their biggest lead, 64-52, with 10 seconds to play. Bondy finished it off by banking one off the glass at the buzzer.

For the final 3½ minutes the Warren lead was either 11 or nine points as the teams matched points — the Ponies getting their final 11 at the free throw line. While Warren finished with just one more field goal than Thief River Falls, the Ponies were a productive 18-for-24 at the line — including 11-in-a-row during an 11-for-14 fourth quarter. The Prowlers were 10-for-16 at the line for the game — 6-for-9 in the fourth quarter when all three misses came on the front end of bonus opportunities.

A balanced Warren attack showed Turgeon with 15 points, Mike Carlson 14, Mark Carlson — the only senior in the starting line-up — 11 and Pete Myszkowski 10. Brandt, a senior, finished with 20 and Bondy, a junior, had 14.

Thief River Falls shot 37 per cent from the field (22-for-59) while Warren shot 49 per cent (23-for-47). The Prowlers had a 34-21 rebound edge, which included 20 offensive boards to just six for the Ponies, and also topped the turnover figures 17-14.

A 21-10 Thief River Falls first half rebound edge kept Warren's fast break offense in check, acknowledged Mattson, who also said the Ponies' switch to a zone defense in the second half played a big role in the outcome.

Cold-Shooting Skippers Beaten By Roseau 61-43

Roseau made amends for an unexpected season-opening 44-37 loss to Middle River back on Dec. 2 with a 61-43 North Border Conference triumph over the host Skippers Tuesday in area high school basketball action.

"That was our worst home performance in a long time," reported disappointed Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "It was pathetic."

Roseau jumped out to a 16-5 first quarter lead as Middle River connected on just one of 12 field goal attempts. The Rams maintained that 11-point spread at halftime, 34-23, and at the end of the third quarter, 40-29, when the Skippers went through another cold shooting streak, 2-for-13.

A balanced Roseau attack found Greg Welin scoring 16 points, Jeff Endrizzi 14, Neal Feldman 12 and Lonnie Kompelien 10. Tom Neumann was the only Middle River scorer in double figures, matching Welin for game-high honors at 16.

"Roseau played fairly well," mentioned Sparby. "They worked the ball inside on us to Feldman and Welin."

It was actually the third meeting of the year between the two, who also met in Thief River Falls Christmas Classic tournament, with Roseau winning that nonconference encounter 67-50.

Middle River shot just 29 per cent from the field for the game (13-for-44). The Skippers were more proficient at the free throw line where they were 17-for-22 (77 per cent). Roseau was just 3-for-10 at the line.

Now 6-5, Middle River will wait until Tuesday to visit Grygla.

MCC . . . . . 82
Strandquist . . . . . 38

Marshall County Central collected its fifth straight win, a 44-point romp at Strandquist Tuesday, 82-38, to set the stage for a Saturday afternoon North Border Conference showdown with Lake of the Woods at Baudette.

Ken Krohn and Chad Swan each had 14 points while Scott Gustafson and Randy Dahl each had 10 as the Nordics overwhelmed the Warriors in improving their record to 8-3. Marshall County Central had quarter leads of 16-8, 46-21 and 60-30.

"We played good pressure defense, especially in the second half," pointed out Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland, noting that the Nordics limited the Warriors to just 18 second half field out attempts.

Marshall County Central shot 51 per cent from the field (40-for-79) while Strandquist shot only 31 per cent (14-for-45). The Nordics were 2-for-4 from the free throw line, with the Warriors going 10-for-14. Marshall County Central had a 37-21 rebound edge.

Ueland admitted the Nordics have been looking ahead to Saturday's confrontation with Lake of the Woods for a long time. The only meeting of the year between the two North Border Conference leaders will undoubtedly decide the league title, and with it a No. 1 post-season tournament seed.

"Whoever wins that one will be mighty hard to get out of that first seed," acknowledged Ueland.

It'll be a match-up of Marshall County Central's running game and outside shooting skills against the slower, but stronger inside game of Lake of the Woods, led by high-scoring Joe Krouss underneath.

"If we can shoot well we can play well," explained Ueland, "but we've got to create tempo to be effective."

Goodridge . . . . . 59
Erskine . . . . . 57

Goodridge, after a string of three consecutive frustratingly close losses, finally won a close one Tuesday as the Huskies rallied to beat host Erskine 59-57.

Losses by Oslo, Red Lake Falls and Oklee in the Huskies three previous starts were by a combined total of seven points.

Last night, though, it was the Huskies' turn to pull one out at the end. Two clutch free throws by Mike Scheef in the final minute put Goodridge ahead 58-57, and Scheef grabbed a rebound at the end on the defensive boards that led to a single free throw by Tony Wiseth with just two seconds to play.

After a poor first half, the Huskies came out and played a strong second half, reported Goodridge head coach Dan Brinkman.

Erskine led 16-14 at the end of the first quarter and opened up a 27-20 halftime lead. Goodridge rallied, though, to tie it 41-41 by the end of the third quarter.

Jared Sjulestad scored 20 points for the Huskies, and his defensive play was instrumental in keying the second half Goodridge rally, said Brinkman. "He played a whale of a ball game both offensively and defensively," he said.

Goodridge shot 43 per cent from the field (26-for-61) and was 7-for-11 at the free throw line. Erskine shot 44 per cent from the field (18-for-41) and was a busy 21-for-29 at the line. Goodridge had a 38-25 rebound edge, and the Huskies held their turnovers down to 12.

Goodridge, 5-7, will be at East Grand Forks Sacred Heart Friday.

Prowlers Edge EGF 2-1

Thief River Falls went back above the .500 mark once again Tuesday with a 2-1 Section 8 high school hockey win at East Grand Forks.

Both teams entered the game at 6-6 and both squads faced injury problems, but the win went to the Prowlers, who have now won five of their last six games while the Green Wave lost for the fourth straight time.

A first period goal by Jim Geatz and a second period goal by Ryan Bakke provided the Prowlers with a 2-0 lead. John Schacher scored a third period goal for the Green Wave to make it close at the end.

"We're certainly happy our kids responded as well as they did to the line changes," noted Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "We had enough good offensive opportunities to score more goals, and we played well defensively. We feel we deserved to win."

With wings Tom Bottem and Rick Spong both shelved by shoulder injuries, Grand revamped the Prowlers' forward lines, skating Bob Huot with Scott Novak and Mitch Semanko; Joe Blankenfeld with Bakke and Steve Wiskow; and Al Erickson with Chad Bottem and Bob Breiland.

East Grand Forks faced personnel changes, too, with injuries to the top three Green Wave centers — Todd Boushee, Chad Grassel and Ryan Christiansen.

First meeting of the year between the two produced a 4-3 East Grand Forks win here Jan. 3.

Thief River Falls is scheduled to host Moorhead Saturday at 7:30 p.m. at the sports arena. A threatened teacher's strike in Moorhead, scheduled to start Thursday, puts the status of that game up in the air, however.

Spong, who suffered a slight shoulder separation in Saturday's 6-2 loss to Bemidji, and Bottem, who suffered a broken collarbone in a 7-4 Jan. 14 win at Moorhead, are expected to be sidelined for a similar length of time, with the Prowlers hoping to get the two seniors back on the ice during the final week of regular season play and have them ready for post-season competition.

Thief River Falls junior varsity is 6-6 after beating East Grand Forks 4-2.

— TRF Youth Hockey —

by John Michael Anderson

Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association (TRFAHA) teams won 10 of 14 games played at home over the weekend.

Pee-Wee A

Eagles Pee-Wee A team, coached by Tim Engelstad and Jim Thompson, lost two of three games.

Thief River Falls goalie Chris Lawrence had 23 tough saves as Roseau won a well-played 6-3 Friday night game at the sports arena. Aaron Bruzek, Jeff Novak and Corey Howe scored Thief River Falls goals.

Two third period goals gave Bemidji a 4-3 come-from-behind victory Saturday. John Seaverson, Novak and Robby Coltom scored in the loss.

Defensemen Tommy Brouse, Jeremy Anderson, Chad Kleinvachter, Steve Sabo, Howe and Coltom had strong games as Thief River Falls defeated Moorhead 8-1 Sunday. Bryan Cloutier was forced to make only eight saves in goal for the winners, whose record is now 13-6 overall and 9-4 in league play.

Bantam B

Coach Scott Bergland's Bantam B team defeated Bemidji 5-3 Saturday with Chris Johnson scoring a pair of goals and Grant Larson, Tim Nelson and Shoan Nelson adding single goals.

Sunday, five third period goals by Thief River Falls produced a 6-3 win, erasing a 2-1 second period deficit. Johnson had a hat trick, with Lynn Skibicki, Sean Krepp and Shawn Heinze adding single tallies.

Bantam Merchants

Thief River Falls Bantam Merchants posted a 6-3 win over Moorhead, with Jason Brunkhorst scoring three goals and Aaron Wedul, Jeff Brouse and Paul Bolin scoring once each. Wade Forsberg and Brad Jorstad shared the goaltending duties.

Bantam A

VFW Bantam A team, coached by Rory Anderson and Jeff Tunberg, improved its record to 11-9 with wins over Baudette and Bemidji, along with a loss to Moorhead.

Thief River Falls defeated Baudette 1-0 Friday with eight third period goals. Steve McGann's hat trick, Blair Lund's two goals, and single goals by Jason Lee, Jon Dondelinger, Jason Hallamek, Troy Hanestad and Mitch Welebski helped Thief River Falls to the lopsided victory.

Two-goal performances by Jon Thompson and Jon Matson, plus single goals by Chad Gunderson, Kent Hamre, Blair Lund and Jason Boughton helped Thief River Falls defeat Bemidji 8-1 Saturday.

Two third period goals helped Moorhead to a 4-3 victory Sunday. Thief River Falls led 3-2 after two periods of play on a pair of goals by McGann and a single tally by Thompson. Shayne Anderson and Kraig Anderson shared the weekend goaltending duties.

Squirts

Outstanding goaltending by Hardees' Jay Lusignan, TG Sporting Goods' Barry Dowers and Coke's Ross Boldt led Thief River Falls In-House Squirt teams to a pair of weekend wins in a three-game series against Bemidji In-House opponents.

Hardees defeated Jerry's Baits of Bemidji 2-1 with Shane Skeim and Tim Stengrim scoring goals.

Ross Dalzell, Corey Trickle and Trevor Haugen scored single goals as TG Sporting Goods edged Kroll's of Bemidji 3-2.

Bemidji Core-Craft overcame a game-long 1-0 deficit with three late goals in a 3-1 win over Coke. Nathan Hunt scored for Coke.

Pee-Wee B

Coaches Dale Wennberg and Bill Ramsey's Pee-Wee B team defeated Bemidji 5-0 and Moorhead 14-3.

Goalie Karl Heinrichs got the shutout, making nine saves in the Bemidji game, which Thief River Falls completely dominated. Paul Kezar scored twice, and Roger Anderson, Todd Mack and Jerod Kolden added single goals.

Thief River Falls completely overwhelmed Moorhead Sunday, out-shooting the visitors 49-17 for a 14-2-2 record, 12-1-2 in league play.

Special Thanks

I would like to thank team general managers Warren Hanestad (Bantam A), Jon Lindquist (Bantam B), Don Howe (Pee-Wee A), Larry Lee (Pee-Wee B) and Lynn Tele (Bantam Merchants), and Mike Lundgren (Squirts) for all their help in putting this article together.

Youth Hockey Week

Remember that Feb. 4-11 is National Youth Hockey Week. TRFAHA is planning many activities to honor the players, coaches, parents and the many volunteers who help make amateur hockey the great sport it is in the United States.

Women's City Playdowns Set This Weekend

Women's city curling playdowns will be held this weekend at the Thief River Falls Curling Club.

Competition will start at 2 p.m. Saturday. Semifinals will start at 12-noon Sunday, followed by the finals at 2:30 that afternoon.

Thirty-two women on eight teams will take part in the event. Skips include Sharon Stauss, Sylvia Sjoberg, Cookie Ault, Connie Omdahl, Roberta Weigand, Marge Corliss, Snookie Bondy and Joan Lubitz.

Public is invited to watch the playdowns from the heated lounge that overlooks the ice sheet. A stag dinner for women will be served at 7 p.m. Saturday at the curling club. Cost is $3.75. All area women interesting in curling are invited to make dinner reservations by calling either the curling club at 681-3202 or Laura Mattsson at 681-7722. Newcomers will be offered free curling instructions after dinner.

"The women curlers would like to increase the numbers participating in the sport and are looking for new members," reports Mattsson. "Curling is a team sport which can be enjoyed by women of all ages. The women curlers hope to see some new people come out to watch this weekend and learn about curling."

Regular women's league play takes place Tuesday evenings at 7 and Wednesday mornings at 10. "You do not need to know anything about curling to become a participant," stresses Mattsson.

Area Girls Basketball . . .

Huskies Shade Warriors 44-42

Sheri Vettleson sank a clutch free throw near the end of the game Monday to insure a 44-42 Goodridge win over Strandquist in area girls high school basketball action at Strandquist.

It wasn't a real good performance, admitted Goodridge coach Patti Johnson, but it was a victory — just the third in ten outings for the Huskies. "We didn't have a good night," said Johnson. "We turned the ball over way too many times (31 turnovers)."

Goodridge had quarter leads of 7-4, 19-11 and 29-25. Strandquist made it close by hitting of 12 fourth quarter free throws.

Diana Troska scored 16 points and Jennie Boutain 14 for the winners. Lynn Opheim of Strandquist took game-high scoring honors with 17 points.

Goodridge shot 33 per cent from the field (17-for-51) and was 10-for-20 at the free throw line. Strandquist shot 27 per cent from the field (17-for-62) and was 8-for-20 at the line.

Next outing for the Huskies will be Thursday at Red Lake Falls.

Paula Rantanen scored 24 points Tuesday as unbeaten Middle River handled host Grygla 56-30.

Middle River began with an 11-6 first quarter lead and had a 30-10 halftime cushion. Second half belonged to Grygla, said Middle River coach Tom Neibauer, although the Skippers maintained their 20-point lead, 41-21 at the end of the third quarter.

"We played okay in the first half, but in the second half we got out-hustled," said Neibauer. "We were out-coached in the second half."

"We played a lot better in the second half," confirmed Grygla coach Mike Gast.

Middle River shot just 33 per cent from the field (20-for-61) — the Skippers' lowest figure in two years, according to Neibauer. But Grygla did even poorer, shooting just 18 per cent (10-for-56).

Unbeaten in 13 games, Middle River will be at Badger Thursday. Grygla, 3-10, hosts Roseau Monday.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our parents and grandparents Clarence and Myrtle Skyberg, whose birthdays would have been, Dad - Jan. 7th; Mom - Dec. 21.

When we are sad and lonely,
And everything goes wrong,
We seem to hear your whispers,
"Cheer up and carry on."
Each time we see your picture
You seem to smile and say,
"Don't cry, we're only sleeping,
We'll meet again some day".

Dairy Animals Thrive On Sunflower Seed Use

by George Marx

Whole sunflower seeds can be fed to both growing and lactating dairy animals. The seeds are high in energy and protein and can serve as a supplement for these nutrient components in dairy rations.

Most of the energy is derived from the high fat content of the seed which averages 40 to 42 per cent in oil-type varieties. This fat (oil) has a caloric or energy value of 2.25 times that of carbohydrates such as starch and sugar. Confectionery-type sunflowers are lower in oil content (24 to 26 per cent) but average 22 to 24 per cent protein whereas oil-type varieties average 18 to 19 per cent protein.

There are a number of situations when it might be beneficial to consider feeding sunflower seeds. During times of low market prices they can compete in feed value with other conventional grains. Insect and weather damaged seeds, culls, broken and odd-sized seeds may also be available for feed uses and many times are more economical than conventional grains in terms of both protein and energy value.

Experiments were conducted both at the University of Minnesota, Crookston and North Dakota state university, Fargo on the utilization of sunflower seeds in dairy cattle diets. Very little information on the nutritional value of modern day sunflower varieties exists in the literature.

The primary objective was to determine optimum intake levels of sunflower seed for desirable growth in Holstein heifers and for milk production performance in Holstein cows. Secondly, blood serum, rumen fluid and milk were analyzed for a number of components including total lipids, triglycerides, fatty acids, cholesterol, protein and lipoprotein, ureanitrogen and glucose on various levels of sunflower seed intake.

Heifers were fed total rations containing 0, 10, 20 and 30 per cent whole sunflower seeds whereas lactating cows were fed sunflower seeds at 0, 10, 20 and 30 per cent of the grain ration. Some small changes were noted in the amounts of various fatty acids in the rumen fluid: Protein in the blood serum decreased slightly with increasing sunflower seed in the diet. Other milk, blood and rumen fluid parameters were mostly unchanged between the various treatments.

Milk production was higher in all groups fed the sunflower seeds as compared to control cows fed no sunflower seeds. The cows consuming the grain with 10 and 20 per cent sunflower seed were the most efficient in converting feed to milk. Milk fat percentage was not affected by ration nor were any unusual flavors or odors detected in milk.

Growing heifers utilized sunflower seeds in their diet very effectively and improved feed efficiency as compared to control animals fed diets without sunflower seeds. However, rate of grain was not different among rations. Total dry matter intake was down slightly by heifers that received the sunflower seeds but total energy intake was similar.

The high concentration of fat (energy) in the seeds compensated for the lower dry matter intake which explains the similar caloric intake. The higher fat containing rations did increase most lipid constituents in the blood with a slight lowering of blood glucose.

In summary, sunflower seeds can be fed to dairy cows at levels up to 30 per cent of the grain. However, high-producing cows fed high levels of grain should be restricted to 20 per cent sunflower seeds in their grain ration or a maximum of six to eight pounds of seeds daily to stay within maximum fat levels of eight to 10 per cent recommended for dairy cattle diets.

Higher levels of fat in the total diet could cause feed refusals and digestive upsets in cows. In these studies, sunflower seeds did not adversely affect ration digestibility nor were any health or feeding problems observed at these levels of intake. Milk composition was not changed substantially with consumption of sunflower seeds.

The high fiber content of the whole seed which ranges from 19 to 26 per cent may be an advantage in rations consisting of a number of low fiber feeds to help maintain a minimum crude fiber level of 17 per cent in the total ration which is required for lactating dairy cows. Young growing heifers also respond well to sunflower seeds in the ration. Sunflower seeds can be used to replace a portion of other feed sources when available economically. These sunflower seeds can be fed either whole, rolled or coarse ground to dairy cattle.

In recent years, a substantial amount of feed-grade sunflower seed has become available for feeding for a number of reasons. Acreage has increased dramatically. Some dought situations, delayed planting and early frost, weather, disease and insect damage has resulted in much of the sunflower seed becoming unsuited for the export market and human consumption. This gives livestock producers an opportunity to capitalize on these available feed-grade seeds for animal utilization.

Also, in times of low market prices, feeding sunflower seeds may be an alternative marketing outlet for this crop.

NEWS Of Education

A recent $5 million grant for 1,000 computers for America's inner-city high schools is expected to narrow the "computer gap" between rich and poor school districts.

The grant was made by the Xerox Corporation to the National Urban League. In making the announcement, David T. Kearns, president and chief executive officer of Xerox and the League's newly-elected chairman, stressed the importance of the ability to use a computer for most jobs in the future.

"Electronic literacy," said Kearns, "will be necessary to do most every job in the future." He pointed out that most of the 130,000 computers currently in the public school system are in well-to-do districts. More than half of the poorest schools have no computers.

Kearns emphasized that the grant be used for academic programs, not just for vocational training.

"The ability to use a computer should help kids do their job — the computer should not necessarily become their job," he added.

Guidelines for the grant specify that the schools selected be in major urban centers, have large minority populations and show a financial need.

The computers to be used in the grant will be the Xerox 820-II desktop models, introduced last year as a personal computer system for offices.

A committee representing Xerox, the League and the education community will select the schools to receive the grant computers. Their placement will begin in 1984.

Kearns told the Urban League: "I believe today's black children are the seed crop for what could be the most successful generation of blacks ever, because they are part of the electronic age — an age of unprecedented opportunity for people with the right training."

Computer training will be part of many urban high school programs, thanks to a five million dollar grant.

State's Crop Production In 1983 Declines

Mostly because of the PIK program, Minnesota's 1983 corn production of 367.1 million bushels fell 50 per cent below 1982, reported the Minnesota agricultural statistics service in its year-end annual crop report released January 13. This is the smallest corn crop since the drought of 1976.

Acres for grain at 4.4 million are the least harvested since 1969. Average yields of 84 bushels per acre are the lowest since 1976 and were precipitated by corn borer and wind damage. The crop, however, escaped most of the drought damage encountered by many major corn producing states.

Production of 1983 soybeans at 147.2 million bushels is down 14 per cent from the 1982 record. Yields of 32 bushels per acre are down 3.5 bushels from a year earlier.

Minnesota's 1983 wheat crop totaled 78.96 million bushels, 38 per cent below a year ago. By types, production of spring wheat fell 38 per cent to 75.11 million bushels, the lowest level since 1973. Yield slipped three bushels from 1982 to 37. Durum yield of 35 bushels per acre was down four bushels from a year ago; production of 1.23 million bushels was down 60 per cent. Winter wheat production at 2.63 million bushels was 12 per cent lower than a year earlier but yield of 35 bushels per acre was up one-half bushel.

Oats production of 76.95 million bushels was 28 per cent below 1982 and yield at 57 bushels per acre fell nine bushels. The large decrease was mainly due to the PIK program acres that were not harvested. This is the smallest production since 1934.

Barley yield of 53 bushels per acre was five bushels lower than 1982. Production of 41.34 million bushels was down 19 per cent from a year ago.

Minnesota rye growers produced a crop of 4.96 million bushels, 50 per cent more than 1982. The average yield was 31 bushels per acre.

All sunflower acreage of 250,000 was down 54 per cent from 1982. Production of 264.3 million pounds was down 61 per cent while average sunflower yields of 1,106 pounds per acre were down 223 pounds from 1982. Non-oil production at 11.3 million pounds is the lowest since estimates started in 1967.

Flax production of 938,000 bushels is down 43 per cent from 1982.

Sugarbeet tonnage of 4.63 million tons is down three per cent from a year earlier. Yield of 18 tons per acre is down .9 ton per acre.

All hay production in Minnesota at 8.32 million tons is up one per cent.

Dry edible bean production was revised in late December, based on survey data collected from farmers on our acreage and production survey, after dry edible bean estimates were released in early December. Dry bean production is now estimated at 452,000 hundredweight, down 52 per cent from 1982. Acreage is estimated at 42,000 planted and 39,000 harvested. Yield per acre is estimated at 1,160 pounds.

Say Colorectal Cancer Curable In Early Stage

According to Arnt Aune, public education chairman of the American Cancer society's Pennington county unit, 2,300 Minnesotans will get colorectal cancer this year and an estimated 1,000 will die of the disease. When colorectal cancer is detected and treated in an early, localized stage, he notes, the five-year survival rate is 76 per cent for colon cancer and 73 per cent for rectal cancer.

A national American Cancer society study on colorectal cancer attitudes of the public found that Americans over age 40 tend to pay these organs scant attention and have them checked infrequently by their physicians. Most incorrectly thought the disease usually is found in an advanced stage and that a permanent colostomy was a normal result of colorectal cancer.

"Three tests, the digital rectal and proctosigmoidoscopy tests performed by a physician and the stool blood slide test performed at home, can detect the disease in early stages," Aune said, "when it is definitely curable. Also, permanent colostomies are necessary for only 15 per cent of patients whose cancers are found and treated in early stages."

Aune said that the American Cancer society is placing a priority on educating people about colorectal cancer and any group or organization interested in a program on this subject may contact him at 681-4601 or 681-2833.

State Provided Summer Jobs To 4,565 Youth

Summer jobs were provided for 4,565 Minnesota young people — most of them from low-income families — in 1983 through a special state youth employment program, a newly issued Minnesota department of economic security report shows.

Report points out that 69 per cent of the youth employed were from families meeting federal lower living standards. ($9,900 annual income for a family of four.)

Department of economic security allocated $3,861,067 under the youth employment program to cities, counties and other political subdivisions of the state. Report indicates that $3,724,510 was spent for wages and directly related costs, such as social security and workers' compensation insurance. Less than one per cent of program funds were spent on administration, the report stated.

For a number of years the youth employment program has helped finance two unique activities, both of which were continued in the summer of 1983.

One is the youth conservation corps hearing impaired camp which provided employment for 20 hearing impaired youth at Tettegouche State Park. The camp, operated by the Minnesota department of natural resources, is the only one of its kind in the nation. Minnesota youth employment act provided funds for the youths' wages.

The second special activity is the mini office program operated by the job service division of the Minnesota department of economic security. Young people hired with funds from the youth employment program were trained to operate mini job service offices for youth under supervision of a professional job service staff member. Most often, these small offices were located in rural areas too small to have full-scale job service offices.

In 1983, 100 youth were hired to run the mini offices. The report estimated that about 16,000 youth found jobs — the majority of them in the private sector — as a result of the mini office program.

Truckers and farmers are reminded to do as much of their hauling as possible before the load limits go on. Limits will be in effect at the same time restrictions are on Trunk Highways. If the roadway is not posted, the legal limit is 10,000 pounds gross weight per axle.

Heavy loads are proven to be the major factor in road damage. Please notify the Sheriff's Office or County Engineers Office if you know of any overloads - it will protect roads your money helped build.

A PLAYFUL KITTEN

The little ball of fluff that is a kitten amuses us as he chases a piece of string when it is pulled across the floor. Perhaps he stalks it warily or wiggles in anticipation as he waits for it to come near. Or maybe he tumbles over himself as he makes a mad dash when it moves erratically out of his reach. We can't help but laugh.

Sometimes it can be easy to get caught up in chasing a bit of string. It may be fun. It may be good exercise but that isn't enough. We sense there are larger values we need in our lives. The church can help us focus on what is really important as we strive for maturity. Life is more than a ball of fluff, no matter how charming.

HERE'S HOW!

MAKE YOUR OWN CREAMY SOUPS

A creamy soup, made extra rich with versatile evaporated milk.

Soups have long been an outstanding part of the world's cuisines. To a cook, soups can be one of the most versatile components in meal-planning. Because of the wide range of ingredients, soups can add their own special flair to any occasion.

Many good cooks like to add the richness of evaporated milk to their creamy soups because it's twice as rich as bottled milk.

If you haven't been using evaporated milk in cooking, you may not know that it's actually fresh cow's milk that has been concentrated by the evaporation of half the water.

One half-cup of PET Evaporated Milk is equal in nutrients and milk solids to one cup of Vitamin D-enriched milk. Since evaporated milk is concentrated, it may be substituted in recipes calling for light or heavy cream, with fewer calories. When diluted with an equal amount of water, it can replace milk in any recipe.

Try this recipe for a gourmet soup.

BROCCOLI MUSHROOM SOUP

- 1 package (10 oz.) frozen chopped broccoli, unthawed
- 1 tablespoon minced onion
- 2 teaspoons chicken stock base
- 1 cup water
- 1 can (10 1/2 oz.) cream of mushroom soup
- 1 cup sour cream or imitation sour cream
- 1 cup PET Evaporated Milk
- Salt and pepper to taste
- Fresh parsley or chopped broccoli

Combine broccoli, onion and chicken stock base with water in medium saucepan. Cover and simmer for 15 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Cool. Stir in mushroom soup. Pour small quantities into blender jar and puree. Add sour cream and puree again. Add evaporated milk, salt and pepper. Heat to steaming, but do not boil. Garnish with parsley or chopped broccoli. Makes four servings.

Short Tips On Shortening

Ever wonder why a recipe calls for shortening instead of butter or margarine?

The fact is, in many cooking situations shortening offers better results and at less cost than these other products.

For example, test kitchen home economists know that a cake made with shortening will have a lighter texture and rise higher than butter cakes. To get moist and chewy cookies—the type most people prefer—they'll once again select shortening over butter or margarine when developing new recipes.

Cookbook authors and food editors know that home cooks are busy people, who prefer speedy and convenient recipes. Since butter takes a while to soften before it can be easily blended with flour, sugar, etc., they'll call for shortening instead. Shortening is always ready to use because it's stored at room temperature.

Food professionals also believe that shortening outperforms butter for frying. This classic cooking technique requires a high temperature of 365°F. Unfortunately, at 300°F or lower, butter or margarine begins to splatter, scorch or smoke, causing fried foods to stick and burn, while shortening does not.

Another consideration when creating new recipes is cost. Most professional recipe testers try to choose ingredients that offer the best flavor, performance and value. In recipes where both a rich buttery flavor and the cooking superiority of shortening are required, these professionals often call for Butter Flavor Crisco. This new shortening provides all the advantages of shortening, plus it delivers delicious buttery flavor at a fraction of the cost of butter and some margarines.

But you don't have to be a professional home economist to use Butter Flavor Crisco in your own recipes. Simply substitute the buttery flavored shortening for the amount of butter or margarine specified and follow the recipe's instructions for cooking time and temperature. You'll get professional results and save money, too.

They'll Take The Help

Not surprising were the results of a "survey" taken in the Twin Cities metro area regarding hazardous waste disposal in Minnesota. The results showed that 67 per cent of the 1,101 residents surveyed favored having the state pay part of the cost of building hazardous waste treatment facilities.

But the survey conducted through a research unit of the University of Minnesota's sociology department prefaced its questions by pointing out that three-fourths of the state's hazardous wastes are generated in the Twin Cities metropolitan area. We feel that the introduction to the survey may well have prejudiced the results.

Such a contention may be somewhat supported by the next questions in the survey and their responses. Fifty-five per cent favored a tax on industry to support such subsidy while only 13 per cent favored general state taxes and 18 per cent favored a combination of the two.

It is generally agreed that areas of manufacturing where hazardous waste is created are beneficiaries of the industry and the employment it provides. It would seem reasonable that those who benefit from such industry should also share most heavily in the responsibility that goes along with it. But there is apparently not the same willingness to pay for the solutions as there is to accept the benefits of activity which causes the problem.

Survey results can be interpreted however the pollster wants to interpret them. If the questions were asked in the sequence reported, then it would appear to us the people polled are saying: "Let the state pay the costs rather than the metro area; but rather than assess the state in general (including us), let the manufacturers pay for the problem themselves."

While 72 per cent of the people surveyed considered hazardous waste to be very important and another 24 per cent considered it "pretty important," only 34 per cent thought hazardous waste processing facilities should be located in the Twin Cities while 56 per cent did not. If the question of locating a hazardous waste disposal site in the Twin Cities was asked in the survey, the results were not published by the state waste management board staff. The omission in either case may be worthy of notation.

Hazardous waste disposal is a statewide problem without a doubt, and the state government should be expected to share in the solution. That means all taxpayers in the state have a responsibility to pay part of the cost. But we strongly believe that the major burden should be carried by the areas and the people who also have the greatest benefit. The survey results announced by the WMB don't indicate that commitment from the people of the metro area. They'll take the help — and keep the profits, too.

Someday They Will

Following editorial is from the Pine River Journal:

One of these days you'll shout: "Why don't you kids grow up and act your age?"

And they will.

Or: "You guys get outside and find something to do!"

And they will.

"Don't slam the door!"

And they won't.

You'll straighten the boys' room neat and tidy, discard the gum and candy wrappers, pick up the dirty socks, stack the toys on the shelf, make the bed, sweep the floor and yell, "Now I want this room to stay this way!"

And it will.

You'll prepare a perfect dinner with a salad that hasn't been picked to death and bring out a cake with no finger marks on the icing, and sit down to a beautiful table with everything in its place and you'll say: "Now there is a meal fit for company!"

And eat it alone.

You'll say: "I want some quiet around here! Shut off that darned TV, turn down the radio, quit banging around, quit fighting. I want some privacy!"

And you'll have it.

No more plastic tablecloths stained with spaghetti, no more dirty bedspreads, no more plastic sheets to protect the mattresses from wet bottoms, no more toys on the floor to fall over. No more school books on the table, no more dirty rings in the bathtub, stopped up sinks, washer run-overs, shirts burned with iron marks, bubble gum in the blankets.

No more anxious nights under a vaporizer tent, no more colic, diarrhea, whooping cough, running noses, wet clothes, colds.

No more sand in the beds, food on the rugs, marks on the walls, dirt in the furniture, paint on the windows, no more smashed fingers.

Imagine: No iron-on-patches, wet knotted shoestrings, lipstick with a point on, old socks that don't match up, no babysitter on New Year's Eve.

Imagine: Seeing a steak that isn't ground, no more meetings, no back-to-school nights, no more cavities, no more car pools.

Think about it! No more broken toys on Christmas Day, no more gifts for you made out of toothpicks and library glue, no more sloppy oatmeal kisses, no more giggles in the dark, no more scraped knees, no responsibility.

Only a reflecting voice crying out: "Why don't you kids grow up?"

And the silence echoing, "We have!"

The Sky Is Falling— Again!

Subject of acid rain, its affect on the environment and the control of its purported source, pops in and out of the national and state news from time to time. A few weeks ago we ran an editorial with one writer's comment about how clear lakes in the East were devoid of fish or other life, purportedly as a result of acid rain.

Columnist Paul Harvey takes a different viewpoint in a recent column appearing in the Minnkota Messenger, publication of the Minnkota Power cooperative in Grand Forks, ND. Here is what he writes:

The newest Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) study concludes that "acid rain" is such a menace that we must spend $21 billion to control it. Perhaps.

But, before we rescue our northeast states lake fish at a cost of $6,000 a pound, let's be sure. We've let the false-alarmists scare us into some frightful extravagance in the past. In 1978, HEW reported that 38 per cent of all cancer in the United States could be traced to on-the-job chemicals.

It was 1981 before two of the world's leading epidemiologists found that report to be grossly erroneous. In 1979, a spokesman for the National Cancer Institute testified before Congress that the incidence of cancer was rising toward epidemic proportions.

A 1981 statistical review discovered, on the contrary, our nation's incidence of cancer was not increasing. In 1980, 700 families were evacuated from the area of Love Canal after the EPA reported "chromosomal abnormalities in some residents."

Last May, the Center for Disease Control updated that research and found "No excess chromosomal abnormalities of any sort." And the other informal health studies alleging that residents of the Love Canal area suffered increased epilepsy, birth defects, cancer. . :

Those studies have since been refuted also.

In 1969, the FDA issued its dramatic alarm about cyclamates, got cyclamates banned from broad consumer use. "It caused bladder cancer in lab rats," they said. Twenty-one separate studies since affirm that even sustained feeding of high dosages of cyclamates to lab animals produces no significant increase in bladder cancer.

A 1978 Canadian study of bladder cancer claimed it could be caused by saccharin. Two years later the NCI decisively refuted those findings. DDT was banned in 1972, suspected of causing liver tumors in mice. In 1978, the NCI announced "No such evidence exists."

Now we come to the new scare — acid rain!

Now the EPA says coal-fired factories in our Midwest are killing fish and forests in our Northeast. However, four other studies affirm that "soil formulation" and "vegetative succession" have more to do with acidification of soil and water than anything falling from the sky.

And besides, one active volcano produces more upper-altitude pollution in one year than all our factory smoke. The jury is still out. This time let's wait until the jury is in before we spend $21 billion fixing something that isn't broken!

Borrowed Nonsense:

The jet was returning from Miami to Minneapolis when the captain's voice sounded over the loudspeaker: "I have some good news and some bad news, ladies and gentlemen," he said. "The bad news is that the temperature in Minneapolis-St. Paul is 30 degrees below zero. The good news is that due to strong head winds we will be arriving 20 minutes late."

---

The reason justice was performed more swiftly in the settling of the West was because they suspended the badman instead of the sentence.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

1983: Federal Spending Continues to Rise

Herman Talmadge, the former Democratic senator from Georgia, once observed that "virtually everything is under federal control nowadays except the federal budget." Sen. Talmadge is no longer in the U.S. Senate, but the problem he highlighted remains with us today.

For despite the repeated claims of many Washington politicians — claims echoed in the media — that social spending has been slashed to the bone, a review of federal spending during the last year shows a federal budget that continues to grow out of control.

Overall, the federal budget increased by 9.3 per cent in fiscal year 1983. To the Reagan administration's credit, this was the smallest increase in a decade, but it came when inflation was running below four per cent.

Looking at some of the key social welfare spending programs, we find that they increased even faster than the total budget between fiscal year 1982 and fiscal year 1983.

The Food Stamp Program and other nutritional programs jumped 14 per cent, from $15 billion to more than $17.3 billion. The Special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants and Children — specifically targeted to aid poor families — rose by nearly 24 per cent.

Unemployment benefits rose an astonishing 64 per cent, from $27 billion to more than $44.6 billion, while health care programs jumped 15 per cent to more than $94 billion.

And while we have heard a great deal in the press about the suffering of farmers, the total amount of taxpayer dollars flowing to farm price supports jumped more than 62 per cent to a total of more than $18 billion, and the Farmers Home Administration budget swelled 20 per cent to more than $4.3 billion.

Why then are we subjected to what, frankly, are demagogic appeals from some of those men who have put themselves forward as potential candidates for the highest office in our nation? Why are some in the media allowing such flights of fancy to pass unchallenged? Surely a profession capable of unraveling the Watergate mystery is fully capable of reading budget numbers. These are not state secrets hidden in the bowels of the Central Intelligence Agency. They are matters of public record, compiled and printed at great expense to the American taxpayer.

The politicians who promulgate the myth that federal spending on food programs, farmers and health care has been deeply cut know better. These would-be statesmen — though they may say frivolous things — are not, at base, frivolous individuals.

The answer lies in an observation made by Samuel Johnson that "a man who is angry on one ground will attack upon another." The politicians and special interest groups in Washington know that social welfare spending has increase in the past year. Their real target is the 1981 tax cut that slowed the growth of federal tax revenues into the coffers of the federal treasury. This cut off the lifeblood of the tax-and-spend politician who builds his political career and coalition on promising new programs and more expensive giveaways to, in effect, buy political loyalty. And while the so-called Reagan Revolution in government spending has not cut existing programs, it has, quietly and effectively, prevented these politicians from passing any new programs.

Thus we can expect to hear a continued chorus from the advocates of big and bigger government that Ronald Reagan and the 1981 tax cut are impoverishing the poor. It is not true, but as another demagogue from another generation once promised, if you repeat a big enough lie, often enough and forcefully enough, it will be believed.

"Everybody is Somebody in Thief River Falls"

DESTRUCTION of Dwight Syverson's trailer home was nearly complete following a fire Thursday morning. Syverson, who is single, was working at the time and the trailer was unoccupied. Mrs. Warren Saetre, a neighbor, reported the fire at 11:03 a.m. and members of the Thief River Falls fire department spent several hours extinguishing the blaze. According to Fire Chief Dave Bjorkman, the front half of the trailer had already collapsed when they arrived and there was no chance of saving any of the contents. "We poured about 4,000 gallons of water on it and the fire was actually brought under control rather quickly," he said. Three trucks were used, with one pumping and two hauling water to the site, located about a mile south of Thief River Falls on the Dale Stark property east of Highway 32. Although the trailer was insured, Syverson estimated that the uninsured contents would cost about $4,000 to replace. While the fire appeared to have started in the vicinity of the front porch which contained a wood stove (visible near the center of the picture), Syverson said the walls were sheetrock in that area and the chimney was of block construction. "I have no idea how it could have started," he said.

Mexico, Colombia Trade Diplomats Hosted Here

Thief River Falls served as host to a delegation of South American diplomats on Wednesday and Thursday at the request of State Representative Wally Sparby, who made arrangements to tour a number of local firms in the interest of promoting international trade and good will.

The diplomats, Jorge Alvarez, Colombian consulate, and Ramon Moreno, Mexican consulate arrived in Thief River Falls at about 8 p.m. Wednesday evening, transported from their Minneapolis offices by Harlan Christianson, director of the office of educational services for the Minnesota House of Representatives. They were also accompanied by Paul Haemig, an acquaintance from Minneapolis who served with the Peace Corps in both countries.

Representative Sparby hosted a reception for the delegation at Lon's restaurant, which was attended by representatives of the city, chamber of commerce, Jobs Inc., and local businesses. Following introductions and dinner, brief welcoming remarks were made by Mayor Carlson, and Representative Sparby explained that the visit was intended to show the diplomats that there was more to Minnesota than just the Twin Cities. He also commented that he hoped the visit would be instrumental in fostering trade with business firms in the area.

Dave Strong, manager of Forsberg's Inc. explained that his company was already doing business in both countries, having several separators in use by coffee companies in Colombia, and having a manufacturing branch in Mexico. He added however, that they would welcome additional trade.

Alvarez commented that his office in Minneapolis is there for the purpose of making introductions, both for American companies wishing to sell in Colombia and for those who would like to buy Colombian products. He noted that his country is considered a "third world" country, with a high level of property. However, it is famous as an exporter of coffee, fruit, "and, unfortunately, drugs." He noted that the governments of both the United States and Colombia were working to reduce the level of the drug problem, but added, "As long as there is someone willing to buy, there will always be someone willing to produce."

Alvarez said that it was to this area's advantage to trade with third world countries since we are a large exporter of food. "People in these countries spend over 92 cents of every dollar for food. This can be a tremendous advantage to a country such as this which can produce much food." He also noted that there was a great need for modern American technology in his country. "Picking coffee still must be done by hand," he said, "but there is much need for more modern ways in other areas."

Moreno noted that Mexico also is considered a third world country. He spoke at length on the problems involving "illegal aliens," and the contribution which their employment in this country makes to Mexico's economy.

Legislators See Perpich Address

Most IR legislators praised Gov. Rudy Perpich's state of the state address last week, which urged lawmakers to provide tax relief and make some governmental reforms, according to a special report to the Times from North Star News Service.

However, it is the governor's own DFL Party that controls the legislature, and early signals indicate Perpich may have some tough going there.

Three major tax relief items are on the governor's agenda:

(1) Repeal of the 10 per cent income tax surcharge as of July 1, reducing state revenue $230 million;

(2) Transfer of the state motor vehicle excise tax from the general revenue fund to highways and transit, retroactive to July 1, reducing surplus general revenue by $93 million; and

(3) Repeal of the unitary tax on business done across state lines, expected to have little impact on state revenue.

Perpich also stressed looking at governmental reform, including:

— Reducing the number of statewide constitutional offices;

— Reducing the size of the legislature; and — Court unification, consolidating the duties of county and district court judges at a single, district court level.

Rep. Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls thought the governor's message was a "good, positive approach to running the state."

However, he differed with the governor on the issue of lifting the motor vehicle excise tax into the state highway construction fund. "We should put that into tax relief, instead of road construction," he said.

Sparby said he was looking forward to the recommendations of the Latimer tax commission. "In fact, I wish their report was done, so we could make some revisions sooner," he said. "The state's tax structure certainly needs to be addressed."

Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer can see where the governor is coming from. "The income tax burden is a question raised when the governor goes out of the state seeking new business," he said.

However, Stumpf feels it is too early to be sure the state is

Locate Bellerud At Park River

Al Bellerud of Thief River Falls, who had been reported missing by his family early Friday morning, was located at Park River, ND, early Saturday evening, according to the Thief River Falls police department.

Local law enforcement officials had been involved in the search and a request for information had been issued to the public. Friends of Bellerud in Park River notified the family here of his whereabouts by telephone about 6 p.m. Saturday.

Group Formed To Retain Land Areas In State

Protection of state-owned consolidated conservation area lands is the top priority of a coalition of Minnesota sporting, environmental and outdoor organizations formed recently.

"The committee to save Minnesota public lands has been resurrected to head off what appears to be a renewed interest in selling off hundreds of thousands of acres of state lands," says Al Farmes, Minnesota conservation federation member and chair of the new committee.

Lands in question are tax-forfeited lands acquired by the state between 1929 and 1933 in exchange for paying off bonds for seven northwestern Minnesota counties. They were later designated "consolidated conservation areas," to be used for fish and wildlife management and other conservation purposes. Subsequent legislation allowed counties to designate some of these lands for agricultural use, petition the department of natural resources (DNR) for reclassification and then sell them to private interests.

In recent years, as local governments have felt the increasing pinch of budget shortfalls, pressure on the DNR has mounted to reclassify these lands and put them back on the tax rolls. The committee was first formed in 1976 in response to this pressure. Rekindled efforts to sell these lands has prompted the re-forming of this committee.

"Hundreds of thousands of conservation lands have already been sold," says Farmes. "What remains represents some of the finest wildlife habitat in the state, as well as land that is crucial to the proper management of Minnesota's water and timber resources. These lands serve as a valuable resource to all Minnesotans as long as they remain in the public domain," Farmes notes. "That is where they should stay."

According to Farmes, the committee to save Minnesota public lands does not oppose all future sales of consolidated conservation area lands. However, the group believes that a limit must be placed on how much more may be sold in order to remain true to the original intended purpose these lands were set aside for.

"In the case of Marshall and Roseau counties," adds Farmes, "we feel these limits have about been reached and very little, if any, more conservation lands should be sold there."

Committee to save Minnesota public lands will be monitoring legislation in the

Child Print Cards To Be Out This Week

Informational letter and identification card for Operation Child Print, the voluntary fingerprinting program for students in kindergarten through fifth grade, are being sent home with local public school students this week.

Police chief Ken Froschheiser said the cards are to be completed and signed by the parent and returned to school with the child no later than February 6. Fingerprinting will be done in the schools on an announced schedule by local law enforcement officers and their assistants.

The police chief emphasized that the cards containing the child's fingerprints will be returned home with the students and no file will be kept either in the schools or the law enforcement center. Because the program is on a voluntary basis, no child will be figerprinted unless the permission card is signed.

Chief Froschheiser suggests that parents attach a photo of their child to the identification card and update information and photo on an annual basis. He will comment on the program, sponsored by the Minnesota chiefs of police association, in his "Chief's Corner" column in the Times prior to February 6.

Additional photos and a listing of winners in the competitive events will be published in the Wednesday edition of the Times.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Jody Ann Brennan Weds Kevin Olsen In Illinois

Jody Ann Brennan, a former Thief River Falls resident and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wheadon, Salt Lake City, Utah, and John Brennan of Grand Forks, N.D., became the bride of Kevin August Olsen, son of Rev. and Mrs. Charles Olsen of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., at a recent ceremony at the First Presbyterian church in Deerfield, Ill.

Officiating at the ceremony were Rev. Charles O. Olsen, father of the groom; Rev. Greg Sorenson, Springfield, Ill., brother of the bride; and Rev. Hawley Wolfe of the First Presbyterian church.

At the organ was Dr. Morris Faugerstrom of Trinity college, accompanied by trumpeter Elaine Shaw, Springfield, a member of "Gabriel". They played "Trumpet Voluntary," by Henry Purcell, as the bridesmaids entered, and Wagner's "Bridal Chorus" as the bride was escorted to the altar by her brothers: Steve Sorenson, Chicago, Ill., and Rev. Greg Sorenson.

As the 225 guests entered the sanctuary, Rev. and Mrs. Sorenson sang "Author of Love," Mrs. Sorenson sang "Sometimes," and a trio composed of the Sorensons and the groom's brother, Steve Olsen, Atlanta, Ga., sang "Treasures". Before the scripture reading, Rev. Sorenson sang an original composition, "Now That He's a Man and She's a Woman;" and prior to the exchanging of the vows, led by the couple's brother and father, an original composition, "Dear Kevin and Jody," was sung by Steve Olsen. After the lighting of the unity candle, the Sorensons and Steve Olsen sang "He had Chosen You for Me.". The recessional music by Dr. Faugerstrom and Elaine Shaw included Mendelsshon's "Wedding March," and Purcell's "Trumpet Tune."

Acolyte was Keri Saxby of Lake Zurich, Ill., a friend of the couple. At the guest book was Lisa (Feigal) Anderson, of Highland Park, Ill., and once of Thief River Falls.

The bride was attired in a Victorian styled gown of white peau de soie and lace, designed and created by her sister-in-law, Linda Sorenson. She carried a bouquet of silk pink and white roses, interspersed with stephanotis.

Dianne Maki, Salt Lake City, a cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Patti Malberg and Liz Brodin of Thief River Falls, friends of the bride; Kathy Saxby, Lake Zurich; Kris French, LaCrosse, Wis.; Jackie Bjorge, Mundelein, Ill.; Kathy Tenney, Lincoln, Neb., all friends of the couple, and Martha Joy Campbell, State College, Pa., sister of the groom. All wore violet taffeta gowns with slanted waistlines and ruffled capes. Their bouquets were of white carnations, pink roses, babies' breath and purple statice.

The groom was attired in a black tuxedo with tails and wore white gloves. His best man was Joey Burton, St. Charles, Ill., a friend of the couple. Groomsmen were Steve Sorenson, brother of the bride; Brad Sulke, Freeport, Ill.; Keith Gurley, Wichita, Kans.; Scott Erickson, Sheboygan, Wis.; Kurt Anderson, Highland Park, Ill.; Dave Zivo, Oak Lawn, Ill.; Bob Southworth, Hinsdale, Ill.; and Keith Bjorge, Mundelein, Ill., all friends of the couple.

In keeping with the bride's chosen colors, the mother of the bride wore a deep violet princess styled, floor-length gown. The groom's mother was attired in a melon colored floor-length gown with a full skirt and drape.

Honored guests were Mrs. Violet Holmos, Newfolden, grandmother of the bride, and Mrs. Harold Mortenson, Hershey, Pa., grandmother of the groom. Both were attired in shades of violet, and were escorted by their grandsons: Steve Sorenson and Steve Olsen, respectively.

Among the guests attending the ceremony were Mrs. Rodney Brodin and Mrs. Larry McDowell of Thief River Falls, and Mr. and Mrs. Everett Willimek of Bemidji.

A reception and catered dinner at the Lake Zurich community church reception center followed the ceremony. Host and hostess were Mayn and Kay Saxby of Lake Zurich, friends of the couple. Anne Openshaw and Becky Hopkins cut the cake, Liz Hill was at the punch bowl, and Debbie Saxby presided at the gift table. All are residents of Lake Zurich, and all are friends of the couple. Reception music and entertainment was provided by Rev. Sorenson and "Gabriel."

After a wedding trip to Cancun, Mex., the couple is at home at 1359 St. John's avenue, Highland Park, Ill., 60035. Both are graduates of Trinity college, Deerfield, Ill. Photo, Jenart Studio, Des Plaines, Ill.

Zehlian Club Invited To Pre-Caucus Workshop

At a meeting of the Zehlians of the General Federation of Woman's clubs, held January 18 at the Mary Evans home, an invitation was read to attend a pre-caucus workshop.

The workshop, scheduled for March 3, from 11:00 a.m., to 4:00 p.m., at the Crookston University school of Technology, is planned for the purpose of stimulating interest in the precinct caucuses set for March 20. It was noted that many women do not attend caucuses due to the lack of: feeling the need to attend, feelings of being uninformed, or the feeling that a single voice cannot serve as a catalyst to stimulate action. Since the Precinct caucus is the grassroot foundation in politics, and since the majority of women are concerned about peace, pay equality, freedom from sexual harassment and job discrimination, professional identity, education of children, quality health care at reasonable cost, and full equality for women under all circumstances, women of all political parties are encouraged to attend the workshop. Speakers, film strips and group participation will be included on the agenda. Lunch and coffee will be available. To cover all expenses, a registration fee of $5.00 will be charged.

Information regarding the workshop was received from Fran Stromberg, Edith Etter, both of Thief River Falls, Audrey Eichof, Crookston, and Carmelle Pinsonneault, Warren, who attended the Minnesota Women's Consortium task force conference on precinct caucus involvement held in St. Paul.

President Margaret Saetre presided at the meeting and urged the members to attend the Shakespearean Sampler at Northland Community college. Bunny Dondelinger reported on the Health Service Clinics; and Gretchen Beito gave information on the Art Adventure program, stating that with two new volunteers, all classes in grades 2-5 will be participating in the program. Bonnie Poissant read the article in the Women's club magazine reporting on the Special Olympics held in Baton Rouge, La., for the mentally and physically handicapped.

The next meeting of the Zehlians will be held February 1 at 1:00 p.m. at the Dee Forney home. Guest speaker will be Jean Johnson of Alvarado, who will give information on painting with oils. All members are encouraged to attend that meeting and to bring a guest.

Head Start Training Set At Bemidji

An early childhood-special education institute consisting of intensive training sessions for those involved in head start, developmental achievement center programs and early childhood-special education will be held at Bemidji state university (BSU) February 8 to 10.

Child development training program of BSU is sponsoring the event through grants from the regional access project of Portage, WI and the head start training programs. Conference is a part of BSU's developing program in early childhood-special education.

Regional access project works with early childhood-special education for all of the head start programs in a six state area. Head start is a program serving low income families with pre-school children and pre-school children with handicaps.

Training sessions will be presented by early childhood special education experts from the regional access project and Bemidji state university. Some of the topics of the sessions are language, family situations, discipline, emotional difficulties and experience deficits in young children.

"There is much research indicating that when adults work educationally with pre-school children having handicaps and special needs, there is real and substantial progress made," said Dr. Daniel Gartrell, associate professor of elementary education and director of the child development training program at BSU. "The conference will address the most recent research in this area and allow for an interchange of ideas between experts from many fields of experience."

Three day conference is open to anyone interested in early childhood-special education and participants may attend any or all of the full and half day sessions. Registration forms are due on January 30 and there is a $10 registration fee for non-head start participants. University credit, on either the graduate or undergraduate levels, is also available. Cost information is available at the university center for extended learning.

Registration forms and additional information may be obtained by contacting Gartrell or Nancy Aitken, project coordinator, at (218-755-2073), Child Development Training Program, Bemidji State University, Sanford 208, Bemidji, MN 56601.

Beginning April 1, the new claims processor for North Dakota will be Blue Cross of Washington-Alaska. Toll-free number for this agent will be announced at a later date.

To receive swift and efficient service, 1st Lt. Kalonick made the following suggestions. When calling the local claims processor, have ready: (1) the sponsor's social security number or VA file number; (2) the names of the patient and health care provider; (3) dates of care; (4) the amount of the bill and date that the bill was mailed; and (5) the claim number, if available. He also suggested that calls be made during the less-busy times. Call late in the morning, or mid-afternoon, (in the claim processor's time zone) on a Tuesday, Wednesday, or Thursday.

School Safety Patrol Week Is Proclaimed

Governor Rudy Perpich is proclaiming February 12 to 18 as school safety patrol week in Minnesota, honoring the 40,000 girls and boys who stand out on that corner in all kinds of weather guarding the lives of Minnesota's school children.

This year's school safety patrol week commemorates the sixty-third anniversary of the establishment of Minnesota's first school safety patrol by Sister Carmela, whose patrol members guarded the crossing of Kellogg Boulevard and Summit Avenue in St. Paul in 1921. In 1933, the Minnesota legislature authorized establishment of school safety patrols throughout the state.

"In Minnesota, no child has been killed at a crossing guarded by a school safety patrol member," Leonz Schooley, Minnesota safety council's manager of traffic safety, points out.

Erskine Care Center Plans To Rebuild

Pioneer memorial care center, Erskine, has submitted a CON application for the construction of a new facility to replace the existing 69-bed facility. This project also includes the construction of a 20-unit congregate-supervised living apartment complex for elderly housing which will be adjacent to the care center.

Total construction cost is estimated to be $2,240,000. Anticipated method of financing the project is the issuance of industrial revenue bonds maturing in 25 years. Expected interest rate is 12 per cent.

Pursuant to Minnesota certificate of need statutes, Agassiz health system agency (HSA) will hold a public hearing on the proposal Thursday, Feb. 23, in Grand Forks, ND, at the Ramada Inn beginning at 1 p.m. Persons in the area having opinions regarding this proposal are invited to attend this meeting and submit written or verbal testimony. The Agassiz HSA will then make recommendations on this project to the Minnesota state health commissioner.

A transcript of this hearing can be provided, at the expense of the individual requesting it, if such request is received by Agassiz HSA at least three days prior to the hearing.

TRFalls Among Eligible Cities For HUD Grant

Senator Rudy Boschwitz has announced that 56 Minnesota cities, including Thief River Falls, are now eligible to apply for urban development action grants (UDAG's) from the U.S. department of housing and urban development (HUD).

The cities are eligible for UDAG's as a result of a change in the criteria for application. The rate of unemployment was added to that criteria, thus allowing more cities a chance to apply.

"We have been working with HUD since last summer to ensure that unemployment was included as criteria. I'm happy to see that the change was accomplished and these small communities can now participate in the UDAG program," Boschwitz said.

Among the cities which now qualify are Alvarado, Gonvick, Greenbush, Karlstad, Plummer, Stephen, Strathcona, Thief River Falls, Warren and Warroad.

Legislators Give View On Gov-Address

back on good financial footing.

"We don't want to slip back into a blueprint for disaster. We need to get rid of the surcharge as fast as possible, but if we don't actually have that surplus we better not give it back," Stumpf said.

Stumpf feels the same way about diverting general revenue dollars from the state excise tax to a special highway fund. "I would want to be cautious and prudent," Stumpf said. "Let's look at the April revenue projections. You can make all kinds of promises, but what is important is what you can deliver."

Although his comments reflect considerable disagreement with Perpich, Stumpf said he was glad the governor took note of continuing financial difficulties for farmers. Stumpf noted the problems are particularly severe in northwestern Minnesota.

"The recovery has not hit in northwestern Minnesota. What we need is more federal help. We hope the governor will continue to help us with that."

The strongest opposition to tax relief proposals appears to be coming from Senate DFLers, many of whom pushed hard earlier to get the tax measures passed. They point out that Perpich is making recommendations based on projections, not money in the bank.

Many of the senators urge caution when they recall earlier financial difficulties, emphasizing they do not want to adopt another 'blueprint for disaster.'

Some legislators say they would like to spread tax changes to other areas, such as property tax relief and restored aids to education and local governments.

It appears Perpich can expect a little more support from House members anxious to reduce taxes a few months before their 1984 election battles. State senators do not face election contests until 1986.

Colombia And Mexico Trade Reps Hosted

"In this country, these people are doing work that no one else is willing to do," he stated.

Moreno commented that when he was in college in Mexico City, he had been required to study Marxist doctrines, with strong emphasis on the "evils of capitalism." He said that since being in this country, he had gotten a different view of American industry and its benefits. He also emphasized a willingness to serve as a contact for persons or companies wishing to do business with Mexico. He said that the new government in his country appeared to be having captured the confidence of the people, and felt that the economy was showing an improvement.

Following the reception, the delegation spent the night at the home of Representative Sparby and toured a number of Thief River Falls firms on Thursday. Among those visited were Forsbergs Inc., Hydra-Mac Inc., and the St. Hilaire sunflower processing plant.

In a letter to the editor of this newspaper, Harry A. Sieben Jr., Speaker of the Minnesota House of Representatives, expressed his thanks to those who hosted the cousuls, commenting, "It is so important that these staff persons who are dealing daily with their citizens see all of Minnesota. The initiative shown by your community in seeking to 'show yourself' to the world is a model for us all. The program provided in Thief River Falls was most impressive."

1984 session that might affect the future of consolidated conservation lands. Group will also encourage efforts by the DNR to designate these lands under a protected status, such as wildlife management areas, state forests or parks.

"We hope to generate massive public support for the preservation of Minnesota's public lands by educating citizens and informing the legislature on the value of these resources," concludes Farmes. "The sale of what remains of the consolidated conservation area lands will benefit a few existing landowners and speculators. Retaining them will benefit all Minnesotans with an interest in wildlife, forest and water conservation for generations to come."

In addition to Marshall and Roseau counties, consolidated conservation lands are in Aitkin, Koochiching, Beltrami, Lake of the Woods and Mahnomen counties.

Statewide organizations represented on the committee to save Minnesota public lands include: Minnesota conservation federation; Minnesota public interest research group (MPIRG); Sierra club, North Star chapter; Izaak Walton league, Minnesota division; Minnesota deer hunters association; Minnesota waterfowl association; and the Audubon society, Minnesota chapter.

Many In State Report IRAs Incorrectly

A quarter of a million Minnesotans have individual retirement accounts (IRAs) and at least 25,000 of them incorrectly reported their IRA contributions on their Minnesota income tax forms last year, according to the state revenue department. As a result, they owe the state an estimated $5.75 million in additional tax plus interest, according to Arthur C. Roemer, state revenue commissioner.

Problem in reporting IRA contributions stems from the fact that Minnesota law generally doesn't allow taxpayers to subtract as much of their IRA contribution from their income as the federal government allows, Roemer said.

When people with IRAs start filling out their Minnesota tax forms, many of them are required to add back to their Minnesota income some — or all — of what they subtracted from their federal income for their IRA contributions.

Number of Minnesotans who have IRAs has more than tripled in the last two years — from 73,000 in 1981 to an estimated 250,000 in 1983.

So part of the problem may also be due to the fact that reporting IRA contributions was a completely new phenomenon for many Minnesotans last year.

Of the 25,000 Minnesotans who incorrectly reported their IRA contributions, about 15,000 failed to add back any of their contribution to their Minnesota income, Roemer said. On the average, each taxpayer in this group is going to owe the state about $250 in additional tax and interest.

The other 10,000 Minnesotans did add back some of their IRA contribution, but not as much as required. These taxpayers will have to pay an average of about $100 each in additional tax and interest, he said.

Roemer said that the 25,000 taxpayers who owe additional tax as a result of mistakes in reporting their IRA contributions will soon be getting letters from the revenue department bearing the bad news.

Identifying taxpayers who have not reported their IRA contributions correctly on their Minnesota tax forms is now a fairly easy matter for the revenue department. The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) supplies the revenue department with a list of all Minnesotans who filled in an amount for an IRA contribution on their federal income tax forms.

Then the revenue department looks at the Minnesota tax forms of everyone on the list to see if they added any of their contribution back to their Minnesota income, Roemer explained.

To avoid problems in reporting the IRA contribution on the 1983 Minnesota tax form, read page five of the state income tax instruction booklet carefully, Roemer advised.

Bill To Push Payments Of Child Support

Children of single parents are being cheated out of billions of dollars in child support payments for their food, clothing, shelter and education, according to Sen. Dave Durenberger.

Calling the magnitude of unpaid child support a "national disgrace," he and Sen. Bill Bradley of New Jersey have introduced legislation to strengthen collection efforts.

The bill is the same measure that unanimously passed the House (H.R. 4325) in November of 1983 and is similar to provisions contained in Durenberger's economic equity act (S.888).

Among other things, the Bradley-Durenberger bill would:

—Require states to withhold wages from a parent who is at least one month behind in child support;

—Require states to withhold state income tax refunds from parents who are behind in child support payments to families receiving federal aid to families with dependent children (AFDC); and —Change the federal "incentive" payment to states that now collect delinquent child support for AFDC families, so that the incentive is also extended to non-AFDC cases.

Durenberger called the statistics on delinquent child support payments "shocking," noting that as many as one out of three parents never make a single court-ordered child support payment. Delinquent payments amounted to $3.8 billion in 1981.

"Because the vast majority of all single-parent families in the United States are headed by women, this bill will also help curb the frightening trend toward the 'feminization of poverty,' " he said.

Durenberger said the "national disgrace" of unpaid child support requires "a national effort — one that cuts across political affiliations, political ideologies, gender, age and income."

Young Artists Exhibit Work At NW Library

As part of an effort to recognize young artists, Thief River Falls community arts council is featuring artwork of local school students in an exhibit at Northwest regional library. Featured through February 6 is the work of Karla Espe and Marie Gonsorowski.

Espe, 12, is the daughter of Glenn and Marge Espe, Thief River Falls, and is a seventh grader at Franklin middle school. Karla's portion of the display includes a painting of a lake at dusk, a pen and ink drawing of a Teddy bear, a multi-textured clown collage and a clay project on wood bark. In addition, a red, orange and yellow kite pinata of Karla's is displayed behind the library check-out desk.

Her other interests include swimming, running and cooking. Commenting on her feelings about art in school, Karla says, "I like the things we do in art because we can use our imagination and create new things."

Gonsorowski, 14, is the daughter of Conrad and Betty Gonsorowski, rural Thief River Falls, and is an eighth grader at Franklin middle school. Marie's portion of the exhibit includes a pencil drawing of a barn, a piece of pottery, a woodburning on a box, and a ceramic cat and kitten. Also displayed is a 4-H poster designed by Marie, who has won 4-H awards in poster competition.

Marie lists 4-H as one of her major interests, along with basketball, ice skating and, of course, art. Marie says she enjoys art "because you can do whatever you feel like and it's relaxing and enjoyable."

Karla and Marie are art students of Don Fugleberg and Marilyn Adams at Franklin middle school.

Bill Is Offered For Long-Term Disaster Loans

Congressman Arlan Stangeland has introduced a bill (H.R. 4610) to provide long-term relief for farmers in counties hit by three or more consecutive years of natural disasters.

The bill incorporates the provisions of an amendment he offered to the drought relief act last fall. All farm-related debts for farmers in perennial disaster areas would be consolidated into one federal loan per farm.

The 15 to 40 year loan would be at five per cent interest, and certain farmers would qualify for a moratorium of up to five years on repayment of the consolidated loan. Farmers in counties adjoining the perennial disaster areas would qualify for the same assistance on a case-by-case basis.

"Year after year of natural disasters can destroy the chances for families that work hard and want to continue on the land," Congressman Stangeland said. "Congress must stand ready with a hand for those folks who have made a commitment, but are in trouble through no fault of their own."

In northwestern Minnesota, Red Lake and Pennington have been declared disaster areas in six of Stangeland's seven years in Congress. Farmers in neighboring Polk, Beltrami, Marshall and Clearwater counties would also be eligible for assistance if the bill passes.

"Because of last year's drought, more counties across American would qualify for this relief," the four-term House veteran said. "That should make it more attractive for key members of the House agriculture committee."

Congressman Stangeland said he is working with Pennington county extension director Terry Courneya and a group of farmers and small business owners to develop statistics that dramatize the plight of perennial disaster victims.

"This bill must have the support of the chairmen of the House agriculture committee and the farm credit subcommittee," he said. "These statistics should help us to present our case. This bill will be my legislative priority on the House ag committee this year."

M. Broadwell Does Study Of Organizations

Mark Broadwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Broadwell of Thief River Falls, is observing the operations of an organization as a part of the Saint John's university January term course entitled "key to organizations." Broadwell is a senior business administration major at Saint John's.

Each student enrolled in the course arranges placement in an organization either in the public or private sector. This enables the student to participate in the activities of the organization according to the learning goals and tastes agreed on between the student, the organization, and the instructor. In addition, each student will conduct ongoing ethnographic and investigative research according to the planning held with the instructor prior to the beginning of placement.

Soil Survey Is Promoted For Marshall Co.

Promotion of a soil survey for Marshall county is being pushed by Ralph Rundell of Grygla, soil conservation technician. He estimates the cost to county residents or landowners to be about half a million dollars.

Rundell explained that a soil survey is developed by soil scientists who walk over the land, bore holes to secure soil sample cores and map the soil lines on an aerial photograph. The scientists watch for changes in vegetation to assist in finding the lines between soil types. During the winter following the summer field season, the soil specialists ink in the lines on maps and write correlation reports for the soil series.

Uses for the soil survey report include determining suitability for land use with septic systems, dwellings with or without basements, commercial buildings, roads and streets, lawns, roadfill, ponds, camp areas, picnic areas, playgrounds and other uses. The soil types also have varying capability for production of crops such as wheat, oats, barley, corn, soybeans or flax, or for hay or pasture.

Rundell also points out that county assessors use the soil survey report for tax equalization, county and state engineers use it for road placement and material selection, realtors and property buyers use it for determining values and building contractors use it to select building sites and know what hazards or problems to expect.

While the $500,000 estimated cost is a lot of money, Rundell states, he projects that the survey would take five to seven years to complete and that four to six soil scientists living in the county and operating vehicles would spend an estimated $100,000 per year in county communities.

"If the major cost of a soil survey is for personnel and equipment expenses," he said, "the two-thirds of the total cost that comes from the state and federal governments will mostly be spent in our county and communities. Where else can we get an economic return on a program that will benefit our county immediately as well as into the future?"

Farm Disaster Relief Given Area Counties

Congressman Arlan Stangeland says he has secured disaster relief for farmers in Polk and Marshall counties who were hit by a variety of natural disasters during the 1983 growing season.

The relief will be in the form of loans covering 80 per cent of crop losses, up to $500,000. The interest rate on disaster loans is usually eight per cent, but at the Chicago summit meeting on drought relief last September, Congressman Stangeland and other farm state leaders persuaded Agriculture Secretary John Block to drop the rate to five per cent on the first $100,000.

"That increases the purchasing power of these loans by up to $3,000," he said.

Polk and Marshall county farmers were hit by heavy rains and excess moisture early in the 1983 growing season. Extreme heat and cold also affected crops.

During the past 12 months, Congressman Stangeland has secured several forms of disaster relief for northwestern Minnesota farmers. Red Lake, Pennington and Beltrami counties were declared 1983 disaster areas last fall, and Red Lake, Pennington and Marshall county farmers qualified for 1982 disaster relief last summer.

Congressman Stangeland said he also persuaded the Farmers Home administration (FmHA) to open a new office in Crookston and to train special teams to process disaster relief applications late last year.

He also said he joined several farm-state leaders in convincing Secretary Block to pass up a legal appeal of a court order to release $600 million in economic emergency loans. This allowed farmers across the region to apply for those loans in late December rather than waiting for USDA's legal appeal.

Congressman Stangeland said he also persuaded FmHA to allow Red Lake and Pennington county farmers to qualify for limited resource loan fund dollars late last year.

On the first day of the 1984 Congressional session this Monday, he also introduced a bill (H.R. 4610) that would provide relief for farmers in counties hit by three or more years of natural disasters. Red Lake and Pennington counties would qualify if the bill is passed, and farmers in Beltrami, Clearwater, Marshall and Polk counties could qualify on a case-by-case basis.

REFLECTI NS

The man who never alters his opinion is like standing water — in time he becomes stagnant never allowing the fresh breeze of new ideas and concepts to penetrate and illuminate the dimness. If you wish to grow in knowledge and wisdom never close your mind or your heart to new ideas, opinions and the thoughts of others, even though they may differ from your time-honored beliefs. There is always something new "under the sun" . . . so don't live your life in the shadows.

First Federal Assets Grow To $60 Million

First Federal savings and loan association in Thief River Falls showed an increase in assets from $55 million to $60 million during 1983 and paid out $4,903,000 in savings interest to depositors.

That information was presented by president Milton J. Reierson at the annual meeting of the association recently. He also noted that savings increased $5,600,000 to $56,100,000 and that a new branch office will be opened in Warroad sometime in February.

Reierson and Dr. Edward Nelson were relected to three-year terms on the board of directors. Other directors are Charles Ness, Roger Tunberg, Donald L. Olson and Robert Poissant. Officers reelected were Reierson as president; Helen Adamson, vice president and secretary; Richard Reierson, vice president; Ronald L. Hanson, vice president; Steve Petersen, assistant vice president; Mrs. Beatrice Larson, treasurer; and Carol Audette, assistant treasurer.

FIRST VANISHING TEA sponsored by the Northwestern Hospital auxiliary this year was held at the Neil McEwen residence Wednesday with Maxine McEwen as hostess. Mrs. McEwen is a member of the auxiliary board of directors. The vanishing tea is being revived this year as a fund-raiser toward the final payment on $65,000 worth of heart monitoring equipment purchased by the auxiliary for the hospital. It involves auxiliary members hosting parties, inviting guests, and charging $1 per cup for tea or coffee. In the photo above, Mrs. McEwen pours coffee for Mrs. Paul Ihle. Left to right in the background are Mrs. Art Hamilton, Mrs. Nels Holmberg and Mrs. Dennis McCabe. The teas are to continue throughout the month of February. There were 18 guests at the event in the McEwen home to kick off the campaign.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

The following letter has been sent to Congressman Arlan Stangeland and may be of interest to your Times readers:

It is tax-filing-time again and after attending an update meeting and looking over the booklet of forms I fail to be impressed with all of the efforts which have been made to simplify and make our system of taxation fair and reasonable. As a teacher who has tried to teach others how to complete the forms necessary and as a part time tax practitioner I am familiar with the complexities of the system. I would like to make some recommendations that I feel would be reasonably fair and would simplify the filing process somewhat.

I am not in favor of a so called flat rate tax as I'm sure most of the tax advantages would go to those who already have too many breaks and would impose additional hardship on the low income. I propose instead a three tiered level of taxation which would be divided as follows.

(1) The poverty level — Those families whose per capita spendable income falls below the level which is determined by the government as living in poverty would not be taxed.

(2) The median income level — Those families whose per capita income falls above the poverty level but below the median income as determined by the previous year's government reports would pay a flat 25 per cent of their spendable income above the poverty level.

(3) Above the median income level — Those families whose per capita income is above the median level would pay a flat rate tax of 50 per cent on that spendable income above the median level.

(4) The above incomes would be determined by including all spendable dollars which are available to the family, regardless of source. I propose that all exemptions, deductions and the majority of the credits would be eliminated. Spendable dollars would include wages, business profits, the value of fringe benefits (W2's would include the value of fringes), welfare receipts, retirement benefits that exceed contributions made by the employee, child support and alimony receipts, etc. Capital gains deductions would also be eliminated.

A taxpayer who has a large income for one year due to an asset sale would be allowed to average income for a 10-year period and bring his tax base for any previous lean years up to the median level at the 25 per cent rate before being hit with the 50 per cent rate. A taxpayer who sells his assets on an installment sale would continue to pay the taxes as he receives the money.

(5) People would be encouraged to provide for their own retirement benefits by being allowed to deduct any and all money which is paid into a bonafide retirement account whether it be the social security system, company retirement plan contributions or IRA's such as they can now. All such benefits would then be taxed as the dollars again become spendable for living when they are drawn out. For those retirement funds that are already in place, member contributions would be calculated and any benefits received above contributions would be taxed.

(6) The ACRS method of figuring depreciation was a step in the right direction but a fixed rate for a group of assets with no options would be still easier. (Example, 20 per cent per year for five years on machinery; five per cent per year for 20 years on buildings, etc.)

(7) Students who are to be included on their parents' returns would have to include their income in calculating the per capita family income. Students who file their own returns cannot be included on their parents' returns.

I am aware of many of the arguments which are made against some of my ideas such as the loss of charitable deductions. I have noted, however, that many of the best contributors are those who do not need to itemize deductions now. Charities which are worthwhile will still be supported and business contributions will still be deducted as business costs.

Those who argue that the capital gain loss would dry up financial funds for businesses are blowing a smoke screen. The dollars will not disappear but will be channeled into those areas which show the best economic return.

I am sure there are many, many more considerations to be taken into the adoption of such a drastic change in our income tax system but I am only trying to use this means to open a forum of discussion and to promote new ideas to improve, simplify and make our method of taxing income fair.

Sincerely,
-s- Al Dalen

UMC Fashion Show Slated February 7

"New directions" is the theme of the winter quarter fashion show to be presented at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, February 7, in Kiehle auditorium at the University of Minnesota - Crookston (UMC). The show, which is open to the public will feature new looks for this season, according to instructor Ella Strand.

Although all students in the fashion merchandising department are involved with the show, the planning and coordinating are handled by second-year students as a class project for the fashion coordinating class.

"The students plan the theme, select clothes and accessories, and organize the stage routine as a class project," added Strand.

Besides coordinating the show, students are involved in publicity, stage arrangements, script writing, selection of music, and plans for the reception following the show.

Tickets for the fashion show are $2 and may be purchased from any fashion merchandising student or at the door. Ticket price includes refreshments at a reception in the food service building following the show.

Karlstad Man Saves Child From Freezing

Noises that be believed to be made by a cat led Harry Bengtson of Karlstad to a year and one-half old girl sitting in a snow bank in 23 degrees below zero weather and clad only in pajamas about 6:10 a.m. early last week.

Elesia Stechman of Karlstad, the youngster who apparently slipped out of her mother's apartment and made her way outside in the early morning, reportedly suffered severe frostbite on her hands but will not lose any fingers from the ordeal. Her mother, Bonnie Stechman, and two other children : including Elesia's twin and a three-year-old brother, were asleep in the apartment when the little girl was discovered.

Bengtson was walking to the school bus garage where he is in charge of the buses when he heard a sound. He said he thought it might be a cat and stopped three times to listen. The last time he walked into a back yard near some clotheslines to look, and was about to leave when he noticed movement. It was the head of the child.

He said the youngster wasn't crying and seemed to be very alert when he picked her up. Her head and hands were bare and he wrapped her in his jacket to take her to the nursing center a half-block away. Someone unlocked the door and let him in, provided primary care and took her to the Karlstad hospital. She was later transferred to a Grand Forks hospital.

Reorganization Dropped

The fact that a proposed plan to reorganize the state hospital system has been dropped by administrators in the Minnesota department of public welfare probably won't surprise many people in Minnesota. Not many people knew about the plan which was intended to be implemented without any public input.

Incubated and hatched in the DPW offices in St. Paul, the plan would have had a substantial affect on northwestern Minnesota which is a heavy user of facilities at Fergus Falls state hospital.

Under the originally announced plan, the Anoka, Brainerd and St. Peter hospitals would have become regional treatment centers, handling the most severely ill patients and all new admissions of mentally ill patients. The five other hospitals in the system — including Fergus Falls — would have treated the not so critically ill. The reorganization was to go into effect March 1.

"Minnesota Counties," the official publication of the Association of Minnesota Counties, commented on the situation as follows:

"(Welfare Commissioner Leonard) Levine's original announcement of the restructuring appeared to leave no room for maneuvering or consultation with local officials or state lawmakers. In a meeting with local representatives in Fergus Falls a few days after Levine's plan was revealed, assistant welfare commissioner Margaret Sandberg said that the department was unwilling to reconsider or delay implementation of the plan unless it became apparent that it was flawed.

"But in withdrawing the plan (at a subsequent meeting in Fergus Falls), Levine said it was nothing more than a proposal all along, and that the department had no plans to close all state hospital."

Levine took over the reins of the state welfare department in the Perpich administration on the basis of his alleged administrative ability and an acknowledged lack of familiarity with the state's welfare system. Getting caught in this faux pas-intending to implement a plan and then denying it was really a plan after all — certainly won't enhance an already tarnished image of Levine as a capable administrator.

Minnesota Counties reports that the Kandiyohi county board passed a resolution opposing the plan and a citizens' task force was organized in Fergus Falls by Otter Trail company commissioner Van Ellig to oppose the reorganization. Consideration was even being given to a plan to have counties in the northwestern part of the state take over the regional state hospital in Fergus Falls if the state threatened to either close or cut back its operations.

Opponents to the reorganization plan were also concered about the increased transportation costs of taking patients to the regional hospitals, as well as the reluctance of patients to seek treatment if they had to travel a long way.

"Although Levine later went out of his way to emphasize that he had no intention of cutting off public comment and criticism," Minnesota Counties reports, "some local officials expressed suspicion that the welfare department wanted to push through an unpopular idea without public participation.

"Responding to such sentiments, Gov. Rudy Perpich became concerned that there had not been enough public discussion of the proposal and let Levine know that he wanted it put on hold.

"The welfare department will now solicit advice from interested parties on the best methods of offering services to the mentally ill," the newspaper adds. "If a new reorganization plan for state hospital is developed, it will probably involve considerable public scrutiny."

Is Retaliation Best?

According to a recent article in the Grand Forks Herald, Rep. Jim Tunheim of Kennedy and Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer plan to introduce legislation early in the 1984 session to retaliate for stringent fishing regulations imposed by the province of Ontario. The legislation is being offered at the request of resort associations on Lake of the Woods.

Ontario natural resources department is acting to curtail use of its land, water and fish resources by non-residents, primarily by those who do not utilize Ontario resorts. Curtailment comes in the form of increased license fees, charging of use fees for camping and other permits, and restricting the number of fish per boat — which discriminates against commercial launches.

Minnesota resorts on Lake of the Woods have long had access to the Ontario waters and the fish therein in exchange for nominal individual angler license fees. The sudden change is expected to impact severely on the Minnesota resorts which have built much of their business on the utilization of Canadian waters. Freedom of movement on Lake of the Woods waters which cover parts of Minnesota, Manitoba and Ontario has had minimum restriction over the years.

All of Minnesota may logically join in the concern of the resort operators, for that industry is important to the economy of the state and the facilities developed offer exceptional recreational opportunity to Minnesotans and others. The concern about the industry's ability to survive on Lake of the Woods is a legitimate one.

What Rep. Tunheim and Sen. Stumpf propose to introduce in the House and Senate reportedly is legislation which would make it illegal for Minnesotans to transport game fish or wild animals into the state from Canada, unless they are taken out of a Minnesota-based operation. One resort operator was quoted in the Herald article as stating that the legislation "is the only thing that's going to keep us alive."

One can't fault the legislators for responding to the needs of their constituents, and one certainly can't expect resort operators to do anything but fight to retain their livelihood. But there have to be a couple of reservations about retaliatory legislation.

For one, the province of Manitoba has not imposed the type of restrictions being imposed by Ontario. To make it illegal for Minnesotans to transport game fish out of Manitoba unless caught out of a Minnesota-based operation would be an open invitation for retaliation by Manitoba.

For another, many Minnesotans take advantage of fishing opportunities in Ontario and Manitoba that are far removed from Lake of the Woods. Should a Minnesota fisherman flying out of Red Lake, Ont., or Leaf Rapids or Churchill or Flin Flon on a once-in-a-lifetime fishing trip not be allowed to bring a trophy fish or a package of fillets back with him? Who would such a law penalize most?

These are only a couple of questions. History and human nature assure us that the attitude of you-did-something-to-me-so-I'll-do-something-to-you tends to proliferate and a possibly negotiable situation deteriorates into an insoluble impasse.

There are two other things to keep in mind regarding such proposed legislation. One is that attempting to apply pressure from a weak position isn't tactically intelligent. The other is that if the legislation is being offered as a threat, we better be ready and able to back it up. Far more Minnesotans stream into Manitoba and Ontario for recreation than come the other way. We are not in a position to retaliate with anything near the strength which Ontario possesses. And the fact still remains that Ontario has the right to manage its fishery any way it chooses.

If the only way we can show displeasure with a situation is to impose restrictions on ourselves, maybe we should take another look at our position. Somehow slapping ourselves on the face doesn't seem like a very effective way to get someone else's attention.

Suggestions on how to read a personnel file are contained in this translation of terms: "Careful thinker" — won't make a decision; "strong principles" — stubborn; "spends extra hours on the job" — miserable home life; "average employee" — not too bright; "active socially" — drinks too much; "zealous attitude" — opinionated; "takes pride in his work" — conceited; "uses logic on hard problems" — finds another to do the job; "forceful" — argumentive; "conscientious" — scared; "meticulous attention to detail" — nitpicker; "of great value to the organization" — gets to work on time; "has leadership qualities" — is tall or has a loud voice."

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

Sitting with friends discussing the holidays, I was disturbed by what I heard.

One fellow, involved in mental health, said that those suffering from depression have their toughest time during the holidays. Everything that's happened makes a reappearance, particularly the hurtful memories. There's loneliness and the rehashing of the past, with regret over decisions and actions that could have been different and changed everything for the better.

Someone mentioned how unfortunate the kids of today are with their having to confront an uncertain and more complex future than we experienced. Living with nuclear bombs, new diseases, environmental problems, and unrest around the world, is enough to explain why headache remedies are selling better than ever.

A man approaching sixty said that it's awful to know you may have another 15-20 years of life ahead of you with all of the fears existing today. Fears on inflation, health, survival, and having something productive to do. This man had just lost his job and he wondered if life was going to be getting up in the morning, living out a day, and then trying to sleep at night. He felt that life was going to be an awful bore.

Another indicated saving of years with an endowment at age 65, looking to the day when it would start paying off. That day was just a year away. But when he started with the endowment, milk was 22 cents a gallon (versus $2.02 today), gas was 17 cents per gallon (versus $1.29 today), cars sold for just over $1,000, fully equipped (versus from $6,000 to more than $30,000 today), and you could buy a nice home for $7,500 (versus an average home cost of about $65,000 today). Sure, social security payments are up, but so is everything else, and by much more. He was particularly concerned with health care costs because he didn't want to be a burden to his kids.

The single member of our group, a bachelor after 40 years of marriage, had just lost his wife. None of us thought they got along well, with open fighting on even small issues, but that isn't the way he saw it. He now spent all of his free time telling anyone who would listen about the saint to whom he had been married. He created, in his own mind, a life that had never really existed. He had thought about dating, but found that none of the women he had met were the equal of his "No. 1." So, why waste the time and the money?

I listened to all of this. All negative, dwelling on the past (through filtered memories), and suddenly realized that this wasn't what I felt about the holidays. To me, the holiday period was a time when all of the people I knew seemed to experience a change in attitude. They seemed nicer, more considerate and concerned, and much friendlier.

It was a time when you could see that there was truly hope for the better, because people proved that they didn't have to be greedy or self centered. This glimpse at the better side of humanity always made me feel good and have hope.

But there was something more that I always got out of the holidays, a positive attitude about everything and everyone. I saw the future as an opportunity, not a threat, as a new beginning, a chance to try again.

Even more, I felt that it was even possible, like "the little engine that could," which somehow was able to climb tracks up to the top of a high mountain ridge, which everyone claimed it wouldn't be able to do, that we might even come up with the answers for a better way.

The first step in this positive approach is to orient ourselves to looking ahead and not looking back. The time you save in not rehashing the past (which doesn't achieve anything, anyway), or being hostile or angry, and concentrating on the future, may help you produce better answers. Knowing that the future is an opportunity, that you are not really alone, and that you have lots of other humans and a Lord concerned about you, makes a difference. That, to me, is the holiday spirit and message.

That's Straight Talk!

Young Americans are receiving good elementary and secondary school educations. Our teachers have done an increasingly good job, and will do an even better job as time passes and technology gives them an assist.

While teachers' salaries have risen, they have declined as a percentage of what we give the educational bureaucrats to spend, going from about 55 per cent to something approximating 35-40 per cent of our educational budget. I mention this because I suspect that much of the current comment on how poorly our kids are being educated is aimed at increasing spending. You should know that we are spending more money than ever before on both an absolute and per student basis. If anything should be considered, it ought to be revision of how the money is spent, not just spending more.

With more than 12,000,000 of our 57,000,000 students in colleges, higher education rates another look. The costs keep rising, up more than 10 per cent each year in the last two years. That annual cost is now about $4,800 in public four-year colleges and more than $8,200 in private four-year colleges. The fall in the birth rate and decreases in high school graduates mean that three plus decades of growth in college enrollments in the United States is over, peaking in 1983.

The recent recession and a general reorganization of business, trimming overhead, means that college graduates may have problems in getting jobs. World-wide observers have concluded that we are turning out excessive numbers of college grads. Even the earning advantage of college graduates over those with less formal education is now in doubt.

The real question is, "What do we expect from a university education, and is that justified by the cost?"

If a university education provides a background for a better life experience, so that life can be more fully enjoyed and appreciated, then the liberal arts exposure achieves something not measurable in dollars and cents. If, on the other hand, a university experience is designed to increase our lifetime earnings, then the results are determinable.

With 860,000 full-time teachers in our universities, a ratio of .07 teachers to each student, this contrasts with .13 in England, .14 in Germany, .06 in Japan, .07 in Russia, and .08 in Canada. It would appear that we do not have an excessive number of fulltime teachers at this time based on the current enrollment levels.

The other evening, after a four hour class, a couple of second year students asked to spend some time with me discussing their education. While I may have been anxious to get home, I felt that this would be an opportunity for me to get some thoughts from current students.

These two young ladies were wondering why they were in college. They concluded that college was an experience pushed on them by a combination of parent pressure, high school adviser recommendation and a college recruiter. They were surprised at their experience. They were not prepared for the level of performance demanded. They also could see no advantage to the years they already expended. They were considering "dropping out."

These two students were not an exception to the big question that hits enrollees during their university career. A significant number conclude that this is not what they anticipated and drop out. The solution to this problem develops from better advisement, improved understanding of what a college is or isn't, and a willingness on the part of the higher education institutions to improve incoming student communication skills so that they have a chance to success.

I suspect that we have oversold higher education for vocational purposes. Practical experience, a form of apprenticeship, may still be an answer. Trimming the higher education machine down to a size that enrollment justifies is not going to be easy. It probably will be necessary unless these institutions can justify their existence through the service and assistance they provide. It will be hard to sell taxpayers on continuation at the current levels with the anticipated 15-20 per cent drops in enrollment that will be upcoming, when they hear about professors who teach with videotape lectures, spend little time with students and lots of time in their outside activities, with minimal commitment to their communities and regions.

Itasca Projects

A major program is now underway in Itasca State Park to improve facilities and add new activities for park visitors, the Department of Natural Resources reported.

Asphalt surfacing of Wilderness Park Drive and bike trail, remodeling Douglas Lodge and Forest Inn, new cross country ski trails, a new north entrance to the park and other new facilities are among the projects being implemented.

Asphalt surfacing of Wilderness Park Drive will add 11 miles of new bicycle trail and surfaced scenic drive. A new bike trail along Lake Itasca will soon complete a 15 mile circle bike route connecting all park facilities.

"This will give both auto tours and bike riders safe and liesurely enjoyment of the splendors of Itasca's huge pines, clear lakes and wildlife," said Don Davison, DNR state park director.

"The cross country ski trail system has been greatly improved and a new beginner's trail will be added along Lake Itasca. Forest Inn will be the winter trail center with food service, toilet facilities and possibly ski rentals."

He said Douglas Lodge kitchen will be remodeled in a manner that will retain its 1904 historic character.

"The remodeling will improve food service, provide handicapped accessibility and add meeting facilities. Cabin and room rentals will operate as usual and food service will be available in the park throughout the project," said Davison.

Forest Inn, near Douglas Lodge, will be restored and major improvements will be made in its interpretive program. There will be a naturalist on duty and the live craft demonstrations and other interpretive programs will be expanded.

Other park improvements will include construction of a new log shelter with toilet facilities in the picnic area, rehabilitation of water and sewer systems, improved parking at the Preacher's Grove pine stand, intensive management to enhance the pine forests, and many other necessary facilities to enhance the visitor's enjoyment of the park.

New north park entrance just completed, is now open for use, said Davison, and a new entrance station will be constructed as soon as funds are available.

Funding is provided through the Legislative Commission on Minnesota Resources (LCMR) along with federal funds from the Great River Road program.

Davison said the entire development and rehabilitation program may take from four to six years, but every effort will be made by the park staff to minimize inconvenience to park visitors.

Since the Mississippi is one of the largest rivers in the world, (following the Amazone and the Nile) the source was highly sought by many explorers who spent vast sums of money and years in the effort to document and chart the actual beginning of the Mississippi.

Itasca State Park, one of the most visited parks in the country, now preserves this internationally significant site which attracts people from all over the world.

It includes over 30,000 acres of rugged glacial terrain interspersed with many crystalline lakes, delicate orchid bogs and towering stands of majestic pine.

Word "Itasca" was coined by the 19th century explorer Henry Schoolcraft who, with the guidance of an Ojibwe Indian chief, documented the true source of the Mississippi in 1832. Schoolcraft used the last four letters and first two letters of the Latin words for "truth" and "Head" — verITAS CAput.

Turkey Hunters

Department of Natural Resources has completed a computerized drawing to select hunters for the state's 1984 spring turkey hunting season in southeastern Minnesota.

There were 3,000 permits available and 7,128 applicants.

DNR wildlife officials said the successful applicants picked by the drawing were notified by mail no later than Jan. 23. No notice will be sent to those whose names were not chosen in the drawing.

Successful applicants must return their license application form and a $10 check for their turkey license by Feb. 3. Following that date any unfilled licenses will be offered to alternates selected in the drawing.

Hunters had a choice of selecting one of five separate hunting time periods, with the first one opening April 14.

Fisheries Supervisor

Appointment of a new regional fisheries supervisor for 15 central Minnesota counties has been announced by the Department of Natural Resources.

Ed Feller, 38, was named to the post by DNR Fisheries Chief Richard Hassinger. Regional fisheries supervisor is headquartered in Brainerd and the post has been vacant since Hassinger left it to become chief of the DNR's fisheries section at the central office in St. Paul.

Feller has been employed by the DNR 13 years and has worked at various positions at fisheries field stations in Windom, Stacy and the Twin Cities.

Prior to his appointment as regional supervisor, Feller was area fisheries supervisor in the Metro Region.

Water Deaths

There were 80 water related deaths in Minnesota during 1983, the lowest number recorded during any of the 40 years for which the Department of Natural Resources has records.

Highest number of such fatalities, 180, occurred in 1944, and the previous low year was 1977 when 84 persons died in state waters.

Kim Elverum, boat and water safety coordinator, said 24 of the deaths last year involved watercraft accidents, tied with 1963 as the lowest ever in this category.

There were 56 water related non-boating fatalities as follows: swimming, 21; ice related, 12; falls into water, 13; wading, 3; inflatable devices, 3; attempted rescue, 1; jumping or diving, 2; suba related, 1.

Elverum said there were 106 non-fatal boating accidents in 1983 compared to 122 the previous year.

"According to preliminary statistics," said Elverum, "approximately 35 per cent of all water related accidents in 1983 involved the consumption of alcohol."

National Wildlife Week Names Kermit The Frog As Chairman

Kermit the Frog, one of Jim Henson's internationally acclaimed Muppets and the host of TV's award-winning "The Muppet Show.," is honorary chairman of the 1984 National Wildlife Week.

Forty-sixth annual Wildlife Week, sponsored by the National Wildlife Federation (NWF), will be observed March 18 to 24. Its conservation theme, "Water — We Can't Live Without It," will be promoted throughout the year.

More than 20 million students, teachers and conservationists will participate in the Wildlife Week observance, helping promote the importance of clean, lifegiving water and the necessity of conserving critical water resources.

"Kermit is the perfect chairman for the 1984 water conservation theme," said NWF Executive Vice President Jay D. Hair. "Kermit is immensely popular with millions of people of all ages — and besides, who knows more about the importance of clean water than a frog?"

Kermit will speak on behalf of the National Wildlife Federation in the NWF's 1984 broadcast public service announcements that promote the conservation of the nation's dwindling supplies of useable water.

Appearing in the public service announcements with fellow Muppet Fozzie Bear, Kermit says, "Water is something we have to conserve and keep clean." The broadcast announcements are being distributed nationally to 600 television and 1,500 radio stations.

As part of his duties as chairman, Kermit will also be the featured speaker at the NWF's annual conservation awards banquet on March 17 in Atlanta, Georgia, in conjunction with the NWF annual meeting.

NWF is the nation's largest conservation organization with 4.1 million members and supporters, including members in 49 state affiliates.

Water conservation theme for 1984 was chosen, according to Hair, to make Americans aware of the critical importance of life-sustaining water.

"More than any other resource, water is basic to survival," Hair said. "Water sustains all life forms and is the key ingredient to healthy ecosystems. Moreover, water is essential in very industrial process — in cooling machinery, in assimilating wastes, in transporting products, and in materials composition.

"Unfortunately," Hair continued, "useable water supplies are dwindling because of contamination, mismanagement and waste. We hope that during the course of the year we can impress Americans that water protection and conservation are priority issues."

Kermit was created in 1955 by Jim Henson, then an art student at the University of Maryland who was offered a late-night show on WRC-TV in Washington, D.C. The show, "Sam and Friends," featured a troupe of puppets dubbed "The Muppets" by Henson and Jane Nebel, now his wife.

"The Muppet Show" premiered on television in 1976 and was named "Special Attraction of the Year" by the American Guild of Variety Artists. Kermit and the Muppets have also starred in two movies, "The Muppet Movie," and "The Great Muppet Caper," and will star in another to be released this summer, "The Muppets Take Manhattan."

Endangered Species Act Marks 10th Anniversary

One of the world's strongest conservation laws, the U.S. Endangered Species Act, was 10 years old on December 28. The decade since its passage has witnessed unprecedented efforts on behalf of endangered and threatened species, the refinement of complex government processes required to implement the law, and encouraging improvement in the status of some unique native animals and plants.

"Perhaps the most significant achievements of the Endangered Species Act are that it focused public attention on these species and established a workable government mechanism to bring about their recovery," says Interior Secretary William Clark. "Although we still face many difficult problems, the law has enabled some species to make significant progress toward recovery."

One of the best known endangered species, the whooping crane, has benefited from years of intensive research. This year, a bumper crop of eggs increased whooper numbers to 148, up from 15 in 1941. Biologists found a record number of nests — 23 — in the wild flock at Canada's Wood Buffalo National Park. The wild flock now numbers 78. The captive flock at the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) Patuxent Wildlife Research Center in Maryland also increased this year to 34. To establish a second wild whooper flock, some eggs and chicks from the wild and captive flocks are taken to Grays Lake National Wildlife Refuge in Idaho, where they are reared by "foster-parents" sandhill cranes. This year the translocation program added 19 chicks to the 14 older whoopers already in the Grays Lake flock. Three other whoopers are in captivity at the San Antonio Zoo and the International Crane Foundation in Wisconsin.

Fortunes of the Aleutian Canada goose are also improving. This smaller cousin of the familiar Canada goose declined after Arctic foxes were introduced to its nesting habitat in the Aleutian Islands. To help the geese recover, FWS biologists bred them in captivity and began removing the foxes from their nesting areas. Captive-born geese wrre returned to the wild and protected from hunting while on their California and Oregon wintering grounds. In 1983, the number of wild Aleutian Canadas stood at about 3,500, up from 800 as recently as 1975. Fifteen of the geese were shipped to Japan this fall so that country may begin reestablishing the species there.

Delmarva fox squirrel, one of the first mammals to be listed as endangered, is more numerous and occurs in more places now than in 1973. In cooperation with FWS, biologists from Maryland and Virginia wildlife agencies have translocated the large, silver-gray squirrels to reestablish breeding populations of the squirrel in areas where it used to occur. Experts say the translocated squirrels are doing well, and their new homes provide plenty of habitat to allow them to increase their numbers.

As recently as 1981, some people feared the black-footed ferret might be extinct. Then the discovery of a single ferret, apparently killed by a dog, led biologists to a wild ferret colony. Eighty-eight ferrets were counted this year around 18 Wyoming prairie dog towns. FWS biologists are putting radio transmitters on some ferrets and tracking them to learn more about them.

Biologists are beginning to see some hope for the rare California condor. The condor's decline has halted for the first time in several decades, and the birds now number about 20 in the wild and 9 in captivity. Scientists hope to breed captive condors and release their offspring to bolster the wild population. Meanwhile, researchers have attached radio transmitters to wild condors and are tracking them to learn more about their behavior and habitat needs. Already the studies have led to the identification of key condor habitat, and steps are being taken to preserve the land.

Several western trout — California's Paiute cutthroat, Colorado's greenback cutthroat and Arizona's Apache trout — were reclassified from "endangered" to the less severe "threatened" status during the 1970's as a result of habitat restoration, elimination of introduced, competing trout species, and hatchery rearing and restocking programs. Similar efforts are underway for the Gila topminnow, which is being reared at Dexter National Fish Hatchery in New Mexico and reintroduced to native Arizona waters. Other endangered fish are also reared at Dexter.

Recovery of the bald eagle marked another milestone this year when an eaglet hatched in Tennessee for the first time since 1961. To speed the eagle's recovery from the detrimental effects of DDT on its reproduction, the birds are bred in captivity at the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center and released in states where eagle numbers remain low. Eagles are also translocated from areas where they are relatively abundant to states where they are scarce. In 1983, this translocation effort became international when Canada donated 22 eaglets for release in the northeastern United States.

DDT took such a heavy toll of the American peregrine falcon that it no longer nested east of the Mississippi River. But with the assistance of state and federal wildlife agencies, the Peregrine Fund, and falconers, peregrines have been bred in captivity and their offspring returned to the wild. Since 1975, nearly 1,000 peregrines have been released, and peregrines are once again nesting in habitat where none had nested for 30 years.

Pesticide restrictions and efforts to protect its nesting areas have helped the brown pelican increase since the mid-1970's, and this year FWS proposed to remove the species from the endangered list in several eastern states. In Louisiana, whose own nesting pelican population had been eliminated by pesticides, about 300 pelicans are now present as a result of translocations of pelicans from Florida.

Perhaps the most remarkable comeback has been made by the American alligator. Under strick federal and state protection, alligators have increased and are no longer endangered in Texas and Louisiana. Most estimates place the total U.S. alligator population at more than two million.

Beyond successes for individual species, the Endangered Species Act has achieved broader objectives. The law embraces not only mammals, birds, and other vertebrates, but plants and creatures without backbones such as insects, crustaceans and mollusks. Many scientists regard this protection for the natural diversity of life as one of the law's most progressive and important features.

Near San Francisco, 55 acres have been acquired and preserved as a national wildlife refuge for the endangered Lange's metalmark butterfly and two plants that have been featured on postage stamps — the Antioch Dunes evening primrose and the Contra Costa wallflower. The three species exist on remnant dunes that were formerly mined for sand. Establishment of the refuge prevented further development of their habitat, removed off-road vehicles, and helped to control pedestrian traffic. An adjacent parcel of the species' habitat is maintained by the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, whose biologists work with FWS to conserve the rare species.

One of the law's purposes is to conserve the ecosystems on which endangered and threatened species depend. A desert wetland at Ash Meadows, Nevada, for example, supports two fishes listed as endangered as well as seven plants and one insect that have been proposed for listing. Until recently, the species' survival was threatened by construction of a housing development. Now Congress has appropriated funds to preserve this unique area as a national wildlife refuge.

Another major accomplishment has been the successful involvement of state and federal agencies in endangered species conservation. For example, thousands of consultations have taken place between FWS and other federal agencies under a provision of the law designed to prevent federal projects from jeopardizing the survival of endangered species.

Of course, not all the news about endangered species is encouraging. The number of species listed as endangered or threatened continues to grow, from 400 when the law was passed to 783 currently. So far in 1983, 23 species have been listed and 66 more proposed for addition to the list. And for some species, the law may have come too late. This year the Santa Barbara song sparrow, the blue pike, and the longjaw cisco were removed from the endangered list. All are believed to have been extinct for more than a decade. No one is certain whether the Caribbean monk seal or the ivory-billed woodpecker still survive. Other species continue to exist in low numbers or limited habitats.

"One of the greatest obstacles to saving many species is our lack of knowledge about them," Clark observes. "But biologists have learned a great deal in the past 10 years, and these advances will continue. In addition, international efforts to control trade in rare species, law enforcement, and recovery programs are advancing. As a result of the Endangered Species Act, the odds for many U.S. species are better today than they were 10 years ago."

Threatened, Endangered List Issued By DNR

Twelve species of wild vertebrates have been included in a new list of native plants and animals that are threatened or endangered in Minnesota, according to the Department of Natural Resources.

Endangered species include the peregrine falcon, piping plover, burrowing owl, Sprague's pipit, Baird's sparrow, chestnut-collared longspur, and five-lined skink.

Threatened species are the bald eagle, loggerhead shrike, wood turtle, Blanding's turtle and gray wolf.

This represents about two per cent of all wild vertebrate species in Minnesota. In addition, there are five invertebrates and 78 plants on the new threatened and endangered species list. These species are a rare and valuable part of our native plant and wildlife heritage which needs to be preserved.

Nongame wildlife program in the Department of Natural Resources is carrying out research, inventory, habitat management, and restoration projects to help preserve our threatened and endangered species, except the gray wolf. Projects for gray wolf research and management are derived from other state and federal sources.

Minnesota taxpayers can help preserve threatened and endangered wildlife by donating to the nongame wildlife fund on their Minnesota income tax and property tax forms. They should look for the loon on their tax forms.

Taxpayers may give one dollar or more, and their donations are tax-deductible on the following year's return.

Zebco Earns Award From Fishing Group

Fishing Hall of Fame organizational award for outstanding contribution to benefit sport fishing in 1983 has been bestowed on the Zebco Corporation of Tulsa, Oklahoma for its founding and initial funding of the "Fish America" Foundation, it was announced by Hall director Bob Kutz.

Fish America Foundation was spawned by Zebco to act as a catalyst and fund source for programs to benefit angling in America through research and financial support. Such support is available to varied entities with such goals planned or in progress.

Single, annual Hall of Fame plaque citing the honor has been presented to Zebco, pioneer manufacturers of the closed face spinning reel and related fishing equipment.

Annual award was initiated for the first time this year by the Hall's world board of governors to recognize a corporate, business or organization for its outstanding contribution to sport fishing.

Nomination of other eligible entities for this award for 1984 is invited. Inquire, National Fishing Hall of Fame, Box 33, Hall of Fame Drive, Hayward, Wisc. 54843; phone (715) 634-4440. Hall governors will evaluate and ballot on this year's entries at year's end for presentation to a like achiever next year.

NEWLY-LISTED as a threatened species in Minnesota is the loggerhead shrike. The nongame wildlife program in the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources is carrying out research, inventory, habitat management and restoration project to help preserve the state's threatened and endangered species. Anyone having seen the loggerhead shrike during the last three years should contact Box 7, DNR, Centennial Building, St. Paul, MN 55155. (DNR art by Dan Metz).

Each year, almost 50 per cent of all North American ducklings are born in and around potholes, says the National Wildlife Federation; not those potholes you might see on a typical highway, but around the millions of scattered depressions left in the wake of melted glaciers in the Dakotas, Minnesota and central Canada.

Bowl-A-Thon Is Scheduled At Family Bowl

Super Bowl, a Bowl-A-Thon to benefit mentally retarded children and adults will be held Saturday, February 25, from 2 to 4 p.m. at Family Bowl in Thief River Falls.

Ice Fishing Record Catches Are Recognized

Catching and qualifying a fish of world record proportion through the ice has developed into a challenge for anglers in the northern tier of states where ice fishing is a popular pastime.

National Fishing Hall of Fame, a qualifier and compiler for sport caught world freshwater fish records introduced the ice fishing category to its records program three years ago. Species captured by the rod-line or tip-up method are eligible. Only hand held rod caught fish, however, are further eligible to compete with open water catches for world all tackle competition. Tip-up catches may only be recognized in a single class as "heaviest" in the ice fishing category.

To date, outstanding catches are a 26-lb., 12-oz brown trout taken through the ice in Lake Michigan and a 13-lb., 7-oz. walleye caught in Wisconsin's Silver Lake. Michigan produced a 31-lb. ice fishing muskie.

Ice fishing records sport a 29-lb., 2-oz. northern pike which nosed out a 28-lb. pike which in turn beat a 21-lb., 9-oz. pike. A 7-lb., 2-ox. large mouth bass is the largest to date in the ice fishing division.

Bluegills, crappies, perch and whitefish are regular contenders for exceeding previous record catches.

Ice fishing enthusiasts may write or call for a free rules and tips brochure, and records application form, to the National Fishing Hall of Fame, Box 33, Hall of Fame Drive, Hayward, Wisconsin 54843; phone (715) 634-4440.

A certificate, back patch, sleeve emblem and pin are issued to successful world record achievers.

Hummingbirds are being electrocuted in increasing numbers by mistaking red insulators on electric fences for flowers. So the manufacturer of the "Red Snap'r" insulators has taken action, reports National Wildlife magazine. The company has advised farmers and landowners to stop using its red insulators or to paint them a color, such as black or white, that will not attract hummingbirds.

Hockey Team Faces Key Games

Two key games await the Lincoln high school hockey team this week as the Prowlers visit Crookston Tuesday and then host Roseau Saturday. Wins are needed at this point of the season if the Prowlers want to land a berth in the Section 8 tournament quarterfinals.

With the coaches voting on those top four tournament seeds, Crookston will probably be one of the teams the Prowlers will be in competition with to gain a quarterfinal berth. Roseau, Bemidji and Fergus Falls appear to be the favorites for the top three spots. Thief River Falls beat Crookston 6-3 here earlier this season and a season series sweep over the Pirates would obviously give the Prowlers a big edge in the voting. Crookston could muddy the picture by winning Tuesday.

A Roseau appearance here is always the highlight of the season for Thief River Falls hockey fans, who turn out in full force for the Prowlers-Rams encounters. Saturday isn't likely to be any different.

Thief River Falls, Crookston and Roseau are all skating shorthanded because of the rash of injuries that have struck Section 8 teams this winter. The Prowlers are still without wings Tom Bottem and Rick Spong, both out with shoulder problems. The Pirates, who earlier lost Monte French with a broken leg, saw senior wing Tom Conati go down with a knee injury in a 4-3 win over Grand Forks Red River last Tuesday. Roseau, meanwhile, is without senior co-captain Russell Palm, who is out for the year with two fractured vertibrae in his back. The big defenseman is wearing a body cast.

LHS Girls Eye Winning Record

Lincoln high school girls basketball team's quest for a winning season record will be tested over the final three weeks of the 1983-84 schedule, beginning Tuesday when the Prowlers begin a series of six tough games by hosting Fertile-Beltrami.

Thief River Falls, 8-5, will follow that contest with games Mon., Feb. 6, vs. Bemidji; Thurs., Feb. 9, at Crookston; Tues., Feb. 14, vs. Detroit Lakes; Thurs., Feb. 16, vs. East Grand Forks; and Tues., Feb. 21, at Fergus Falls.

It'll be a real challenge for the Prowlers to win against that type of competition and keep their record above .500.

Miscellaneous

Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) board of directors has denied a request from Moorhead to be reassigned from Section 7AA to Section 8AA under the new state-wide sectional football playoff arrangements that will go into effect in 1984.

Moorhead, expected to once again appear on the Thief River Falls schedule next fall after it was earlier believed the series would come to an end, is joined in Section 7AA by Duluth Central, Duluth Denfeld-Morgan Park, Duluth East, Grand Rapids, Hibbing and Bemidji. The Spuds preferred to play in Section 8AA with Alexandria, Brainerd, Elk River, Little Falls, St. Cloud Apollo, St. Cloud Tech, Willmar and St. Francis.

Thief River Falls, still without a head football coach at this point, will be in Section 8A next fall, along with Staples, Wadena, Park Rapids, Detroit Lakes, Perham, Crookston, East Grand Forks and Fergus Falls.

+Thief River Falls' Bob Fitzgerald and Dave Geatz are key members of the Bemidji State University hockey team that has collected 20 straight season-opening wins. Bemidji was the NCAA Division II runner-up last year, and the Beavers have their sights set on a national title this winter. In their first 18 games the powerful Beavers out-scored the opposition 129-41, averaging 7.2 goals per game while yielding just 2.3 per outing. They scored 47 times on the power play and gave up just 12 shorthanded goals. Fitzgerald, a forward and tri-captain of the squad, missed some recent action with a bruised shoulder. Geatz is a defenseman. Both are seniors.

+University of Minnesota hockey coach Brad Buetow cited Tim Bergland, a freshman from Thief River Falls, in the Gophers' weekly press release for his play in Minnesota's recent WCHA series against North Dakota. Bergland had one goal and six assists for seven points while appearing in 12 of the Gophers' first 28 games and was expected to play in the Minnesota-Wisconsin series over the weekend.

School District No. 564 has initiated an "Excellence in Education Committee" to review our district's position in light of recent Federal and State criticisms of public school education. # Prowlers Come Out 50-33 Winner Over Indians

Thief River Falls' two good quarters of basketball bettered Mahnomen's one good quarter Friday as the Prowlers defeated the Indians 50-33 in a match-up of struggling high school teams with a combined won-loss record of 4-20 coming into the game.

Neither team played particularly well at the start, although Thief River Falls wound up with an 8-6 lead by out-scoring Mahnomen 6-0 over the final 1:50 of the first quarter.

But the Prowlers did have a good second quarter, moving the ball well offensively with some sharp passing that opened up a 26-15 halftime lead. Randy Erickson, the Prowlers' 6-3 senior forward who excelled on defense with six blocked shots in the first half, scored on a short turnaround jumper with 46 seconds left and guard Mark Bondy scored on a fast break lay-up off a steal by backcourt mate John Brandt with 18 seconds to go as the Prowlers opened up their biggest lead of the half at intermission.

Mahnomen, unable to score from the inside against the likes of Erickson, 6-3 Tim Kruse and 6-2 Jeff Hamerlinck, tried to do it from the outside and failed miserably with a 4-for-29 first half shooting performance — a paltry 14 per cent. The Indians were just 1-for-13 from the field in the second quarter. Thief River Falls, meanwhile, worked the ball around for the good shots and hit 13 of 28 attempts for a solid 46 per cent half. Mahnomen stayed within sight on the scoreboard only by going 7-for-9 at the free throw line in the first half, where the Prowlers were 0-for-2.

Brandt hit one from the corner to start the second half with a 28-15 Thief River Falls lead, but then Mahnomen began to come alive offensively with its only solid quarter of basketball of the night. The Indians ran off a string of eight straight points to get within 28-23 on a short jumper from the side by Jon Tommervik with 3:47 remaining.

However, a three-point play by Hamerlinck helped the Prowlers hold on to a 33-27 lead as the quarter came to a close, and they came up with their second good quarter of the night over the final eight minutes to wrap it up. Hamerlinck had a rebound basket, a short jumper and two free throws to go along with a rebound basket by Kruse as the Prowlers scored the first eight points of the quarter to quickly establish command, 41-27, with 4:52 remaining.

Erickson scored on a rebound and Kruse finished off a fast break with 1:45 left as the Prowlers enjoyed their biggest lead of the night — the 50-33 final — before they emptied their bench.

"I think overall, fundamentally, we had a pretty good game," said Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt. "The second and fourth quarters were obviously our best. I thought we did an excellent job of executing offensively against Mahnomen's man-to-man defense in the second quarter. Our defense kept us in the game early; we started slowly."

Hamerlinck finished with 13 points, Kruse had 12 in his best offensive night of the year and Brandt had 10. No Mahnomen scorer hit double figures. The normally high-scoring Charlie Stock, who was in the 20-point range when Mahnomen played in Thief River Falls' Christmas Classic earlier this season, was held to just five points.

"Our overall height made a big difference tonight," acknowledged Hunt. "Kruse, Hamerlinck and Erickson did a good job defensively."

Thief River Falls matched that 46 per cent first half with a 46 per cent shooting performance for the game on a 22-for-47 showing. Mahnomen finished at 23 per cent, 12-for-52. The Prowlers were 6-for-15 from the free throw line where the Indians were 9-for-19, including an 0-for-8 fourth quarter. Thief River Falls' height played a role on the scoreboard, but not so much in the rebound category where the Prowlers had just a 34-33 edge. Turnovers were low on both sides — eight for the Prowlers and nine for the Indians.

Results left Thief River Falls at 4-9 and Mahnomen at 1-12. Thief River Falls hosts Crookston Friday.

Northmen Split League Games

Fergus Falls knocked off Northland 97-73 Wednesday in a Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) Northwest Division basketball match-up, but the Northmen bounced back to beat Rainy River 86-65 Friday.

Northland is now 10-5 overall and 4-2 in the Northwest Division standings. The Northmen close out their 1983-84 regular season schedule with five straight Northwest Division encounters, starting Friday when they host Brainerd in an 8 p.m. game. The Northmen will have a rematch at Brainerd, another meeting here with Fergus Falls and a home-and-home series against the University of Minnesota-Crookston to close out the schedule.

Thirty-five Northland turnovers were instrumental in the 97-73 drubbing at Fergus Falls Wednesday as the two perennial Northwest Division rivals met for the first time this winter.

"Fergus Falls played very well, and we turned the ball over," explained Northland coach Chet Engelman. "We didn't shoot very well, either, but the big thing was we turned the ball over too many times."

Northland fell behind early and trailed throughout the game. Fergus Falls owned a 43-33 halftime lead.

Kyle Ramsey scored 19 points and had 14 rebounds for the Northmen, with Shorty Johnson scoring 16 points and collecting 16 rebounds. Kevin Boe and Tom Scheider each had 18 points for the winners.

Northland shot only 39 per cent from the field (29-for-74). Fergus Falls shot 43 per cent (40-for-94). The Northmen shot 71 per cent at the free throw line (15-for-21), where the Spartans shot 63 per cent (17-for-27). Northland had a 61-50 rebound edge. Fergus Falls lost the ball just 13 times, compared to the 35 Northland turnovers.

Rematch between the two teams will come Tues., Feb. 14, in Thief River Falls.

Northland completed its assignments against Northwest Division teams Friday night with an 86-65 home court win over Rainy River. The Northmen finished 4-1 against the Northeast Division teams, beating Itasca, Hibbing, Mesabi and Rainy River while losing to Vermilion. All those games count in Northland's Northwest Division standings.

"Not very inspiring, but we won," explained Northland coach Chet Engelman after the victory over the Voyaguers.

Northland had a 19-6 lead at the 10-minute mark of the first half, and after Rainy River cut it to 25-20 at the 15-minute mark, the Northmen opened up a 35-26 halftime cushion. The Voyageurs, who were within 37-36 three minutes into the second half, were still challenging the Northmen to 55-50 with 9:51 to play, but Northland then rattled off 12 straight points to take control, 67-50, with six minutes left.

Sophomores Kyle Ramsey and Shorty Johnson combined for 46 points and 22 rebounds for the Northmen. Ramsey had 24 points, 10 rebounds and eight assists, while Johnson scored a personal season-high 22 points and grabbed 12 rebounds. Fellow sophomores Rodney Scales (13 points, 12 rebounds) and Jon Neumann (10 points, 10 rebounds) were also instrumental in the win. Tom Jones (26) and Jack Larson (20) matched the Ramsey-Johnson 46-point scoring combination for Rainy River.

Northland shot 47 per cent from the field (37-for-78) and 63 per cent from the free throw line (12-for-19). Rainy River shot 37 per cent from the field (28-for-76) and 69 per cent at the line (9-for-13). The Northmen out-rebounded the Voyageurs 57-41 and also led in turnovers, 17-15.

Northmen Lose To UMC, Rainy River

Northland community college hockey team saw its Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) losing streak reach 11 games with losses to the University of Minnesota-Crookston and Rainy River last week.

University of Minnesota-Crookston clobbered Northland 15-4 Wednesday night in Crookston, while Rainy River swept a weekend series from Northland in International Falls, winning Saturday night 12-4 and coming from behind in the final four minutes to win Sunday afternoon 8-6.

"We just didn't play good hockey Saturday night," admitted Northland coach Tony Dorn, Jr. "Sunday we led the entire game until the last four minutes. I think we ran out of gas."

Northland lost three of four regular season meetings with rival UMC and lost all four meetings with Rainy River. After surprising the defending MCCC state champion Trojans 5-4 in the 1983-84 season opener back on Dec. 7, the Northmen lost successive Wednesday night games to UMC by consistently one-sided 13-6, 15-5 and 15-4 margins. Rainy River swept an earlier weekend series in Thief River Falls by near-identical 10-5, 10-6 scores.

There are two regular season MCCC weekend series left for the Northmen, 3-4, who will host Mesabi Friday at 7:30 p.m. and Saturday at 1 p.m. in the sports arena. They'll close out the schedule with a Saturday-Sunday series, Feb. 11-12, in Rochester.

Krouss, Bears Handle Nordics

Lake of the Woods' Joe Krouss scored 31 points Saturday afternoon as the Bears handled Marshall County Central with surprising ease, 67-49, in a first-place North Border Conference high school basketball showdown at Baudette.

"Krouss was outstanding," reported Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "He's the best kid I've ever coached against. I think he's the best kid in (District) 32 since I've been coaching here."

And while the 6-6 Krouss was hitting, the Nordics weren't. To beat the Bears, Ueland had warned beforehand, the Nordics would have to shoot well. They didn't. Marshall County Central shot just 34 per cent from the field for the game (20-for-59). "It was our poorest shooting night of the season," lamented Ueland. "It just wasn't our night. It was really frustrating."

Marshall County Central stayed within 21-19 in the first quarter, but then went cold from the field as Lake of the Woods opened up a 39-28 halftime lead and moved out to a 53-39 third quarter cushion.

In addition to Krouss, Lake of the Woods had double figure scorers in Tim Erholtz with 11 points and Chris Snyder with 10. Snyder was an unexpected weapon from the outside, noted Ueland. Chad Swan led the Nordics with 14 points, while Ken Krohn and Scott Gustafson each had 13.

Lake of the Woods shot a nifty 62 per cent from the field (29-for-47) to add frustration for the cold-shooting Nordics. Marshall County Central was 9-for-19 at the free throw line, where Lake of the Woods was 9-for-17. The Bears had a 35-21 rebound edge, but they also topped the turnover figures 23-10, a fact the Nordics weren't able to cash in on.

Marshall County Central, now 8-4, will host Warroad Tuesday. Lake of the Woods all but wrapped up the 1983-84 North Border Conference title with the win.

Basketball JV 40-39 Winner

Lincoln high school junior varsity basketball team snapped a seven-game losing streak with a 40-39 win over Mahnomen Friday.

Darrel Miller hit a 22-foot jump shot with 30 seconds remaining to provide the winning points as Thief River Falls overcame a five-point deficit down the stretch.

Thief River Falls led 10-8 at the end of the first quarter and had a 28-20 halftime lead before Mahnomen tied it 30-30 in the third quarter.

Mike Kloety scored 10 points for the winners, 3-7 for the year.

Cards Lose 67-56 Game To Gonvick-Trail Friday

Plummer fell victim to some hot Gonvick-Trail shooting Friday as the host Bulldogs defeated the Cardinals 67-56 in high school basketball action.

"Everything they put up seemed to go in for them," mentioned Plummer coach Jim Baron. Statistics backed him up, with Gonvick-Trail connecting on 27 of 48 attempts for an impressive 56 per cent shooting night.

Ahead 16-14 at the end of the first quarter, Gonvick-Trail opened up a 40-3 halftime lead with a torrid 77 per cent shooting performance in the second quarter. The Bulldogs maintained their nine-point spread in the third quarter, 52-43.

"They played very well. We just weren't very active ourselves," explained Baron.

Plummer's Gene Fisher took game-high scoring honors with 24 points and received post-game praise from Baron. Tim Gagner had 11. Mike Birkeland scored 21 for Gonvick-Trail, starting with a 5-for-5 showing from the outside in the first half.

While the Bulldogs shot 56 per cent from the field, the Cardinals were shooting 44 per cent (23-for-53). Gonvick-Trail shot 65 per cent from the free throw line (13-for-20), where Plummer shot only 45 per cent (10-for-22). The Bulldogs had a 32-27 rebound edge and the Cardinals topped the turnover figures 23-21.

Plummer, 7-5 after the loss, hosts Goodridge Tuesday in Polar Conference play. The Cardinals edged the Huskies 57-55 in the finals of the Goodridge holiday invitational tournament earlier this season.

Out-scored 23-11 in the fourth quarter, Goodridge lost a 66-51 Polar Conference game at East Grand Forks Sacred Heart Friday.

It was close until the final eight minutes. Sacred Heart had quarter leads at the first three stops of 15-8, 27-23 and 43-40 before breaking it open at the end.

Goodridge fell to 5-8 with the loss. The Huskies will be at Plummer Tuesday.

Scott Groven of the Huskies scored a game-high 22 points, with teammate Tony Wiseth getting 10. Darrin West scored 21 for the Eagles, with Mike Nefs adding 17.

Sacred Heart had a busy 24-for-41 night at the free throw line to go along with a 50 per cent shooting performance from the field (21-for-42). Goodridge was 13-for-20 from the line and shot just 33 per cent from the field (19-for-57).

"You can't win putting them at the line that many times," acknowledged Goodridge coach Dan Brinkman. The Eagles had 30 free throw attempts in the second half — 15 in both the third and fourth quarters.

"Nothing went right for us in the fourth quarter," said Brinkman. "It just fell apart. We just didn't play well."

Gonvick-Trail cashed in on 27 of 40 free throw opportunities Saturday in beating visiting Grygla 73-58.

Grygla coach Vern Johnson voiced his displeasure at the officiating, implying that the Eagles would have won under a different set of circumstances. Several confrontations early in the contest set the tone for the game, he explained.

Gonvick-Trail started with a 17-10 first quarter lead, but it was tied 30-30 at halftime. The Bulldogs went back in front 43-38 in the third quarter and explanded upon a four-point lead over the final two minutes at the free throw line.

Jon Watne poured in 34 points for the winners, getting 14 of them at the free throw line. Tony McLean had 19 for Grygla, with Rick Carlson adding 11 and Bill Neuschwander 10.

Gonvick-Trail shot 56 per cent from the field (23-for-41) and 68 per cent at the line with that before-mentioned 27-for-40 showing. Grygla shot 42 per cent from the field (24-for-57) and 53 per cent at the line (10-for-19).

Grygla, 4-7, will host Middle River Tuesday in North Border Conference play.

Shorthanded Northland Gains Basketball Split

A Wednesday night 91-53 loss at Fergus Falls and a Friday night 74-50 home court win over Rainy River maintained the .500 status for the Northland community college women's basketball team as the Northwomen carry a 7-7 record into the final three weeks of 1983-84 regular season play.

Northland has a single game this week, hosting Northwest Division foe Brainerd Friday at 6 p.m.

Playing with just a five-member squad, Northland fell prey to fully-staffed Fergus Falls 91-53 Wednesday.

Short on numbers to begin with, the Northland roster was reduced even further with three absent players, — one injured, one sick and one who quit the team.

"For five people, we really played well, especially in the first half," reported Northland coach Deb Jacobson, who left it up to the five remaining squad members if they wanted to play the game or cancel it. "They felt they had worked hard and deserved a chance to play," she said. "They accepted the challenge, and they felt they accomplished something by playing the game."

Fergus Falls led 44-32 at halftime, then out-scored the visiting Northwomen 47-21 in the second half.

Brenda Dahl scored 21 points and Karen Sovde 16 for the Northwomen, who lost their fourth Northwest Division-counting game in five outings.

Northland shot 31 per cent from the field (19-for-61) and 58 per cent at the free throw line (15-for-26). Fergus Falls shot 39 per cent from the field (43-for-108) and 42 per cent at the line (5-for-12).

With both teams busy putting up shots, there were an unusually high number of rebounds to be had. The Northwomen pulled down 72 of them, but still got out-rebounded as the Spartans grabbed 83. Northland topped the turnover charts 30-16.

Northland's roster size remained at five Friday for Rainy River, but the visiting Voyageurs brought just six players with them, and the Northwomen won it 74-50.

All five Northland players were in double figures, with Brenda Dahl scoring 22 points, Jenyne Beehler 15, Jenee Frolander 13, Karen Sovde 12 and Kathy Pietruszewski 12.

Sovde, a 6-0 freshman from Greenbush, also grabbed 32 rebounds, 17 off the offensive boards, as Northland out-rebounded Rainy River 89-56. Beehler, a 5-10 freshman from Finlayson, had 23 rebounds and Dahl, a 5-8 freshman from Newfolden, had 20, along with 10 assists.

Northland led 38-22 at halftime.

In the shooting department, Northland was 32-for-89 from the field (36 per cent) and 10-for-17 from the free throw line (59 per cent). Rainy River was 23-for-74 from the field (31 per cent) and 4-for-8 at the line (50 per cent). Rainy River topped the turnover figures 15-9.

16 Saddle Club Members Met Here Recently

Sixteen members attended a meeting of the Thief River Falls saddle club on Tuesday, January 17, at Florence's Cafe.

Plans were made for a tobogganing party in February, and a two-day trail ride, which had been tentatively scheduled for the end of April, was rescheduled for early May because of the Easter holiday. Five members who had attended an equine reproduction seminar in Crookston reported on what they had learned.

Next meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. February 21, at Florence's cafe.

Fosston Invitational Saturday . . .

Young LHS Swim Team Makes Strong Showing

Thief River Falls finished first in an eight-team field at the Fosston invitational high school swimming meet Saturday, but Prowlers coach Jay Forney was elated with the results.

Fergus Falls won the event with 283 points, followed by Grand Rapids with 243, Bemidji 213, International Falls 98, Thief River Falls 94, Park Rapids 89, Detroit Lakes 79 and Fosston 63.

Thief River Falls went into the meet minus proven point-producers Dave Ose, Craig Goodrich and Jeff Rosetta, who represent the bulk of the small senior class on the squad. Their absence, for various reasons, probably cost the Prowlers somewhere in the neighborhood of 40 points, figured Forney.

"We're really pleased with the team's performance considering we were missing Dave, Craig and Jeff," said Forney. "The rest of the team came through with nice times. The first three teams had depth, which we lack."

Thief River Falls' top performances came from junior Todd Wing, a winner in the diving competition and a third place finisher in the backstroke; sophomore Eric Ose, third in the 100 freestyle; plus junior Paul Wefald and freshman Rick Rosetta, who matched qualifying standards in the breaststroke and butterfly, respectively.

With a five-lane pool, timed finals were held for the top 12 point-producing places.

Thief River Falls will be involved in another invitational meet Friday when the Prowlers visit Bemidji for a 6 p.m. outing.

Skippers Beat Rockets 70-23

Middle River, trailing Badger 15-9 after the first quarter, out-scored the Rockets 61-8 the rest of the way Thursday as the undefeated Skippers rolled to their 14th straight win, a 70-23 girls high school basketball rout at Badger.

Badger surprised Middle River early by scoring points as the Skippers experimented with a new defense, explained Middle River coach Tom Neibauer. "In the second quarter we went back to what we do best — man-to-man," he said.

In the process the Skippers out-scored the Rockets 14-0 in the second quarter and 28-2 in the third quarter. Middle River blitzed Badger 58-2 beginning in the second quarter until the Skippers' starters were lifted midway through the fourth quarter. They led 23-15 at halftime and 51-17 after three quarters.

Paula Rantanen's work inside netted the 5-10 senior 30 points, with teammate Tammy Sorter collecting 12. Vonda Peterson was credited with six assists.

Middle River shot 48 per cent from the field (24-for-50) and had a busy 22-for-32 night at the free throw line where Badger was just 1-for-2.

Only one outing for the Skippers this week will find them at Roseau Thursday.

Poor showings in the first and fourth quarters cost Goodridge a 40-37 Polar Conference game at Red Lake Falls Thursday.

Red Lake Falls opened with an 18-9 first quarter lead. Goodridge cut it to 22-21 by halftime and went ahead 34-30 in the third quarter before netting just three fourth quarter points.

Goodridge coach Patti Johnson admitted the Huskies played poorly at the start, and the loss of Lori Sjulestad in the fourth quarter because of fouls took away the club's leading rebounder, she explained.

Jennie Boutain scored 14 points and Diana Troska 12 for the Huskies. Cindy Audette had a game-high 14 for the Eagles.

Goodridge, 3-8, will host East Grand Forks Sacred Heart Thursday and entertain Stephen Friday.

Despite common belief, most monkeys cannot swing by their tails. But some monkeys can use their tails almost like an extra hand, says International Wildlife magazine. A spider monkey, for example, can open a door with its tail.

DNR hotline

1. Are the camo-blaze orange hunting coats legal safety garments during firearms deer hunting? If not, since they are quite new, do you expect them to be acceptable in the near future?

No, they are not legal. The law says the cap and outer garments above the waist, excluding sleeves, if any, and excluding gloves, shall be bright red or blaze orange or covered therewith. We do not expect the law to be changed. Would not a color blind person have more of a problem seeing another hunter with camo-blaze orange vs. solid blaze orange? Byron Dyrland, Regional Enforcement Supervisor.

2. I have been fishing for 42 years and have only seen three game wardens live up to the fishing regulation law which states that a person must be at least 30 feet from his neighbor when ice fishing and 50 feet from his neighbor when in a boat. Why aren't these laws enforced?

We do not find any such laws or regulations under state law. In regards to ice fishing, the law states that no person shall erect a shelter house for taking fish within ten (10) feet of an existing shelter house. There are no restrictions as to how close boats can be to each other when fishing. We do hope people will use common sense. Byron Dyrland, Regional Enforcement Supervisor.

3. Do you have a question, a complaint, or a suggestion regarding how your natural resources are managed?

DNR Hotline is your direct channel to a representative who will answer you, whether it concerns parks, fish, wildlife, forests, waters or minerals. Write: DNR Hotline, 2115 Birchmont Beach Road NE, Bemidji, MN 56601; telephone 755-3976.

List Is Growing For Fishing Hall of Fame

National Fresh Water Fishing Hall of Fame enshrinement committee inducted for 1984, six persons for outstanding achievement and accomplishment during the national committee's recent meeting held in Minneapolis.

Nine electors, volunteer members of the Hall's national board of governors, evaluated over 60 candidates during a three-day session and elected Elwood (Buck) Perry, Richard Stroud and John Dingell, Sr., contemporary living persons, and Louis Agassiz, Carl Hubbs, and R.W. Eschmeyer, deceased, in the categories of science, conservation, communications, education and technology.

A maximum of six persons are elected by ballot annually and portrayed in photo and text in the Hall, museum's, "Hall of Recognition". Fishing Hall of Fame and museum, a non-profit supported organization, is located in Hayward, Wisconsin.

Elwood L (Buck) Perry, honored for his achievement in technology and education, was recognized for beginning the modern era of freshwater sport fishing by his discoveries and teachings used by anglers today, many of whom may have never even heard his name.

Though he is often credited primarily for the notoriety his "spoonplug" generated, his other lifetime achievements are much more notable: He is the father of structure fishing and for 55 years has unselfishly and humbly, without great monetary award, discovered, developed, taught, demonstrated and pioneered fishing systems that now are legend and often not rightfully credited to his genius.

Richard H. Stroud was recognized for his outstanding career in fisheries management.

Past president of the American Fisheries Society, and long time author-editor of the influential Sport Fishing Institute Bulletin, Stroud published to date, more than 130 scientific papers and his fisheries research findings contributed significantly to the success of warm water reservoir fisheries such as the TVA project, the United States' 200-mile marine jurisdictional limit and extensive food habits by fish surveys for New Hampshire as well as an early career as the state of Massachusetts' fisheries chief.

John D. Dingell, Sr., is a Michigan congressman, who was the co-author and catalyst behind the passage of legislation in 1950, endorsed by the nation's prestigious fishing interests, which instituted a 10 per cent excise tax on fishing materials with allocation to states on a 3-to-1 matching basis for fish restoration and management plans.

"User-Pay" concept has since resulted in a half billion dollars for fisheries resources. Proposed extension of the concept to other facets of the industry has created later controversy, but Dingell's original intent and dedication to effect his visionary legislation, has proven its worth.

Deceased, Louis Agassiz, a Swiss scientist, left a brilliant career in Europe, in early fisheries classification, to the United States and Harvard.

As pioneer in the study and promotion of North American fishes his "almost missionary" activities (1828 to 1873) were an inspiration to future students. Relatively few active Ichthyologists of the present day are unable to trace their lineage back to Agassiz.

Dr. Carl Leavitt Hubbs (1894-1979) contributed six decades to fisheries science, education and conservation which began at Stanford University. Author of more than 700 Journal articles, chairman of 50 student doctorates and numerous contributions, awards and appointments in the fisheries fraternity, Hubbs spent 35 years in development of the Scripps Institution (Cal.), many San Diego fish and wildlife projects, desert projects, and effects on fish by seismic explosions in oil exploration.

R.W. Eschmeyer, who died in 1955, was a crusader for fishery biology and improvement of sport fishery management.

He pioneered studies on crowded fish populations and demonstrated that concentrated fishing is possible through proper management and that many laws restricting anglers are unnecessary. He strongly influenced the fish education of both the public and the professional.

Living inductees will be presented with the Hall's customized "Time Eternal Award," a laser beam engraved clock which is the Hall's "Oscar" for this, the highest honor in the realm of freshwater sport fishing.

The program, which began in 1980, has inducted to date for (1980) - Ole Evinrude; Dame Juliana Berners; Izaak Walton; (1981) - Jonathan Meek; James Heddon; Art Mercier; Gil Hamm; Dr. Howard Tanner; Homer Circle; (1982) - Dr. James Henshall; Seth Green; "Curly" Mouton; "Doc" Wellman; Art Oehmcke; Dr. Edwin Crossman; (1983) - David Starr Jordan; Joe Brooks; Peter Malloch; Wernon (Gadabout) Gaddis; Carl Lowrance; and George Griffith.

Nomination process is formal. Nominators for 1985 consideration may request a free brochure and forms by inquiry to the National Fishing Hall of Fame; Box 33, Hall of Fame Drive, Hayward, Wisconsin 54843; phone (715) 634-4440.

Sabbath For Safety Slated In February

If you wear your safety belt when you travel in your car, you're doing yourself and your loved ones a favor, says John Shaffer, director of the Minnesota occupant restraint program, jointly sponsored by the Minnesota safety council and the Minnesota department of public safety.

At least 200 Minnesotans could be saved from death each year, he says, if everyone wore their safety belts in motor vehicles, and injuries to an additional 20,000 persons could be prevented or lessened. "In an accident or sudden stop, a safety belt can distribute impact force over the strongest part of a person's body and prevent the individual from striking the car's interior surface," he explains.

"Further, it would cut the high cost of accidents in Minnesota — a figure which now stands at approximately $400 million each year," Shaffer adds. Minnesota safety council is asking persons to wear their safety belts as part of its promotion of Minnesota safety Sabbath. The Safety Sabbath, an ecumenical nationwide campaign sponsored by the National safety council, will be observed Valentine's Day and the previous weekend, February 10 to 14.

Goal of Safety Sabbath is to bring worshippers of all faiths to a fuller understanding of safety, Shaffer said. Areas of emphasis on Safety Sabbath include:

— Teaching parents the significance of fastening children into child restraint systems;

— Encouraging homeowners to install smoke detectors and to plan fire evacuation escape routes;

— Urging community members to refrain from drinking if they drive.

For more information on Safety Sabbath, write D. Perry Kidder, Minnesota Safety Council, Inc., 555 Wabasha Street, Suite 102, St. Paul, Minnesota 55102, or call her at (612) 291-2830.

Red Lake Co. DU Banquet Set March 22

Second annual Red Lake county Ducks Unlimited (DU) banquet will be held Thursday, March 22, at the Third Base restaurant in Brooks.

According to DU county chairman Marc D. Parenteau, all indications are this year's banquet will be equally successful as last year, if not more so. Last year the Red Lake county chapter raised over $8,000 at its first banquet.

Tickets can be purchased from any committee member. The cost of the ticket includes dinner, which beings at 6 p.m., and membership in Ducks Unlimited.

Committee members are Parenteau, Milo Larson and John Larson of Brooks, Alvin Jensen of Oklee, Brent Hemly and Merle Jesme of Plummer and Marc E. Parenteau and Jay Guillemette of Red Lake Falls.

Since its inception nearly 50 years ago, Ducks Unlimited has concentrated its efforts in providing breeding grounds in Canada, where 70 per cent of North America's wild ducks and geese are produced. However, Ducks Unlimited has recently learned that under normal water conditions, the United States produces 20 per cent of North America's wild waterfowl.

Consequently, DU will soon break ground on habitat projects in North and South Dakota, Montana, western Minnesota and Alaska.

Clarence Sande Earns Honors In Grand Forks

Clarence Sande, a native of Thief River Falls and founder of AGSCO agricultural supply and seed company in the early 1940's, was recently awarded the 1983 Henry Havig award by the Grand Forks (ND) chamber of commerce.

Seek To Extend Sign-up Period For Dairy Plan

In the first hours of the 1984 House session, Congressman Arlan Stangeland introduced legislation instructing Agriculture Secretary John Block to extend the sign-up deadline for the new dairy program from January 31 until February 15.

"This is the type of bill which can be handled in just a few days if powerful committee chairmen are willing to help farmers, Congressman Stangeland said.

"It is in the interest of the administration to extend this deadline, because if more farmers participate in the program, then more federal dollars will be saved."

Regulations and guidelines for the paid diversion program were released on January 4, but ASCS officials weren't briefed and ready to help farmers until January 11, Congressman Stangeland said.

"That gave farmers less than three weeks to assemble their records, write a plan and get into the program," he said. "The dairy program should not be a paperwork contest.

A member of the House agriculture committee, Stangeland said that farmers and ASCS officials both fear a paperwork logjam in major dairy counties.

In early January, Congressman Stangeland asked Secretary Block to extend the program. "But we have not heard from the secretary, so we'll have to push for legislative instructions," he said.

"President Reagan signed this bill after a year of negotiations," Congressman Stangeland said. "It would seem that USDA would be willing to grant a little leeway to make this program a success."

"Farmers deserve more than three weeks to wade through the application process, especially when they are being asked to make a 15-month commitment," Congressman Stangeland said.

Because of the growing lack of uniformity, the committee is being formed to advise the supreme court of recommendations to increase uniform handling of probate matters.

The committee is to report its findings and recommendations to the state supreme court by October 1.

Mylo Carlson Herd Tops In County DHIA

Jerry Hamre, supervisor of the Pennington county dairy herd improvement association, lists the following herds as top in the association for November:

In first place is Mylo Carlson, whose herd produced an average of 48.7 pounds of milk and 1.85 pounds of butterfat; followed by Lyle Swanson, 43.9 and 1.41; Merle Lundeen and Perry, 42.2 and 1.51; Hanson Heritage, 42.2 and 1.48; Leland Nelson and Sons, 40.1 and 1.52; Gene Nelson, 39.5 and 1.54; Pearson Bros., 38.4 and 1.53; Hamrick Bros., 38.1 and 1.66; Walter Bros., 37.0 and 1.44; and Orlan Stolaas and Joel, 36.6 and 1.47.

Herd averages are affected by the number of dry cows in the herd. Amount of milk or butterfat produced is averaged out over all the cows. This gives the farmer a record of the earning power of his herd for the month. If many dry cows are included in the herd, the average for the month may be low, even though the cows which are milking are high producers.

There were 25 DHIA herds and two owner-sampler herds on test for November, for a total of 27 herds on test.

USDA Withholds Dairy Sign-Up Results

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

This space in this issue was expected to be devoted to providing summary information on the sign-up in area counties for the milk diversion program offered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Sign-up in that program officially ended yesterday and county offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service have compiled information on the sign-up results.

Our normal procedure over the years has been to contact the county offices, talk to the director or the employee in charge of such farm programs, and to be told the information we needed to report to our readers. Personnel of the ASCS offices in these area counties have always been exceptionally cooperative with us, recognizing the importance of keeping open lines of communication with the community. In some instances, perhaps many instances, the personnel have set aside other duties to comply with our requests.

But today is different, and we feel the public should be aware of what is taking place. The Times can't pass on information on the dairy diversion sign-up because the U.S. Department of Agriculture contends it's a secret.

Let's run that by you again. We can't tell you anything about the dairy diversion sign-up in Pennington, Marshall, Red Lake, Roseau, Polk or Clearwater counties because USDA believes it is privileged information. Never mind that public funds are being expended by a public agency through a public program. Never mind that the dairymen who have a specific interest in the program are being kept in the dark. USDA has put the clamps on what the public can be told about a public program. We think the public should be very upset about that.

At the heart of this situation is Notice LD-203 from the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office of the United States Department of Agriculture. Among other things, this directive states: "County offices shall NOT release county enrollment totals before information is released at the national level, about mid-February 1984. . . . State offices shall NOT release state or county totals before figures are released at the national level, about mid-February 1984." The directory is issued by the acting deputy administrator of state and county operations whose signature is unintelligible.

As a member of the "public" — that group of U.S. citizens who provide the public funds that support the public agencies — we emphatically resent this infringement on our right to be informed. We sincerely believe that such a directive is contradictory to provisions of freedom of information statutes, both state and federal. And we think that someone, or a group of someones, should be held accountable for this action and that care should be taken it doesn't happen again.

What is particularly aggravating is that such restriction of information is total nonsense. The program sign-up is over. Everyone who can get in is in; anyone who didn't get in is out. Release of information can have no effect on the program. For that matter, considerable effort was made by USDA and its offices through the media to affect the program during the sign-up period by encouraging participation.

We sympathize with the county directors and employees whose mouths are silenced by the directive. We know they would cooperate as they always have in the past. And we regret to tell the dairymen and others interested that we can't get them any information — not because it isn't available, but because Big Brother in Washington says it isn't accessible.

And we are incensed that the bureaucracy should take upon itself the role of censor and information manager in determining when and what the public is entitled to know. We have initiated contact with the office of our U.S. Senator, Rudy Boschwitz, and the Minnesota Newspaper association. We want to find out the professed justification for withholding information, and if authority for such action indeed exists. We will share our findings with our readers.

From time to time we have commented editorially on the importance of public agencies and public elective officials being required by law to be open in their handling of public business. USDA directive LD-203 is only one reason why we believe such laws are necessary. Now it is up to us to be sure that the laws are recognized and observed.

LHS, Goodridge Schools Set Snow Fests This Week

Times Reporter

Activities in area schools tend to reach a peak of silliness at this time of year, as "cabin fever" is battled with various events falling under the heading of "Snow Fest activities."

Although the names and the individual events vary from school to school and from year to year, the results are generally the same: relief from boredom and a whole lot of fun. As an additional bonus, some worthwhile causes also benefit from the students' youthful enthusiasm.

While the Thief River Falls area vocational technical institute recently completed its Sno-Fest celebration (which was pictorially covered in the pages of the Times), similar events are being held this week at Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls and at the Goodridge high school.

Lincoln is using one more letter in the spelling of its "Snow-Fest" celebration, and has given it the theme: "Send Her My Love." Activities actually began on Thursday, January 26, when representatives from each class were issued Snow-Fest buttons. Students were given until 4 p.m. today to sell them, with the class selling the most buttons earning points used to determine whose representatives would be named Snow-Fest king and queen.

Classes voted on who would represent them as candidates for the royal title, with the seniors selecting Nora Hushaugen and Jeff Langan, juniors selecting Cindy Kain and Shannon Kezar, sophomores naming Lisa Langan and Jim Amundson, and freshmen choosing Vicki Weigand and Andy Gengler.

Royalty is to be selected on the basis of total points collected by their class in competitive events which include: button sales; collection of aluminum and steel pop and beer cans for recycling (with profits to be donated to Camp Courage); judging of approved skits to be given at a 2 p.m. Friday assembly; wall decorations in the cafeteria (to be judged on the basis of originality, artistic ability and development of the "Send Her My Love" theme); and attendance at basketball games played by the boys January 27, and by the girls January 31.

Coronation will be conducted at an assembly in the school auditorium on Friday, which will begin with skits at 2 p.m.

Other activities included "spirit days" for which students observed special dress codes, including: punk day on Monday, cowboy and Indian day on Tuesday, clash day on Wednesday, hunting day on Thursday, and dress-up day on Friday. A broomball game will be held between the freshman and sophomore girls at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the old arena, and a dance will be held Saturday night in the Lincoln cafeteria, with music by Patterson Kane.

Goodridge high school is using a shorter title for its "Sno-Fest" activities, but has counter balanced that by including seventh and eighth graders in its activities.

Candidates selected to represent their classes in competition for the title of Sno-Fest king and queen include: seventh graders Shelley Cullen and Robert Coan, eighth graders Tracy Aandal and Shawn Groven, freshmen Tami Quam and Richard Troska, sophomores Lori Sjulestad and Andy Bates, juniors Janita Sigerud and Brian Johnson, and seniors Debbie Johnson and Brian Nelson.

Coronation will be conducted at an assembly in the school gymnasium at 1:15 Friday. Selection of royalty will be based on the number of dance tickets sold by their classmates. The dance will be held from 9:45 to 12:45 Friday, in the gymnasium, with music by the KSRQ Music Machine.

Other activities observed during the week were a paper heart day on Tuesday, during which the boys wore paper hearts and were not supposed to talk to the girls. When they did, the girl spoke to got to take their heart, with the girl collecting the most hearts earning free admission to the basketball games Friday night.

Dress codes were observed also during the week, with Wednesday designated Punk day, Thursday as hat and glasses day, and Friday as dress-up day.

Coronation ceremonies on Friday will be followed by a pep fest and various games and activities to build enthusiasm for the basketball games that evening. Stephen will be the opposition. In that double-header, which will feature the girls' varsity at 6:30 and the boy's varsity at 8 p.m.

CANDIDATES FOR Snow Fest King and Queen at Lincoln high school this year were chosen by each of the four classes. In ascending order are: Seniors Jeff Langan and Nora Hushagen, Juniors Shannon Kezar and Cindy Kain, Sophomores Jim Amundson and Lisa Langan, and Freshmen Andy Gengler and Vicki Weigand. Coronation will take place at an assembly in the school auditorium on Friday, with skits beginning at 2 p.m. Royalty is selected on the basis of competitive events between classes, which include can collecting, button sales, wall decorating, skits and attendance at games.

Fuel Aid May Be Available

Northwest community action will be taking applications for energy assistance from 1 to 4 p.m. February 8, 15 and 22 at the Grygla community center; and February 10, 17 and 24 at the Middle River community center.

Persons wishing to apply for assistance must make an appointment in advance. East Marshall county residents may obtain further information by calling 874-4605.

Library Senior Program Will Feature Films

Two films, "Voices on the River" and "Aquarium," will be presented for the senior citizen's day program at Northwest regional library from 3 to 4 p.m. Thursday, February 2. Refreshments will be served.

"Voices on the River" evokes the eventful past of the Minnesota River. Glimpses of history are recaptured through graphics, commentaries and music, and past and present come together in interviews with two elderly residents. St. Peter is highlighted as a typical river settlement.

"Aquarium" is a non-narrated glimpse of some of the sea's most unusual inhabitants. Underwater photography reveals fish that can walk, fish with hands, fish swimming upside down, and more.

A LIFELESS BOBBER floats at the side of this hole in the ice despite the concentration of a couple of determined fishermen during the Knights of Columbus fishing derby in Thief River Falls Sunday. First fish among the 19 northerns and one sheepshead caught was hooked by Margaret Syverson. Largest fish was caught by Rick Jensen, most by Joe Sabol (two fish). Oldest fisherman was Joe Rinowski (88), youngest was Erin Schultz (four months) and fisherman coming the greatest distance was Herb Counter from North Carolina.

TRF Gets Share Of State-Aid Street Fund

Thief River Falls is one of 110 Minnesota communities sharing the 1984 municipal state-aid street (MSAS) fund of $48,735,190, according to Gordon Fay, director, office of state aid, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

Thief River Falls allotment for 1984 is $188,629.

The yearly apportionment, which represents nine per cent of the funds available for distribution from the highway user tax distribution fund, is alloted according to a prescribed formula to municipalities having populations of 5,000 or more. Highway user tax distribution fund is composed of monies from the state motor fuel tax and motor vehicle registration fees.

Remaining funds in the highway user tax fund are distributed as follows: 62 per cent to the truck highway fund and 29 per cent to the county state-aid highway fund.

Municipal state-aid street fund makes available to the communities $41,962,145 for construction and $6,773,045 for maintenance of the 2,076-mile MSAS system.

This year's apportionment is more than six times the initial apportionment of $7.3 million made to 58 communities in 1958. Since then, almost $560 million have been shared by the state's municipalities with more than 5,000 population.

Heading the list of 1984 recipients is Minneapolis, eligible for $7,192,942; followed by St. Paul, $5,664,817; Duluth, $2,131,632; Bloomington, $1,335,661; St. Cloud, $1,022,487; Rochester, $877,490; Minnetonka, $857,187; Edina, $840,961; Burnsville, $767,909; Brooklyn Park, $733,876.

By state legislative action, Ely, Luverne, Pipestone and St. Paul Park will share in the fund this year

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Jodi Lynne Peterson And Kevin Nelson Are Wed

Jodi Lynne Peterson and Kevin LeeRoy Nelson exchanged marriage vows at a candlelight ceremony on Dec. 30, at 7:30 p.m., at the Grace Lutheran church in Grygla.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Peterson of Grygla. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Retzer of Cleveland, N.D.

Rev. Robert Amundson officiated at the double ring ceremony. At the piano was Heather Diesen of Warren. As the bridesmaids' processional, Durinda Steichen, a cousin of the groom, sang "Through the Eyes of Love." The traditional wedding march was played as the bride was escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents. During the ceremony, Kurt Vandermeer, a friend of the bride, played the guitar and sang "The Wedding Song" and Steichen sang "God, a Woman, and a Man."

Candelabra with white tapers, greenery and purple bows graced the chancel. Matching candelabra with greenery and bows marked the pews. On the altar were vases of white daisies, purple and lavender carnations and heather.

For her wedding, the bride selected a white organza gown featuring a fitted bodice with lace leg-of-mutton sleeves and a Queen Anne neckline trimmed with Chantilly lace and pearls. Her A-line skirt with Chantilly lace trim, featured pick-up effects on the sides and a multi-ruffled semi-cathedral length train. Her fingertip veil and headpiece matched her gown. She carried a cascade of lavender roses, white Pixie carnations and heather.

For sentiment, she also carried the handkerchief carried by her maternal grandmother at her wedding, and wore the pearl necklace which her mother wore when she was married.

Maid of honor was Sherry (Pebs) Peterson, a sister of the bride. Other attendants were Diane Landerville, a friend of the bride, and Kristy Peterson, a sister of the bride. Their huckleberry gowns with fitted empire bodices, featured double spaghetti shoulder straps, pleated skirts, and detachable lace capes. Their pearl earrings were gifts from the bride. Each attendant carried a round lace-backed bouquet of white daisies and purple and lavender Pixie carnations, matching the Pixie carnation in their hairpieces.

Personal attendant was Marles Larson, aunt of the bride.

DuWayne Nelson, a brother of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Blaise Vasey, friend of the groom, and Brent Nelson, a brother of the groom. The ushers were Jim Larson and Lynn Anderson, cousins of the bride. The groom wore an all-white tuxedo with two lavender roses and heather pinned on his lapel. His attendants and ushers were attired in gray Baron tuxedos. Their boutonnieres featured Pixie carnations in lavender and purple.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Peterson wore a frost rose colored gown with a draped front and back neckline. The groom's mother was attired in a wine colored, long-sleeved gown with a cream colored lace yoke. Their identical corsages were of white Pixie carnations accented by a lavender rose.

Honor guests were Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Wilkens, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Kramlick, grandparents, and Bruce and Marles Larson, the bride's godparents.

The wedding programs were distributed by Sue Larson, cousin of the bride. Troy Nelson, a brother of the groom, served as acolyte.

A reception followed in the church fellowship hall with Dale and Kaye Wilkens and Dean and Gloria Steichen, uncles and aunts of the bride and groom, respectively, as hosts and hostesses. At the guest book was Lori Kotok, a friend of the couple. Cindy Nordby and Angie Vasey, also friends of the couple, served the punch.

Highlighting the serving table was a three-tiered wedding cake baked and decorated by the bride's mother. It featured a lighted, flowing water fountain at the base, stairways extending down both sides of the cake to two-tiered cakes, and miniature replicas of the bridal party on the steps. Fresh flowers and greenery topped each tier and surrounded the base. The cake was cut and served by Pat Anderson, aunt of the bride, and Lori Weis, cousin of the bride. Pouring coffee were Batte Enzminger, aunt of the groom, and Rhonda Hoffman, cousin of the bride.

Waitresses were Kari Larson, cousin of the bride, and Casanda Sistad, a friend. The gifts were carried by Gary and Shawna Wilkens, cousins of the bride. Rice, in purple silk roses, was distributed by Jennifer Wilkens, Angie Weis, Crystal Hoffman and Missy Anderson, also cousins of the bride.

The evening prior to the ceremony, the groom's parents hosted a dinner at Steak Knife II for the bridal party and immediate families.

Following a wedding trip, the couple is at home at 160 Forrest Knolls in Crookston, where both are employed. Photo, LeMar Photography, Crookston.

Nancy Jo Peters And Pat Gerszewski Wed

Marriage vows were exchanged on December 3, at 2:30 p.m., at the Assumption Catholic church at Florian by Nancy Jo Peters of Viking and Pat Gerszewski of Newfolden.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Peters of Viking; and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gerszewski, Newfolden.

Rev. Frank Kulhawik officiated at the ceremony, together with Rev. Robert Moberg of Viking. At the organ was Kathy Erickson, a friend of the couple. She played the traditional wedding march as the bride was escorted to the altar by her father. During the cemony, Nancy Halvorson, a friend, sang, "Wedding Song," and "The Lord's Prayer." She was joined by Paul Potucek, a brother-in-law of the bride, in singing "You and I."

The chancel was graced with globed candelabra with red satin bows, matching the red bows that marked the pews. On the altar were red and white poinsettias.

For her wedding, the bride selected a gown of white taffeta styled with a molded bodice appliqued with Venice lace. Chantilly lace and satin bows trimmed the elbow-length Diana sleeves. The sheer yoke and Mandarin collar featured Schiffli embroidery accented with pearls and iridescents. The multi-tier Chantilly lace ruffles on her bouffant skirt, creating a peek-aboo effect in front, flowed back into a cathedral-length train. Her finger-tip veil, edged with lace, was held by a corresponding sheer crown, accented with matching lace, pearls and iridescents. She carried a cascade of white roses, feathered red carnations, white snowflake mums, holly and Christmas greenery.

Jill Potucek of Warren attended her sister as matron of honor. Other attendants were Paula Kukowski, Brooklyn Park, a sister of the bride; Paulette Holthusen, Goodridge, a sister of the groom, and Kim Peters, Inver Grove Heights, a cousin of the bride. Their identical gowns of red taffeta were fashioned with fitted bodices with princess necklines featuring a ruffle that extended into off-the-shoulder rosettes. A sash, tied in a bow at back, complemented the floor-length dirndl skirt. Their modified cascade bouquets were of red carnations, white snowflake mums, holly, Christmas greenery and silver ribbon.

Serving as mini-bride was Sherry Gerszewski of Elk City, Okla., a niece of the groom. Her gown, veil and headpiece were similar to the bride's. The rings were carried by Corey Potucek, Warren, a nephew of the bride. Like the groom, he wore a white tuxedo with vest and cummerbund, white ruffled shirt and boutonniere featuring two small white roses.

Best man was Roger Gerszewski, Elk City, Okla., a brother of the groom. Groomsmen were Neal Peterson, Holt, Mike Lindemoen, Newfolden, and Bernard Bjorgaard, Lancaster, all friends of the groom. The ushers were Steven Stein, Warroad and Kelly Holthusen, Goodridge, brothers-in-law of the groom; Paul Potucek, Warren, and Dean Kukowski, Brooklyn Park, brothers-in-law of the bride. They wore black tuxedos, white shirts, red bow ties and cummberbunds. Their boutonnieres were two small red roses.

The mother of the bride was attired in a street-length dress of silver-gray silk with long princess sleeves. Silver pearl buttons complemented her neckline. Her jewelry was also in silver pearl. The groom's mother wore a street-length dress of periwinkle blue polyester crepe with long sheer sleeves and a bow at the neckline. Their corsages were of white roses, featured carnations, holly and silver ribbon.

Special guests were Selma Peters, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Mead, grandparents of the bride; Mrs. Stella Gerszewski, grandmother of the groom; and Dana Peterson, Thief River Falls, the bride's personal attendant.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a reception and wedding supper in the church parlors for 250 relatives and friends. Host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Don Haupt, Viking, brother-in-law and sister of the groom. Doreen Grunewald, Gilby, N.D., a friend of the bride, registered the guests. At the punch bowl, serving hot apple cider, were Joey and Kim Kazmierczak of Stephen.

The wedding cake, a three-tiered creation, was iced in white and decorated with red and white roses, miniature wedding bells and holly. Topping the cake were two wedding bells surrounded by red roses. The cake was cut and served by Yvonne Philipp, aunt of the bride, and Francis Gerszewski, aunt of the groom.

Waitresses were Rena Peters, Nancy Peterson, Deb Kukowski, Julie Gustafson, and LuJean Skadsem. Peggy Bjorgaard and Karen Krohn, friends of the bride, arranged the gifts.

The couple is planning a wedding trip to Florida this month.

The bride is a 1983 graduate of Marshall County Central high school at Newfolden and is employed at the Viking cafe in Viking. The groom, a 1981 graduate of Marshall County Central, is engaged in farming. The newly-weds are at home in Newfolden. Photo, R.L. Nieland studio, Thief River Falls.

Boy Scouts To Note Growth On Anniversary

(Editor's Note: Following article on the Boy Scouts of America program and its application to this area was provided to the Times by Tom Przybylski, district scout executive stationed in Thief River Falls.)

We hear good things about the Boy Scouts of America these days.

For one thing, their numbers are again growing, after a sharp decline during the 70's. Especially impressive is the phenomenal growth of Exploring, the senior coeducational program for high school and college youth. It's heavily career oriented, a relatively new role for scouting and one which deserves applause.

The organization also seems to continue expanding its horizons, reaching out to persons it didn't specifically pinpoint before.

We are talking about its extensive effort to reach the handicapped; its new Tiger Cub program for seven-year-old boys; its "Prepared for Today" material aimed at the latch-key child, male or female, in scouting or out, who must learn to cope much of the time on his or her own; its appeal to teenage young women who comprise more than 40 per cent of Exploring's membership.

On February 8, the Boy Scouts of America marks its 74th anniversary.

It is good to know that, although times and techniques change, some things don't, such as the principles of the BSA. Its purposes of reaching young people and guiding them toward good citizenship, sound character and strong bodies haven't changed one iota since 1910.

As the Boy Scouts of America looks ahead to its Diamond Jubilee just around the corner in 1985, the organization is taking time to pause and salute the more than one million volunteers who make the whole program possible: the Cub Scout leaders, Scoutmasters, Explorer advisors, merit badge counselors, committeemen and women, and those who serve in a wealth of leadership roles on local, area, regional and national levels. Tagged for thanks too, are many "unregistered volunteers," not the least of whom are spouses.

Some 14,561 young people and another 5,000 adults are registered in the Northern Lights council which serves this community; they are organized into 100 Tiger Cub groups, 301 Cub Scout packs, 256 Boy Scout troops, and 85 Explorer posts.

As the BSA goes about its business, much of it behind the scenes and out of the public eye, we hope others will consider volunteering their services as leaders or joining the movement as youngsters and young adults. We hope our numbers will grow as, in the words of this year's theme, others "Catch the Scouting Spirit."

Happy 16th Nicki B.

Middle River Man Charged In Shooting

Charged with attempted second degree murder and second degree assault, Michael Ernest Johnson, 40, Middle River, was released on $20,000 bond Thursday from the Marshall county law enforcement center in Warren.

Johnson's arrest on January 11 resulted from his allegedly firing a 30-30 caliber rifle through the windshield of a pickup occupied by David Ray Anderson and LuAnn Olson of Middle River. The incident reportedly occurred about 2 a.m. January 10 in the yard of the Olson residence in Middle River. The bullet apparently narrowly missed Anderson's head and shattered glass inside the pickup cab.

Johnson made his first appearance in Marshall county court before Judge Larry Jorgenson and bond was set at $20,000 on January 12. On January 16 he appeared in district court in Warren before Judge Warren Saetre who ordered the $20,000 bond continued and appointed a public defender to represent the defendant. Bond was posted through a Grand Forks bonding agency and Johnson was released under terms of the bond Thursday.

Attempted second degree murder conviction carries a maximum sentence of 20 years in jail while the assault charge carries a maximum penalty of five years in jail, a $5,000 fine, or both.

January 28 — Warren J. Malwitz, 21, route 3, Red Lake Falls, was treated at Northwestern hospital for injuries to his lower right leg. Apparently, while he was fox hunting in River Falls township at about 3:45 p.m., the hammer of a holstered 22 caliber revolver snagged on some brush as he walked, causing the gun to discharge into his leg.

"PUNK DAY" was observed at Lincoln high school Monday, as part of Snow Fest activities, drawing some truly bizarre costumes into the hallways. This group included (from left) Shari Larson, Denice Anderson, Missy Bondy, Peggy Mehrkens and Colleen Cullen. Yes, that dress is a garbage bag and those pants are bright orange.

Volunteers May Claim Tax Deductions

Arrival of the new year brings with it the beginning of the state and federal income tax season.

When completing income tax forms, volunteers should remember to deduct out-of-pocket expenses that have been incurred while volunteering for a qualifying organization.

According to "Income Tax Deductions for Contributions", U.S. Internal revenue service publication 526, expenses that volunteers may deduct include automobile mileage and expense, bus and cab fares, parking and toll fees, telephone bills, meals and lodging if away overnight and direct gifts of money.

One of two methods can be used when claiming automobile related expenses. Deduction can be based either on a flat rate of nine cents per mile, or on an actual expense basis.

Types of expenses that volunteers may not deduct include the value of time donated, dependent care costs, their meals unless away overnight, and their own entertainment.

Before expenses incurred as a volunteer for an organization can be claimed as a tax deduction, the organization must have received prior approval by the Internal revenue service (IRS) as a qualifying organization.

Although not all inclusive, the types of organizations include organizations formed for charitable, religious, educational, scientific or literary purposes, and units of government. Volunteers should check with the organization on its tax-deductible status.

It is important that whatever deductions are being claimed, records should be kept. Information should include the name of the organization, the amount and the date of each contribution.

A complete description of federal deductions can be obtained from local IRS offices. Ask for Publication 526, "Income Tax Deductions for Contributions."

It has been the practice of the Minnesota department of revenue to allow the same deductions as the IRS. Therefore, this information should also apply to Minnesota income taxes. Because this is general information and may not apply in all cases, questions should be directed to the IRS, Minnesota department of revenue, or to a private tax consultant or preparer.

For more information on volunteerism, contact the Minnesota office on volunteer services, 500 Rice Street, St. Paul, MN 55155, or call (800) 652-9747.

Houghton Is BSU Soloist And Clinician

Steve Houghton, percussionist, will be a guest soloist and clinician at the 11th annual Bemidji state university jazz festival February 3 and 4 and a guest soloist for the winter concert of the BSU symphony band February 5.

Houghton will critique each of the 16 bands performing at the festival and, with clinician Steve Wright, give a clinic for all interested musicians Saturday at 4 p.m. in the Thompson recital hall.

In Saturday evening's concert at 7:30 in the Bangsberg Main theatre, Houghton will be the guest soloist on the songs "Over and Over and Over and Over," "Chameleon," "Hip and Cool," and "Time Bomb."

In the symphony band's winter concert Sunday at 2 p.m. in the main theatre, Houghton will be the soloist for an as yet unpublished Les Hooper composition written especially for him entitled "Music for Solo Percussion and Winds." In the piece, Houghton solos on timpani, drum set, vibraphone, marimba and xylophone.

Admission for each of the concerts is $2 for the general public. For more information, contact the BSU music department at (218) 755-2915.

Original Plays To Be Staged At BSU Theatre

Original plays written by Bemidji area playwrights will be performed at 8 p.m. February 17-18 in the Bangsberg downstairs theatre on the Bemidji state university campus. There is no admission and the public is invited.

The playwrights include Dr. William Elliott, professor of English at BSU; Jim Pitzen, BSU student; and Adair Johnson, Bemidji community resident.

"This is the first time the university has presented locally written plays," said Kay Robinson, assistant professor of speech at BSU. "I hope that these productions will encourage local people to share their creative work with others."

Elliott's play, entitled "This Night in Sleep," is directed by Roy Blackwood. It is the story of a young woman who is struggling with her family relationships and trying to sort her memories of the past from the present.

"Ghosts of the Children Crusade" by Pitzen is directed by Mary Lou Marchand. The play relates the experiences of a soldier wounded in the Vietnam War and his emotional difficulties at home after his discharge.

Adair's play, under the direction of Carol Richards, is titled "Shoes." It reflects the experience of a young boy learning to understand the feeling and actions of others by putting himself in the other's place.

The cast and crew of all three productions are from the university and the Bemidji community.

Caucus Books Available At State Office

Secretary of State Joan Anderson Growe has announced that the 1984 edition of "Precinct Caucuses in Minnesota" is now available from her office.

Tuesday, March 20 will be the uniform precinct caucus date in all of Minnesota's more than 4,000 precincts. Growe explained that the 1983 legislature set a new precinct date in March instead of the February date of past years. She said that the date was changed but the importance of caucuses is unchanged.

"Caucuses are still the grass roots beginning of the election process and give citizens a chance to affect the policies and candidates chosen by their political party," said Growe.

Precinct caucus pamphlet is part of the secretary of state's voter information program. Copies are being distributed by Minnesota's Democratic-Farmer-Labor and Independent-Republican parties, the league of women voters and other community groups.

Copies of "Precinct Caucuses in Minnesota" are available without charge from the Election Division, Office of the Secretary of State, 180 State Office Bldg., St. Paul, MN 55155-1299.

Chief's Corner

by Ken Froschheiser
Chief of Police
Thief River Falls, MN.

On February 6 the police department and Pennington county sheriff's department will begin Operation Child Print in our local schools. This program has gained national attention over the past year and most law enforcement agencies are providing the service to their local citizens. The program is a crime prevention measure aimed at reducing child kidnapping and assisting in finding lost children.

We encourage parents in Thief River Falls to participate in this program. We cannot recall an incident of kidnapping of a child in this community other than through divorce settlements where the person taking the child was known. However, in the same breath we don't want to see it occur, and we should take every precautionary method to avoid it.

On Monday of this week fingerprint cards were sent home with all students in grades K-5 in our public schools. A cover letter explaining the process is also attached to each card. After reading the letter and the print card, if you decide to participate simply sign your permission on the print card and send it back to school with your child. After the prints are taken your child will bring the card home and you will maintain possession of it.

We recommend that you update the card on a yearly basis with pencil so that identification statistics, such as height and weight, stay current. Our printing schedule for the public schools will be as follows: Monday, February 6, Washington kindergarten; Tuesday, February 7, Washington K-5; Wednesday, February 8, Northrop K-5; Thursday, February 9, Mark Twain K-5; Friday, February 10, Mark Twain kindergarten 9 to 11 a.m.; Northrop kindergaren 1 to 3 p.m.

If you have pre-schoolers above three years of age who you want printed this year, we ask that you make arrangements at the law enforcement center. Children above the fifth grade can also be printed at the center with your permission. We stress that no fingerprints will be taken without the parent's or guardian's signature and no copies of prints will be maintained by law enforcement or School District 564.

During the following years each kindergarten class will be printed on a yearly basis so that all Thief River Falls children can be offered the program.

Thank you, and should you have any questions about the program, please call us.

Expects Access Phone Charges To Be Delayed

Although the senate decided against acting on controversial "access charges" for phone use, Senator Rudy Boschwitz remains confident they will be delayed well beyond the one-year moratorium announced by the federal communications commission (FCC).

"Currently, universal phone service is made affordable by a policy of increasing the costs of long-distance service," Sen. Boschwitz said. "The FCC announced in December 1982 its intention of replacing this long-standing policy with access charges, which would average about $8 per customer nationwide. Under pressure from consumers and Capitol Hill, the FCC put a self-imposed moratorium on its plan."

Cosponsor of a bill to do away with access charges, Sen. Boschwitz said the extra cost for phone service would be especially hard on rural customers and would cost Minnesotans $20 million.

"It is important to keep local phone service affordable to everyone," Boschwitz said. "An increase in phone bills would be particularly onerous to the elderly who are on fixed incomes and to rural customers, for whom telephone service would be most costly to offer."

Jobless Pay Fraud Cases Are Uncovered

Last year, 1,927 fraudulent unemployment insurance claims totaling $1,006,116 were uncovered by Minnesota department of economic security investigators, reports Eugene Sampson, assistant commissioner for the department's unemployment insurance division. Investigators recovered $550,781 in fraud overpayments last year.

Sampson said the number of fraudulent claims found in 1983 was down slightly from the number of cases identified in 1982, due mainly to a reduced claim load in 1983.

Sampson warned that employers who act in collusion with claimants committing fraud or who make reports to avoid the payment of unemployment insurance taxes are guilty of fraud and will be prosecuted. Eleven cases of employer fraud were detected in 1983, resulting in administrative fines and, in two cases, criminal prosecution.

Sampson added that during 1983, 44 cases of fraud involved sums sufficient to be referred to county attorneys for prosecution.

Persons who fraudulently receive unemployment insurance benefits are required to repay those amounts. Also, they may be disqualified from receiving some or all future benefits and be subject to prosecution as well.

Law governing unemployment insurance benefits states: Anyone who knowingly makes a false statement or representation or knowingly fails to disclose a material fact to obtain or increase any unemployment benefits is guilty of a gross misdemeanor, punishable by up to one year of imprisonment or a fine of up to $1,000 or both for each case of fraud.

Cases of fraud are detected by comparing claim statements with employer records, through information received from employers and members of the public and through audits of claims.

Jerry O'Connor To Speak At Winter Shows

As a native of the Red River valley, Jerry O'Connor will present the topic of "Be Proud, Be Happy, Be Involved" through a humorous approach in a message with regard to pride, self-worth and involvement.

O'Connor is scheduled to speak at the women's seminar luncheon on February 22, at the Red River Valley winter shows.

Admittance for the women's seminar will be by ticket only. Advanced tickets are available by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Thelma Ross, Red River Valley Winter Shows, P.O. Box 402, Crookston, Mn. 56716. Cost of seminar luncheon tickets will be $8. No tickets will be reserved without payment and admission will be limited to those holding luncheon tickets. No refunds will be given.

Registration Reminder Is Given By DPS

Owners of trucks, trailers, recreational vehicles, buses, motorcycles and motorized bicycles — all classified as miscellaneous vehicles by the Minnesota department of public safety's division of driver and vehicle services (DVS) — should register their vehicles in person rather than through the mail after February 1.

Miscellaneous vehicle registration applications mailed to DVS after February 1 may not be processed and returned by mail in time for owners to attach them to their vehicles before the deadline of 12:01 a.m. March 2, reminded Marlene Swanson, director of DVS.

To apply in person for vehicle registrations, owners can stop at any deputy registrar office or at the DVS main office in the transportation building near the state capitol in St. Paul. The Twin Cities has 27 deputy registrar offices and each county has at least one.

For vehicles in the prorate class, a $2.50 late fee went into effect on January 10 and must be added to the regular registration fee. For other miscellaneous vehicles, the same penalty fee is due effective March 12.

AHA Home With Heart Program Set For Feb.

Minnesota nursing homes and retirement centers will open their "Home with Heart" beginning February, heart month, in efforts to combat heart disease for the American heart association, Minnesota affiliate.

"Home with Heart" is a celebration of activities for residents, family members and the community while raising funds to help continue the fight against heart disease. The event involves senior citizens in fund raising activities from auctions to talent shows and marathon events.

"Involvement in the activities is a great way to promote a good self image for residents," said Harold Nelson, 1984 state heart fund chairman. "Last year was the first year for the "Home With Heart" event which raised over $43,100," he said. A goal of $70,000 has been set for "Home with Heart" during 1984.

Through the efforts of the American Heart association, the percentage of all deaths due to cardiovascular disease has fallen below 50 per cent for the first time since 1948. Despite these gains, cardiovascular disease continues as the leading cause of death in America claiming the lives of 979,500 Americans in 1982.

Cattle Feedlot Inventory Is Down From '83

Minnesota feedlots held seven per cent less cattle on Jan. 1, 1984 than they did a year ago, or a total of 375,000 head. Fourth-quarter placements slipped fractionally from the same quarter last year.

Cattle marketings during the October-December quarter fell a sharp 22 per cent from a year earlier. During the January-March 1984 quarter, Minnesota farmers expect to hold marketings at last year's level of 150,000 head.

The 13 states' January 1 inventory of 9.91 million head was four per cent less than a year ago. This inventory included 6.75 million steers and steer calves, or 68 per cent of the total. October-December placements edged slightly higher than the previous year.

Fed cattle marketings during October-December showed only a one per cent increase. This level of increase will be repeated in the January-March quarter this year.

HECB Cutbacks 'Not Realistic' For Crookston

"UMC is already on top of it," was the University's response to the new report of the Higher education coordinating board's (HECB) report that recommended elimination of five degree programs at the University of Minnesota - Crookston (UMC). Although HECB has no fiscal power over UMC, it does collect data for the legislature.

The report, prepared by the board's staff based on survey responses from Minnesota's public and private post-secondary schools, reviewed numbers of graduates from some 3,000 individual programs across the state. It found 153 that had no graduates from 1977 to 1982, and it recommended those be modified or scrapped.

UMC's planning has looked closely at the five areas cited for elimination in the report — real estate, financial-credit-banking, crops management, education secretary, and executive housekeeping, and found that most have strong enrollments, according to Dr. Donald Sargeant, assistant provost for academic affairs.

Every two years UMC prepares a written document, supported by campus-wide input, which reflects employment needs, student interest and changes occurring in society. The UMC report looks at what should be strengthened, consolidated or eliminated.

"Since we are no longer in the growth area, there is no more money on the scene," said Sargeant. "We're looking at a gradual internal shifting of resources."

Of the five courses the report suggests eliminating at Crookston, one has already been eliminated, three are courses which hold strong enrollments, and one is a back-up course for other majors.

Credit management has already been dropped from UMC's business division curriculum. Financial management is a strong program with 40 students enrolled and real estate enrolls 25 to 35 students each quarter through continuing education with offerings in Roseau, Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks as well as in Crookston, according to business division chairman Rob Smith.

"Although real estate never produces any graduates, it continues to satisfy a community need for pre- and post-real estate license requirements," Smith said.

Executive housekeeping program, also recommended for elimination, is one of the highest enrollment areas for summer seminars with 50 to 75 participants in many of its offerings.

Crop management, another course slated for elimination, provides courses highly related to diversified agriculture and soils and fertilizer technology majors. Finally, the education secretary program has already been combined with other secretarial courses.

"We do have lower enrollment in some programs than we'd like to see," added Sargeant, "but we also want to increase enrollment." While the total university system showed a 2.4 per cent student decrease, UMC experienced a 1.7 per cent decrease.

Ten 'Saved By Safety Belt' Awards Given

Ten Minnesotans, including four children, were presented with "saved by the safety belt" awards in 1983, according to Maj. Arthur A. Rinta of the Minnesota state patrol.

Award grew out of the concern of the Minnesota safety council, the state patrol and the Minnesota department of public safety that something should be done to bring home to the motoring public the life saving capabilities of automotive safety belts and child safety seats.

Nominations for the awards are made by state troopers and other law enforcement officers present at the scenes of accidents. Awards are restricted to those who did not contribute to the cause of the accident itself. To underscore the significance of the awards, they are delivered to the recipients at their homes and presented to them in a brief ceremony by uniformed state troopers.

Awards are made to children, as well as to adults, to accent the vital protection child safety seats afford to the very young, who are otherwise nearly always severely injured in car accidents. With the advent of the mandatory child passenger restraints amendment last year, only six children under the age of three were killed in traffic accidents, compared to 12 in 1982.

Typical of the younger survivors was Matthew Schirmer of St. Paul. On August 20, 1983, Matthew, then two and one-half was traveling with his father, Terrance W. Schirmer, when their car was rear-ended. Impact rammed the Schirmer vehicle into the car ahead of it. At that moment, inside the car, the tremendous inertial forces of the collision wrapped the rear car seat around Matthew but his child safety seat held and he escaped with only minor injuries.

Other survivors who received "saved by the safety belt" awards in 1983 were Sheri Anne and Michael Breegemann of Jordan, Matthew Haschka, eight months old of Prior Lake; Bradley Lee Roche of Eden Prairie; James E. Sanborne and his daughter Amanda, then 13 months, of Chaska; Jessica Smithson, two, of Olivia; Nick A. Srdar of Duluth; and Bernece Arlene Sykora of Windom.

"I have no doubt that there were a good many more cases like these that have gone unreported," Rinta said, noting that the program was begun just about a year ago. He urges all law enforcement officers and motorists to report such instances to one of the sponsoring agencies.

Cenex Sales Hold Up During Farming Slump

Cenex officials, speaking to more than 2,000 delegates at the cooperative's annual meeting in the Minneapolis convention center, reported $1.4 billion in sales, $3.3 million in operating earnings and $500,000 in patronage for fiscal 1983.

Operations reports indicated adverse weather conditions and the Payment-in-Kind program's 82 million idled acres produced a 4.7 per cent decline in Cenex sales. Industrywide farm supply sales, however, were down an estimated nine to 11 per cent.

Statistics presented at the annual meeting indicated: Cenex petroleum sales were up 2.5 per cent, with the industry down two per cent; plant food sales down 5.4 per cent, with the industry down 15.6 per cent; ag chemical sales up 1.5 per cent with the industry down 12 to 15 per cent; and feed and seed up 25 and 35 per cent respectively, while industry sales remained stable.

Production Of Milk Gains In December

Milk production posted still another month of gains as Minnesota dairy farmers reported a December output of 859 million pounds.

Gains in U.S. output, however, resulted from both larger dairy herds (11.1 million, up 46,000) and higher output per cow (a 12-pound gain to 1,020 pounds).

Crop Planting Estimate Due February 16

February 16 is the next important report release date that will have an impact upon the marketing potentials for Minnesota crop producers who at least temporarily enjoy a favorable position and improved crop prices in the wake of the January 23 release of the national inventory of carryover crops, according to agriculture commissioner Jim Nichols.

Last week's grain stocks report, lower than anticipated, triggered increases in commodity market prices, reversing the declines that occurred in the wake of the Friday, January 13 final preliminary estimates on 1983 crops production.

Minnesota was estimated to hold the second highest crop carryover inventory stored on farms, behind only Iowa, and Minnesota was ranked fourth leading state in total crop carryover in all storage positions, on farms, in warehouses and held by processors.

February 16 is the scheduled release date for the annual initial estimate of 1984 crop planting intentions of the nation's farmers. State-by-state, crop-by-crop surveys of those intentions are now in progress for that report. Grain markets will again respond to those intentions although planting time is three months or more away.

Minnesota's on farm crops carryover this January 1 was estimated at more than 694.1 million bushels, nearly 13 per cent of the U.S. total held on farms, and seven per cent of the grand total in all storage positions in the nation.

Commissioner Nichols said that the latest production and grain stocks estimates also confirmed that Minnesota farmers marketed an all time high volume of crops during 1983, nearly 1.13 billion bushels. That exceeded the prior peak marketing volume in 1980 by almost 45.4 million bushels.

The gross farm value of last year's crops marketed is estimated at more than $4.1 billion, also topping the 1980 estimate of $3.8 billion market value of the grain and oilseeds sold and fed to livestock and poultry during the year.

DNR Has Trees Available, But Limits Choice

Orders for tree planting stock may still be placed with the Minnesota department of natural resources until March 15, but some species are sold out and others are nearly depleted, prompting a DNR recommendation that orders should not be delayed.

Russian olive and honeysuckle are the species which have been sold out. Black Walnut is only available for a portion of southern Minnesota.

Orders for individual species must be in units of 100 with a minimum order of 500 trees. Price for seedlings is $65 per thousand plus approximately $3 per thousand for transportation.

DNR personnel are available to help with species selection for individual sites or other landowner concerns. Further information is available by contacting local DNR Forestry offices in Grygla, 294-6115; Greenbush, 782-2205; Wannaska, 425-7666; Warroad, 386-1304; or Clear River, 386-1671; or toll free in St. Paul, 1-800-652-9747.

Public Hearing On Soybean Check-Off Set

Agriculture commissioner Jim Nichols has scheduled a public hearing for February 7 and a statewide referendum April 10 on a petition by Minnesota soybean producers to increase the producer checkoff from one cent to two cents per bushel on beans sold.

The public hearing on February 7 will be held at the North Mankato Holiday Inn on Highway 169. It will be convened at 9:30 a.m. by deputy agriculture commissioner Rollin M. Dennistoun.

More than 1,400 Minnesota soybean producers signed the petition co-sponsored by the Minnesota Soybean Growers association and the soybean research and promotion council.

The present soybean marketing checkoff of one cent per bushel has been in place since its approval by producers in August of 1977.

Sander Ludeman Jr., Tracy, chairman of the Minnesota soybean research and promotion council, said that petitioners recognize that the past six and one-half years of inflation has seriously eroded the purchasing power of the penny per bushel checkoff.

"Not merely maintaining, but increasing our research and promotional activities is particularly important for Minnesota soybean producers, if we are to continue to be competitive in a tightening world economy and improve our producer profit potentials," Commissioner Nichols stated. "Research is the key to producing more for less."

Soybeans and corn are Minnesota's most valuable farm crops. Nationally Minnesota is the third leading state in soybean production and fourth leading state in corn. More than 60 per cent of Minnesota's soybeans and soybean products are exported.

The present Minnesota penny per bushel soybean marketing checkoff provides $685,000 for market development promotion and more than $250,000 is annually invested in research in this state. This is augmented by additional research projects nation-wide, and global market promotion by the American Soybean association, also supported in part by Minnesota marketing checkoffs.

Wisconsin and Texas soybean producers have already raised their marketing checkoffs to two cents per bushel, and several additional states are in the process of taking the same action.

Prevention Of Crime Week To Be Observed

Governor Rudy Perpich has proclaimed February 12 to 18 as crime prevention week. All Minnesotans are encouraged to use this week to renew their year-round efforts to reduce crime, said Commissioner Paul Tschida of the Minnesota department of public safety.

Crime declined 5.8 per cent in the first nine months of 1983 compared with the same period in 1982. Minnesotans are urged to help continue this reduction by constantly practicing crime prevention techniques, said Tschida.

Charles Rix, coordinator of Minnesota crime watch, a program of the Minnesota department of public safety, recommends that several crime prevention strategies be adopted by citizens.

Join with neighbors to form a block watch club to watch each others' property and report suspicious activity to law enforcement officers. Block watch has been effective in reducing neighborhood crime.

Enroll in operation identification — a free, property identification program available from local police and sheriff departments. Possibility of burglary is reduced when homeowners enroll in operation identification.

Ask your local police or sheriff department for a free home or business security survey. Crime prevention officer will inspect your dwelling or business and recommend steps that can be taken to guard against burglary or robbery.

Lock all windows and doors in your home. United States bureau of justice statistics indicate that 42 per cent of all home burglaries in 1981 occured without forced entry.

Walk with a friend, stay on well-lighted streets and do not hitchhike to avoid being assaulted on the street. When approached by a suspicious person, run away and towards a group of people if possible. If forced to defend yourself and the assailant is unarmed, hit the person in the nose. This sudden blow can make escape possible by temporarily immobilizing the attacker.

Vehicle thefts can be prevented by locking doors, closing windows and keeping packages out of sight. Also park in well lighted areas with the wheels turned into the curb and do not hide keys in your vehicle.

"What to do before the burglar comes," "Be on the safe side" and "Crime on wheels" are free crime watch booklets that suggest ways to prevent home burglary, personal assault and vehicle theft. These booklets are available at local law enforcement agencies.

Crime prevention week is observed to promote the use of crime fighting techniques by everyone, according to Commissioner Tschida. But these techniques require year-round practice if crime is to be prevented, he said.

Insurance and Safety Tips

By CARL L. ANDERSON

SEAT BELTS SAVE LIVES

You're a responsible citizen. You wouldn't think about driving your car without the right kind of insurance.

Neither would millions of others. Yet it's amazing how many otherwise sensible people — both drivers and passengers balk at the simple act of putting on a seat belt.

That's too bad, because innumerable studies prove conclusively that seat belts, when properly used, do save lives.

What's more, seat belts are quite as effective — and important — close to home as they are hundreds of miles away. Many persons strap themselves in for long trips, but ignore seat belts when making shorter jaunts. That's downright foolish. Especially since statistics show that three-quarters of all vehicular accidents take place within a 25-mile radius of the victims' homes.

So buckle up. And remember: We can protect you against many kinds of risk — but not against your refusal to protect yourself.

We represent INA-Aetna. But we work for you.

Starting with a 45-44 overtime victory at Crookston Jan. 13, the Lincoln high school basketball team has pieced together a string of five pretty solid showings that has helped erase some of the memories of an embarrassing 84-39 home court loss at the hands of Bemidji to start the New Year — undoubtedly the low point of the 1983-84 season for the Prowlers.

Thief River Falls will try to continue its recent streak of competitive performances — not all wins, but good solid efforts from a team trying to shake a losing image — Friday when the rival Pirates make an appearance in the Lincoln gym.

After knocking off Crookston, Thief River Falls lost a close 42-40 game to Marshall County Central, and played well in losses to heavily favored East Grand Forks 55-48 and Warren 64-54 before beating a struggling Mahnomen team 50-33 last Friday.

A strong Fergus Falls team will follow Crookston into the Lincoln gym on Fri., Feb. 10, with the Prowlers closing out a six-game homestand the following night against Middle River.

Fergus Falls defeated Crookston 70-59 Saturday, dropping the Pirates to 5-7 for the year and lifting the Otters to 9-2. It was the first time in six games the final margin was wider than four points for the Pirates, who lost to unbeaten Fosston 68-65 the night before.

Crookston actually out-scored Fergus Falls from the field, but the Otters were 20-for-27 at the free throw line where the Pirates were only 5-for-9.

Senior forward Tim Swenson scored 32 points for the Otters, getting 21 of those in the second half, including a 6-for-7 showing at the free throw line the final 1:30 of the game. Senior guard Jeff Bigger had a season-high 20 points for the Pirates, who played much of the fourth quarter without starter Jim Reitmeier, who suffered an ankle injury.

"His ankle is fairly good-sized," Crookston coach Herb Hasz told Lori Mateer of the Crookston Times. "He's not walking very well, and looks questionable for Friday."

Hasz said he was "pretty well pleased" with the Pirates' play over the weekend. Saturday against Fergus Falls he noted, "We just got into too fast a game for us. We like to play a fast-moving game, but not the type they got us into."

Hibbing Is MCCC Hockey Leader

Hibbing all but locked up the 1983-84 Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) regular season hockey title with a weekend split at home against closest challenger University of Minnesota-Crookston. The Cardinals won 11-7 with eight power play goals Friday night, with UMC winning 8-6 Saturday afternoon.

A disputed five-minute major penalty against UMC defenseman Tony Sprague played a key role in the Friday victory for the Cardinals, who scored three goals during that span.

UMC head coach Jim Clauson didn't make the trip to Hibbing, but assistant coach Chuck Habstritt said the penalty was unwarranted. "The way Chuck described it," Clauson told the Crookston Times, "the guy ran into Sprague and went down. His chin strap came up and hit him in the mouth, knocking out about three teeth. That's when Tony got the five minutes."

"We're still sitting pretty good now," said Clauson. "If we can win our next two series, we may be back up there (in Hibbing) in a couple of weeks for the biggest series of the year (MCCC state playoff finals)."

UMC, 12-4, hosts Rochester this weekend.

Miscellaneous

+ Roseau, Thief River Falls' Saturday night Section 8 high school hockey opponent in the sports arena, built up a 4-0 lead Saturday against Bemidji, but was hard-pressed to come out a 5-4 winner in a match-up of the top two teams in the sectional standings. After a scoreless first period, Roseau's Bruce Helgeson, Lyle Dahlgren, Paul Broten (2) scored in the first 7:24 of the second period for a sudden 4-0 game. Bemidji cut it to 4-3 before the wild second period ended, scoring three times in a 1:25 span late in the period. Tony Lind tied it at 10:55 of the third period, but David Drown won it on a rebound at the 14-minute mark. Roseau had a 42-23 shots-on-goal edge. It was a match-up of a Roseau team featuring 13 seniors against a up-and-coming Bemidji squad with just four seniors on the roster.

+ Mark Gere, a freshman from Thief River Falls, scored 16 points Saturday as the University of Minnesota-Crookston defeated Rainy River 70-58 in a Northwest Division-counting basketball game. Northland beat the Voyaguers 86-65 the night before. UMC and Northland renew a keen rivalry Tuesday in Thief River Falls. The Trojans, 9-6 overall, first must host division-leading Fergus Falls tonight (Wednesday) and entertain Brainerd Saturday. Brainerd visits Northland Friday night.

Prowlers' Steady Play Topples Falcons 65-40

Nothing flashy, mind you, but 32 minutes of consistently sound basketball netted the ever-improving Lincoln high school girls a 65-40 home court win over Fertile-Beltrami Tuesday.

"We played four quarters of good basketball," confirmed Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer. "It was probably the most solid game we've played all year."

Thief River Falls led from start to finish as the Prowlers improved their record to 9-5. They'll be idle until Monday when a strong Bemidji team will visit the Lincoln gym.

Thief River Falls' usual high-scoring duo of Michelle Olson and Michelle Puetz were again in double figures, but they weren't forced to carry the brunt of the attack this time. Olson, a 5-8 junior forward, led all scorers with 20 points and Puetz, a 5-10 sophomore center, had 13 despite sitting out all of the second quarter — save for the first 17 seconds — with three personal fouls. But adding new dimensions to the Prowlers' offense were Connie Grovum, a 5-7 sophomore forward, who matched Puetz' 13-point effort, along with Penni Johnston, a 5-4 junior guard, who contributed 9 points. Leanne Wang, a 5-9 junior forward, came off the bench to lead the Falcons' scoring with 8 points.

Hitting their first four field goal attempts and jumping out to a 10-0 lead, the Prowlers were in command from the start. Fertile-Beltrami missed its first 10 shots — many quite badly — but capitalized on some later-quarter Thief River Falls turnover problems and six free throws to climb back within 13-10 as the quarter ended.

Pace quickened in the second quarter and the Falcons cut the deficit to 15-14 on a rebound basket by sophomore Michelle Olmscheid just 36 seconds into the quarter. But the Prowlers responded with a string of eight straight points — from four different players — to reestablish control, 23-14, with 6:02 remaining in the half. Three of those baskets came on offensive rebounds by Olson, Grovum and Crystal Larson, who was playing in place of Puetz, before Johnston scored on a fast break off a Fertile-Beltrami turnover.

A free throw by Puetz, plus a rebound basket by Grovum and a long jumper by Olson quickly made it a 13-point ball game at the start of the third quarter, 36-23. The Falcons were never closer then nine points the rest of the way, trailing 44-33 as the third quarter ended. A 21-7 Thief River Falls fourth quarter scoring edge slowly lengthened the lead down the stretch, with the Prowlers scoring the final eight points to finish with their biggest spread, 65-40.

Thief River Falls enjoyed a good shooting night, including a 25-for-59 effort from the field (42 per cent) and a 15-for-20 showing from the free throw line (75 per cent), where they haven't been particularly effective lately. Fertile-Beltrami, meanwhile, shot only 20 per cent from the field (15-for-74) and 63 per cent at the line (10-for-16). The other categories were even. The Prowlers were 47-46 winners on the boards and the Falcons topped the turnover charts 20-19.

Prowlers Edge Crookston 3-2

Thief River Falls scored three times in the third period Tuesday to collect a come-from-behind 3-2 Section 8 high school hockey win at Crookston.

"This was a very, very important game for us," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand after the Prowlers' third one-goal game win of the season (they're 3-3 in those one-game decisions) as he looked ahead to the fast-approaching post-season coaches' seeding meeting. Thief River Falls is expected to compete against Crookston, among others, for a top four finish among the voters and a berth in the Section 8 tournament quarterfinals. "We're delighted to come out of Crookston with a win," he added.

Crookston nursed a 1-0 lead into the third period on a second period goal by Todd Meeker. But Thief River Falls struck for three goals in a seven-minute span to beat Crookston for the second time this winter. Chad Bottem tied it at 5:45; Brian Johnston put the Prowlers ahead 2-1 at 8:05; and Mitch Semanko got the eventual game-winner at

Playoff Berth Is At Stake In Northland-Mesabi Hockey Series

A current 11-game Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) losing streak notwithstanding, the Northland community college hockey team will be thinking playoffs this weekend when the Northmen host Mesabi in a Friday-Saturday series at the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Northland hasn't won an MCCC game since sweeping Mesabi 10-5 and 9-8 in Virginia back on Dec. 9-10. The Northmen had preceded that double-triumph with a season-opening upset of defending state champion University of Minnesota-Crookston 5-4. But that tantalizingly successful 3-0 start has been all but forgotten as the losses continue to mount, many by one-sided margins.

However, coming down to the final two weeks of regular season competition, the Northmen still find themselves in contention for a post-season state playoff berth. Top four regular season finishers in the six-team league will earn those spots to begin the semifinal round of the two-game, total-goal playoff series' Feb. 17-18 at the sites of the top two finishers — No. 4 at No. 1 and No. 3 at No. 2.

Hibbing, University of Minnesota-Crookston and Rainy River have the top three positions locked up, leaving Northland, Mesabi and Rochester battling for the final spot. Mesabi is winless this winter. Rochester has won just twice — Sweeping Mesabi. Northland finishes the year at Rochester with Saturday-Sunday games, Feb. 11-12.

Under those circumstances, it's easy to figure out that the Northmen will be in the playoffs if they beat Mesabi and Rochester.

"I think the guys realize they're capable of doing it," said Northland coach Tony Dorn, Jr., who confessed to being pleasantly surprised at the club's still-enthusiastic attitude despite the string of sometimes embarrassing losses.

"We've obviously been giving up too many goals," admitted Dorn. "We've been scoring something like 4-5-6 goals a game, which should be enough to win most hockey games. But you can't expect to win many games when you're giving up 9-10 goals every night. We've had defensive lapses and mental mistakes late in the games that have really cost us."

Freshman Jay Boomgarden of Baudette has handled all of the Northland goaltending chores this winter and he's faced a barrage of shots each time out. In 14 games the Northmen were out-shot by a whopping 262-shot margin.

"Boomer has played reasonably well," explained Dorn, "but we've just been out-shot so bad."

Among the Northland offensive weapons, sophomore Ladd Bjugson of Fargo is struggling through a current scoring slump. He had 31 points in the first 11 games, reported Dorn, but despite his hard work and numerous scoring opportunities his point total has risen little in recent weeks.

Strong performances from both Boomgaarden and Bjugson will be essential if the Northmen are to make a playoff berth challenge the next two weekends.

Series opener will have a later-than-usual 8:30 p.m. starting time Friday because the Northland basketball teams are also playing at home that night against Brainerd. And those games have been moved up to a 5:30 p.m. start for the Northwomen and a 7:30 p.m. tip-off for the Northmen.

Coach Deb Jacobson's Northwomen are 2-4 in Northwest Division-counting games, 7-7 overall. Coach Chet Engelman's Northmen are 4-2 in Northwest Division action, 10-5 overall. Top two finishers in the Northwest Division featuring Northland, Brainerd, University of Minnesota-Crookston and Fergus Falls - earn post-season state tournament berths. Rival UMC will be in Thief River Falls Tuesday for men's and women's games at 6 and 8 p.m.

Cardinals Top Bobcats 60-49

Plummer collected its third straight win Monday with a 60-49 girls high school basketball victory over visiting Oklee.

It was a see-saw game in which Plummer, after owning a 22-17 first half lead, scored the first 11 points of the third quarter to open up a 33-17 cushion, only to have Oklee run off a 17-4 scoring burst to get back in it. Plummer led 37-34 as the third quarter ended, then opened the fourth quarter with eight straight points to continue the momentum-swinging action.

High-scoring Jody Pahlen, after getting just three points in the first half, finished as the game's leading scorer with 17. Robin Brantl added 13 points in her highest-scoring effort of the season. Plummer coach Rick Koivisto praised the play of both Brantl and Sheila Jaeger, who complemented a 9-point night with 9 steals in a strong defensive effort. Karen Lindquist led Oklee with 15 points, while Karen Whyte added 14 and Kristin Lambert 12.

Plummer shot 40 per cent from the field for the game (24-for-60) and shot 60 per cent at the free throw line (12-for-60). Oklee shot only 29 per cent from the field (19-for-65) and 50 per cent at the line (11-for-22). Plummer had a 35-25 rebound edge, with Pahlen grabbing 12 caroms for the winners.

Now 7-5, Plummer will be idle until Tuesday when the Cardinals host Goodridge.

Kathy Foss scored 21 points, and that was nearly enough to beat Roseau, as Grygla rolled up a 44-21 North Border Conference win over the struggling Rams Monday in Grygla.

"We played real good defense," reported Grygla coach Mike Gast after watching his team shut out Roseau 14-0 in the first quarter, then build a 24-8 halftime lead and maintain a 36-16 third quarter spread.

It wasn't a great shooting night by either side. Grygla was 14-for-52 from the field (27 per cent) and Roseau was just 8-for-55 (15 per cent). The Eagles were 16-for-31 at the free throw line (52 per cent), and the Rams were only 5-for-23 (22 per cent).

Grygla, 4-10, will host Marshall County Central Thursday and will be at Warroad Monday.

Fourth Quarter Grygla Rally Tops Middle River

Grygla overcame an 11-point deficit with a fourth quarter rally Tuesday that produced a come-from-behind 57-55 North Border Conference win over visiting Middle River.

Trailing 12-6, 27-20 and 45-34 at the first three quarter stops, Grygla out-scored Middle River 23-10 over the final eight minutes for a rare win in the series. The outcome pushed the Eagles ahead of the Skippers and into fourth place in North Border standings.

"The whole last quarter was a disaster for us," said Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "They were playing well in the fourth quarter and we weren't."

Middle River still appeared to have a lock on it with a seven-point lead and just 1:25 remaining. But Grygla's Jeff Klein scored on an offensive rebound to finally overtake Middle River, 56-55 with 41 seconds to go, and after the Skippers turned the ball over, Wayne Byklum made one of two free throws for the two-point edge with 14 seconds on the clock.

In a frantic finish, Middle River missed three close-in shots in the final 10 seconds.

"It looked bleak when we were down by seven," admitted Grygla coach Vern Johnson, who collected his first win over Middle River in his fourth year as Eagles' coach. "But I really have to hand it to the kids; they didn't give up."

Tony McLean, a 5-10 senior, led the Grygla attack with a game-high 26 points, hitting 13 of 19 field goal attempts — many from the outside — to receive post-game praise. "He played a tremendous ball game. He really put on a show," Johnson said.

Rick Carlson contributed 14 points, came up with some key rebounds and blocked shots, said Johnson, and freshman Reed Engelstad came off the bench to score 8 points, including 6 on offensive rebounds in the fourth quarter. Senior guard Kevin McKeever scored 19 points and sophomore center Tom Neumann had 14 for the Skippers.

"We played tight in the first half," admitted Johnson. "It wasn't pretty for us. But the kids came back and played a good second half."

Grygla shot 42 per cent from the field (28-for-66) but was just 1-for-7 at the free throw line. Middle River shot 46 per cent from the field (25-for-54), but the Skippers were just 5-for-15 from the free throw line, which included misses on the front end of four bonus opportunities in the fourth quarter. Middle River charts showed the Skippers with a 29-28 rebound edge and Grygla figures showed Middle River leading the turnover charts, too, 22-17.

Grygla improved its record to 5-7 with the win. The Eagles, who have won three of their last four games, will be at Greenbush Saturday. Middle River fell to 6-6, and Sparby, unhappy with his team's play in back-to-back losses to Roseau and Grygla, warns that the schedule will be getting tougher for the Skippers, who host North Border Conference leader Lake of the Woods Friday and entertain highly-regarded Tri-County Saturday.

Marshall County Central handled visiting Warroad 66-42 Tuesday in North Border Conference play, giving the Nordics their sixth win in their last seven games.

Friday, the 9-4 Nordics await the arrival of Argyle for an interesting District 32 match-up. The Eagles ran up a 61-46 win over Marshall County Central in the semifinals of the Thief River Falls Christmas Classic earlier this winter.

Marshall County Central took a 15-11 first quarter lead and turned it into a 37-22 halftime cushion against the defending North Border Conference champion Warriors Tuesday. The Nordics stretched it to 58-30 in the third quarter.

"We played pretty well in the second and third quarters," reported Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "Our pressure defense got some turnovers for us and we got some points on the fast break."

Chad Swan led a balanced Marshall County Central attack with 14 points. Ken Krohn and Kevin Boe each added 11. Chris Runnels led Warroad with a game-high 17 points and Scott Concannon had 13.

Marshall County Central shot 47 per cent from the field (27-for-57) and 67 per cent at the free throw line (12-for-18). Warroad shot only 32 per cent from the field (18-for-55) and 50 per cent at the line (6-for-12). Warroad had a 30-27 rebound edge, which included 14 offensive boards — the most the Nordics have given up this winter, according to Ueland. Warroad also topped the turnover figures 20-18.

Huskies Beat Cards 56-47

Goodridge out-scored Plummer 26-11 in the fourth quarter Tuesday as the Huskies rallied to beat the host Cardinals 56-47 in Polar Conference high school basketball action.

It was a rematch from the Goodridge Holiday Invitational tournament earlier this year when the Cardinals pulled out a 57-55 championship game win. Tuesday's results left the Huskies at 6-8 for the year and the Cardinals at 7-6.

Goodridge owned a 10-8 first quarter lead and the two teams played to a 22-22 draw in the first half before Plummer opened up a 36-30 third quarter lead.

"Last part of the first quarter, and the second and third quarters were our's," reported Plummer coach Jim Baron, "but we got tired, I guess, in the fourth quarter. You've got to play four quarters of basketball, and we only played three."

In Wednesday's B games, St. Bernard's stopped Northrop 28-13 as Tanya Schob scored 12 points, with Jodie Harder scoring 6 for Northrop. Mark Twain edged Washington 24-23 as Cheryl Erickson scored 8 points for the winners and Theresa Johnson had 11 for the losers.

Saturday's high-scoring A games for the boys saw Washington beat St. Bernard's 53-21 as Peter Balmer scored 21 points and Brian DeLorem had 14, while Mark Twain outscored Northrop 41-25. Mike Swanson scored 19 points for the winners, with Tim Benson and Franco Trudeau both scoring 9 for the losers.

Northrop defeated Mark Twain 15-8 in a B game. Russ Bjorgaard scored 8 points for Northrop and John Wallberg had 4 for Mark Twain.

Huskies Top Cards 56-47

Goodridge offensive attack, normally built around the scoring of guards Scott Groven and Tony Wiseth, was lead instead by the inside play of Ross Parnow, who had an outstanding 24-point, 18-rebound night, and Jared Sjulestad, who scored 12 points. Gene Fisher scored 22 for the Cardinals, with Duane Franklin getting 10.

"Ross was fantastic," praised Goodridge coach Dan Brinkman. "He ate 'em up. He's always rebounded well for us, but we've been hurting for scoring inside. That's the best I've seen him play in three years."

Brinkman was naturally elated with the outcome. "Both teams played exceptionally well in the first half," he said. "The third quarter has been our worst quarter of the year, and it was again this time. We played lackadaisical, turned the ball over and took poor shots. But in the fourth quarter they came out and decided to win the game."

A Goodridge fourth quarter press had a definite effect on the outcome, said both coaches, even though the Huskies didn't get the backcourt turnovers out of it. The defense still took its toll on the Cardinals, though, who lost the ball on numerous mistakes in the frontcourt.

"We tried to push it down too fast, and we made some silly mistakes," acknowledged Baron.

"We took them right out of their offense in the fourth quarter," pointed out Brinkman.

Goodridge shot 40 per cent from the field (23-for-57) and 83 per cent from the free throw line (10-for-12). Plummer shot 41 per cent from the field (19-for-46) and 53 per cent from the line (9-for-17). The Huskies out-rebounded the Cardinals 41-22.

Both teams play Friday night when Goodridge will host Stephen while Plummer visits Red Lake Falls.

Prowlers Beat Crookston 3-2

It became interesting at the end when Crookston's Pat Madigan closed the gap to 3-2 at 13:51 and the Pirates put on the pressure for the tying goal.

"We're extremely pleased with the overall play in the third period," mentioned Grand. "I think we were a little more aggressive, a little more intense in the third period than we were in the first and second periods."

In a more low-key tone, the win was also worth first place in the new John Mariucci Conference standings. The Prowlers actually collected two sectional and conference wins this week when Moorhead was forced to surrender a forfeit for Saturday's postponed game here due to the teacher's strike in that community. That hikes the Prowlers to 9-6 for the year; 6-5 in Section 8 play; and 6-2 in the John Mariucci Conference. They host rival Roseau Saturday at 7:30 p.m. The Section 8-leading Rams drubbed Thief River Falls 5-1 earlier this winter.

"That's always a big game when Roseau comes down here," acknowledged Grand. "The fans like it and the kids look forward to it. I thought we played very poorly up there, and we want a chance to redeem ourselves."

Roseau, 13-2 overall, is unbeaten in 12 Section 8 games, routing Hallock 10-1 Tuesday as Paul Broten collected four goals.

"Roseau is very strong fundamentally," pointed out Grand, "and Broten is doing some nice things for them. We'll have to try to control him."

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Thief River Falls water utility announced today that the State maximum allowable limit for turbidity in drinking water is being exceeded.

Turbidity is caused by the presence of finely suspended particles such as clay, sand or organic matter in the water. Turbidity can be a problem if it interferes with chlorine disinfection. However, the high turbidity levels do not create any health hazard because the water utility is able to maintain effective levels of chlorine for disinfection.

The Thief River Falls water utility staff is working closely with State Health Department officials to reduce the turbidity to acceptable levels.

Any citizen seeking additional information should contact Allen Lemm at the Water Plant, phone number 681-3809.

Management Of Hazardous Waste Plan Is Drafted

Much as architects draft blueprints for buildings, the Minnesota waste management board has drafted a comprehensive plan for managing Minnesota's hazardous wastes through the remainder of this century, and beyond.

The board's draft hazardous waste management plan and a companion document, the draft certificate of need for hazardous waste disposal, are considered by the board as its most important hazardous waste management responsibilities. They are the products of over three years of investigations and citizen participation in efforts to improve hazardous waste management in the state.

Issued for public review and comment in December of 1983, the two documents were discussed at a public hearing January 16 in St. Paul to help the board gather information and hear the views of interested citizens before submitting the documents to the 1984 legislature.

While a wide range of views was expressed at the hearings, news reports centered on the criticisms of the plan and certificate of need by residents of the eight hazardous waste disposal siting areas currently under consideration by the board. The siting area representatives focused their comments on three specific aspects of the plan and certificate of need:

— (1) The board's estimates of the types and volumes of hazardous waste expected to be generated in Minnesota through the year 2000;

(2) The need for and potential economic viability of a hazardous waste disposal facility in Minnesota; and

(3) The need to promote hazardous waste reduction, recycling, incineration and other forms of treatment as alternatives to disposal.

In light of these comments, states Patrick Hirigoyen of the WMB staff, it is necessary to clarify three points regarding the plan and certificate of need:

Hazardous Waste Generation Estimates

The board's figures on hazardous waste generation in Minnesota — which estimate a total of 174,000 tons of hazardous waste in a typical year, with approximately 30,000 tons per year requiring secure disposal — should not be viewed as though they are "written in stone." Such predictions involve many uncertainties and the board made some assumptions that may or may not be realized in the future.

For example, if companies are as successful as anticipated in reducing their hazardous wastes, the waste generation estimates for the year 2000 may be quite accurate. Conversely, some expects have told the board it has overestimated the capability of generators to reduce their wastes, which would render the estimates too low.

The plan and certificate of need will be altered and updated to reflect changes in state waste generation and account for new technological developments.

Current and Future Dispoal Needs

The board is required by law to provide for "the establishment of at least one commercial disposal facility in the state." The law also requires that the certificate of need specify those wastes for which no alternative to disposal exists and, therefore, will require secure containment in the disposal facility.

In the draft certificate of need, the board estimates the types and volumes of hazardous waste residues that will require disposal through the year 2000, and does not attempt to justify the economic viability of a disposal facility. The legislature has already determined the need for such a facility.

Questions surrounding the potential economic viability of a disposal facility in Minnesota have not yet been resolved. Adequate disposal capacity for Minnesota's wastes may exist at out-of-state facilities, at least for the next few years, but the availability of these facilities to Minnesota companies could be hampered by stricter state and federal regulations, changes within the hazardouse waste management industry, and other factors.

As the board continues its analyses of potential disposal sites and disposal technologies it will develop more accurate information on disposal facilities in other states and the potential economic viability of a disposal facility in our state.

Alternatives to Disposal

The draft plan recommends the reduction of hazardous waste generation as the state's top priority, and disposal as the "last resort." The plan outlines five specific programs to foster hazardous waste reduction:

(1) Technical assistance to firms on how to reduce their wastes;

(2) A research and development program on new technologies and processes for waste reduction;

(3) Grants to firms for studies on how to apply waste reduction technologies to their individual plants;

(4) A governor's award program recognizing achievement in waste reduction; and

(5) Tax credits for installation of waste reduction equipment.

The board also recommends grant and loan programs to assist the development of commercial facilities to recycle, treat, incinerate or otherwise process hazardous wastes in Minnesota. Other programs in the draft plan recommend licensing of hazardous waste transporters, treatment of waste prior to disposal, utilizing existing facilities to incinerate or process hazardous wastes and improved public education on the hazardous waste issue.

"The draft plan and certificate of need are the blueprints of a state committed to hazardous waste reduction and sound technological alternatives to disposal, and not a state bent on the mere burial or dumping of waste; Hirigoyen said. "Minnesota has undertaken the most comprehensive approach of any state in developing its hazardous waste management capabilities and has consistently emphasized alternatives to land disposal of waste."

FACILITY INSPECTION of the occupational development center (ODC) in Thief River Falls was joined last week by Sharon Fugleberg, executive secretary of the Thief River Falls United Way. The safety committee does a premises check of the facility every three months to insure the safest possible work environment for all persons involved at the ODC. The basic inspection covers equipment safety, fire and first aid, accessible walkways and emergency routes, acceptable noise levels, emergency lighting and freedom from hazards. Three clients of the ODC are in the foreground of the photo as the safety committee makes its inspection. Inspectors (left to right) include Peter Lavalier, executive director; Ken Ose, production coordinator; Lynne Bylander, program coordinator; Sharon Fugleberg; and Les Schneider, program manager.

Corn, Wheat Stocks Drop During 1983

A year ago, January 1 corn stocks hit record levels in both Minnesota and the United States. Following a 1983 harvest affected by the PIK program, drought and, in Minnesota's case, a heavy bout of corn borer infestation, corn stock levels tumbled 39 per cent in Minnesota and 41 per cent in the U.S. The January 1 corn carryover measured 569.5 million bushels in Minnesota and 4.93 billion in the U.S.

All wheat stocks dropped 25 per cent in Minnesota to 116.3 million bushels. U.S. stocks, however, dropped only eight per cent from last year's record to 2.32 billion bushels.

Soybean stocks dropped significantly from a year ago. Minnesota stocks weighed in at 131.8 million bushels, 22 per cent below a year ago. Off-farm stocks in the state, however, gained eight per cent from last year. U.S. soybean stocks fell 28 per cent to 1.29 billion, mostly the result of lower on-farm stocks which dropped 40 per cent.

Despite increased off-farm stocks, Minnesota's total oats stocks fell seven per cent. U.S. stocks were 20 per cent short of last year.

Barley stocks dropped 17 per cent in Minnesota and 10 per cent in the U.S. Meanwhile, U.S. sunflower stocks measured 1.56 billion pounds.

Enrollment At 'U'M Drops By 2.4 Per Cent

Winter quarter enrollment at the five-campus University of Minnesota system decreased to 54,377, a 2.4 per cent drop from the same time last year. Drop reflects little fluctuation for the system, with the largest decline at the Twin Cities campus, which fell 3 per cent to 43,377.

Enrollment at Waseca and Morris increased slightly over last winter. Waseca's student body grew 0.7 per cent to 1,275; Morris's increased 0.9 per cent to 1,541.

—Both Crookston and Duluth followed the overall downward trend with decreases of 1.7 per cent and 0.2 per cent, respectively. Declines brought Crookston's student population to 1,075 and Duluth's to 7,109.

Search Begins For Teacher Of The Year

Search for Minnesota's 21st teacher of the year has begun. Sponsored by the Minnesota Education association (MEA), the program has produced two national teachers of the year and placed a number of others in the top five.

The 1984 Minnesota teacher of the year will be nominated by the Minnesota commissioner of education for 1985 national teacher of the year competition. In addition to being nominated for national honors, the Minnesota teacher of the year receives a $500 scholarship.

To be announced during ceremonies in October, the Minnesota teacher of the year will represent the many thousands of teachers in Minnesota who contribute so significantly to the state and national welfare," explains MEA president Martha Lee (Marti) Zins.

Purpose of the program is "to express publicly to the men and women who teach in public and nonpublic schools the widespread appreciation felt deeply in countless homes and communities, an appreciation that often goes unexpressed," Zins said.

Nomination forms are being distributed to local school boards, organizations of school principals, Minnesota Congress of Parents, Teachers and Students (PTSA) units, MEA local associations, all news media and other pertinent agencies. Nominations must be postmarked no later than April 9, 1984.

Propose Boost In IRA Limit For Homemaker

Congressman Arlan Stangeland will work for passage of a Reagan administration plan to help homemakers and divorcees to invest for their retirements.

The plan, outlined by treasury secretary Donald Regan in Capitol Hill hearings on January 26, would permit married couples with only one spouse working outside the home to deduct up to $4,000 a year for contributions to individual retirement accounts (IRAs).

At present, the tax-exempt limits are $2,000 for an individual, $2,250 for a couple with one employed spouse, and $4,000 for couples when both spouses hold jobs.

The new plan would also allow divorced individuals to treat taxable alimony as compensation in determining IRA limits, which would allow a larger tax-exempt contribution to an account.

"A similar plan was passed by the Senate last year, but was bottled up by the Democratic leadership in the House," Rep. Stangeland said.

"Many older women could not save for their retirement in previous years. By giving incentives for homemakers to start saving now, we'll be improving that situation for the future.

"It isn't right to penalize homemakers who work 16 hours a day at home or on the farm," he said. "They should have the same tax breaks as spouses working outside the home."

Birthday Wishes

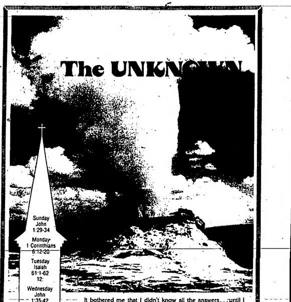
January 19, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Swenson helped Mrs. Danny Hodney celebrate her birthday, along with her family and other neighbors. Happy returns.



It bothered me that I didn't know all the answers. . .until I realized we were not meant to know. The unknown showed me my smallness. . . God's greatness. The amazing things He has done for me. . .for us. Now I find the mysteries of my religion exciting, refreshing.

Yes, these mysteries brought me to the realization that God's mind and methods are often clearer and more commendable than my own. And they speak not only of His power and majesty. . . but of His love.

Would it be as beautiful a world without these refreshing mysteries? I'll accept it the way it is now. . . and forever rest in the House of the Lord.

Bodies-Beautiful Obsession

Following was written by Brian Ojanpa in the Mankato Free Press:

The leggy young woman flashes on the screen, whirling through aerobic contortions for a TV exercise show.

The 30-second commercial is a steamy blend of rock music, buttocks, and tousled hair.

"And be sure to remember to breath out," the voiceover concludes. "The incoming oxygen will take care of itself."

The absurdity of the statement crystalizes a point: The national obsession for bodies beautiful has progressed from well-intentioned to manic, to downright silly.

The pursuit of health and beauty has fallen into a robotic lockstep. Narcissism has become a virtue. If you've got it, flaunt it. If you don't have it, go get some. It's there for the taking — body spas, tanning salons, designerwear.

And take your magazines — New Body, Get Fit, The Slimmer Celebrity Workout Calendar.

And take your celebrity exercise books — Jane Fonda, Victoria Principal, Christie Brinkley.

And take your diet books — Aerobic Nutrition, Psycho-Dietetics, Phyllis George's I love America Diet.

And take Richard Simmons. Please.

Then there's Miss Texas, unabashedly admitting during the Miss America pageant that cosmetic surgery made her what she is. A nip-and-tuck decision, no doubt.

We live in an era of overnight, cultural changes. Perspectives become skewed as today's folly becomes tomorrow's normalcy. And if we clear away some of the wretched excess, we see that someone has upped the ante on self-worth.

TV's Entertainment Tonight and People magazine tout, deify, and pander to the "beautiful people." Those who are rich, famous, and pretty have been knighted with an artifical legitimacy, something for the commonfolk to aspire to. But it is an empty-headed dream, wasteful and ultimately cruel.

Fame is a fleeting commodity these days. We live in a time of disposable celebrity hood. Today's TV or rock star is tomorrow's down-and-outer — human Kleenex, to be used once and thrown away.

Even so, show biz hunks and hunkesses are our new gods and goddesses. Hollywood has become our Mount Olympus.

It is a sign of the times. A recent UCLA study of college freshmen found campuses awash in materialism. In the new ideology, making money has replaced making society better. Changing the world has become less important than changing one's hair stylist.

Abbie Hoffman, a radical student leader of the 1960s, has dubbed the 1980s "The Age of Designer Brains."

I recently spoke with a high school senior who, as Ann Landers would say, has awakened to smell the coffee. She is concerned about her generation, her little sister in particular.

"All she cares about," she said, "is getting a new pair of the 'right' kind of jeans."

But young people shouldn't be the scapegoats for the New Narcissism. All of us seem to be waiting for the other shoe to drop in a world of doomsday predictions, nuclear madness, and hard times.

We have become burdened with an encroaching fatalism, and we seek solace in non-threatening indulgence: Firming up your tummy is easier than firming up your backbone.

The late 1960s produced a generation full of rage, righteousness, and Utopian dreams. But the idealism knuckled under to reality.

Radial student leader Jerry Rubin ranted about not trusting anyone over 30. Then he turned 30, and his rhetoric took a hike. Look at him now. Short hair, clean clothes. A picture of health and fitness. He's back in the real world, which brings us back to the point:

There's nothing intrinsically wrong with looking swell, feeling good, and harboring a healthy wish for fame. But cultural pursuits in this Republic call for a prudent balance, and something is out of whack.

When a nation plunges headlong into workout gyms, devours books promising thin thighs in 30 days, and regards the "Dallas" cast as our real First Family, someone's got to blow the whistle.

But I'll blow it just once. There's no sense being crotchety about all this. We must see the forest through the trees.

What we have here is massive social defense mechanism that equates lifestyle with quality of life. Hedonism in the health spa and vacuous pursuits of "the good life" have become escape hatches.

The 21st Century is on the way, and we collectively shudder and turn inward. The "Me Decade" of the 70s hasn't left us, it's merely assumed a different form. Personal growth has been replaced by pectoral growth.

Meeting our destiny head-on is an awesome challenge, maybe too awesome. So we pump iron and get teeth fixed and canonize the rich and famous.

It has become a nation's way of keeping the wolves away from the door.

Helping Our Health

Following editorial is from the Grand Rapids Herald-Review:

Public health experts have identified a number of major health problems for the people of Minnesota during the decade of the 1980's.

Minnesotans take pride in the state's reputation for providing healthy living conditions for its residents. But a Department of Health study shows that 36,000 people are seen by Minnesota physicians every 24 hours and that 2,000 of them are admitted to hospitals. Ten per cent of all personal income in this state is spent on medical care.

"Every day, seven Minnesotans die violently, five of them in accidents, half of which involve motor vehicles," the study reports. "There is one suicide a day and a murder every third day. Every day, 142 persons file claims for occupational injuries under workmen's compensation."

Major areas of concern include cigarette smoking: "Thirty per cent of Minnesotans over age 18 still smoke, although 72 per cent have tried one or more times to quit. The overall impact of smoking on those who still smoke and the 23 per cent who have quit amounts to about 11 per cent of all death, disability and medical costs."

Alcohol and drug misuse is substantial, with alcohol as a factor in the cause of more than ten per cent of the deaths.

Accidents, poisoning and violence caused 44 per cent of the deaths before the age 65 in the state in 1980. Fifty-one per cent of all fatal injuries are associated with motor vehicles.

Under-nutrition and deficiency diseases were the principal focus of health efforts in previous decades. But concern has shifted to high cholesterol levels in the blood and associated risks of heart disease.

Even in relatively relaxed Minnesota, stress is a significant health problem leading to emotional illness, muscular or digestive disorders, accidents, suicide and homicide. Statewide efforts are promoting activities such as walking.

"Exercise is valuable not only for its direct association with lower heart disease rates but also for its beneficial effects on smoking behavior, body weight, stress and other risk factors," the study declares.

High blood pressure is a major cause of heart disease and stroke in Minnesota. Four-fifths of those with hypertension already know about their condition, but half are not yet properly controlled.

Great gains have been made in the public health field, but much must be done to improve the health status of Minnesotans.

Everyone can play an important part in maintaining or strengthening his own health. Cigarettes, alcohol and other drugs are non-essentials which can be curtailed or eliminated. Careful driving will prevent many accidents. In a state with so much to offer in the outdoors, virtually everyone should be able to find a healthy form of exercise.

Minnesota is a wonderful place to live. Health is elusive for some people. But most of us can make our lives more pleasant and productive by exercising regularly and properly and seeking and following the advice of medical experts when necessary.

Borrowed Nonsense:

After his first Sunday school class, the three-year-old was asked what his teacher had said to him. "Sit down!" was his reply.

---

The sermon had pointed out that in some cultures life is extremely short and people have no time for childhood, going from infancy to adulthood. One confirmation student's sermon notes stated: "People in some areas of the world think they can go directly from infancy to adultery."

Two elderly ladies in a nursing home decided to go streaking one day. As they hurried through the dining room, one resident asked the other, "What were those women wearing?" "I dunno," he replied, "but it sure needed ironing."

REPORT

From The

Minnesota House of Representatives

by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

Voters will be asked to make a change in the state's Constitution this November, and a "yes" vote would mean more revenue for our schools — without levying additional taxes.

The proposed amendment would remove constitutional restrictions on permanent school fund investments. It reads as follows: "Shall the Minnesota Constitution be amended to allow limits on the investment of the permanent school fund to be set by statutory law?"

If voters agree, the permanent school fund (PSF) would be invested in the same manner as state retirement funds. They are all handled by the state board of investment; but at present the PSF is weighted down with restrictions on what percentage of the principal can be invested where. The proposed change would allow for more flexibility, and its supporters say it could mean an additional $1 to $2 million annually for our schools.

Before I go on, I should explain the PSF to anyone unfamiliar with it. The PSF is made up of two parts — land granted to Minnesota by the federal government for our schools, and cash and investments generated from sales of the land, mining royalties, timber sales and lakeshore and other types of leases. The department of natural resources manages land activities, but as I said earlier, the state board of investment is responsible for managing the principal cash reserve which comes from mining royalties, mineral exploration leases, other leases, and land sales (around 2.5 million acres of land remain in the PSF).

The principal of the PSF, which must remain intact, currently totals $320,000,000. It is the way this money is invested that has raised the concern of many lawmakers. The interest earned from these investments aids our schools and many feel the earnings are lower than they could be because of constitutional restrictions on investments.

These limits are as follows: A maximum of 40 per cent of the PSF may be invested in a restricted range of corporate bonds; a maximum of 20 per cent may be invested in a restricted range of corporate stocks; and an unlimited percentage may be invested in government securities.

The state board of investments needs authorization to make more purdent investments, so lawmakers will go to the people with the proposed Constitutional change. The amendment will go through the appropriate series of hearings this session to make sure we are moving in the right direction, but at this point we do know removing the Constitutional limits would mean anywhere from $1 million to $2 million in additional revenue for our schools and that sounds pretty good.

If you have any questions on this or other legislative issues, you can contact me at 263 State Office Building, St. Paul, Mn. 55155.

Eye-Clock Logo Alerts Users Of Health Products

Take time to read the label. That's what the eye-clock symbol on the labels of animal health products and medicated feeds reminds consumers to do. It's a good habit to develop. Everything about dosages, methods of administration and withdrawal times is printed right on the label.

It's no accident that this much information is contained on the label. Animal health product manufacturers, feed manufacturers, the food and drug administration and the environmental protection agency spend thousands of man-hours annually making sure that labels carry just what the user needs to know.

Those few square inches of space represent many dollars. Following the label instructions carefully could mean the difference between profits from productive, high market-value livestock, and losses due to health problems and illegal residues.

Labels on animal health products generally have five categories of information important to livestock producers: contents, directions, indications, limitations and warnings.

Contents: Like most food-related products, animal drugs, pesticides, and medicated feeds have ingredients listed on the label. First ingredient listed represents the greatest proportion of the product, and other ingredients are listed in descending order. Sometimes the percentage of each ingredient is given.

Directions: If you've used a favorite animal health product for years, it's tempting to just skip over the directions when you begin using a new supply. Manufacturers of these products have just one word of advice: don't!

Approved use levels, frequency of administration, withdrawal periods, etc. can change. Only way you can be absolutely sure you're using the product properly is to read the label each time you administer the medication.

Dosage instructions are clearly spelled out. When to administer the product is also noted. This is especially important if it relates to feeding schedules, the onset of symptoms, or other time factors.

Finally, the label tells how to prepare the product. This may include, for example, directions to shake or warm the product, or dilute it with water or feed. Storage conditions are also specified on the label.

Indications: The label also indicates what the product will treat or prevent. For example, one might read, "An aid in the prevention of outbreaks of cecal coccidiosis in chickens."

While these indications are helpful, you should not rely on them as substitutes for the diagnostic skills of a veterinarian. Different diseases may exhibit similar symptoms, so if you're in doubt, check with an animal health specialist.

You can be sure the drug is safe and effective for the indications specified on the label. The product has been extensively tested by the manufacturer and rigorously reviewed by the government to determine this.

Limitations: If the product has any limitations, the label will spell out this information. For instance, animal drugs carry expiration dates, and these will be noted on the label. Other limitations will be listed, as well. For example, a particular product may be good for treating mastitis in lactating dairy cows, but another product may be better for use in dry cows.

Warnings: This category provides some of the most critical information on animal health products, but too often it's overlooked by otherwise careful people. Neglecting to observe warnings about withdrawal periods, for example, might allow the animals to go to market with illegal levels of drug residues in their systems. That could cause the producer to lose income, or possibly face fines or prosecution.

In addition, warning and caution statements can provide important reminders which may help avoid more serious health problems. For example, preparations containing cortisone and similar substances for external use may say: "Caution — Do not use where infection (pus) is present, since the drug may allow infection to spread."

Many animal health products and medicated feeds highlight label warnings with bold arrows. The use of these arrows was developed by the American feed manufacturers association, the trade group representing feed mixers and millers, and the Animal health Institute, representing manufacturers of animal pharmaceuticals and feed additives.

The people — who are responsible for labeling — drug, pesticide and feed manufacturers, and government regulators — work with an overriding concern in mind: that producers heed label instructions and use these products properly.

No matter how clear a label is, it won't communicate anything if it is not read. That's what members of the institute are saying with the eye-clock — take the time to read the label.

The Confident Cook

Step-by-Step Cooking Instructions

Spill The Beans For Hearty, Low Cost Eating

The lowly bean gets high marks these days as it provides an important and economical source of protein for our daily diets. Beans have been on man's menu since before Jacob served up his pottage of lentils, and for good reason. They have high nutritive value, easy storage and a long shelf life. According to the USDA*, one cup of cooked white or pea beans supplies 31 percent of an adult's requirement of protein, 28 percent of the iron requirement and 35 percent of the phosphorous; 3 1/2 ounces of cooked beans equals 120 calories.

*USDA Handbook #456

JACOB'S SOUP

1/4 cup butter or margarine
1 1/2 cups chopped onion
1 cup sliced celery
1/2 cup sliced carrot
1 medium clove garlic, minced
1 pound dried lentils (about 2 cups)
1/2 cup chopped salt pork
8 cups water
2 cans (12 fluid ounces each) V-8 Vegetable Juice
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon thyme leaves, crushed
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 medium bay leaf

1. In 5-quart Dutch oven or saucepot over medium heat, in hot butter, cook onion, celery and carrot with garlic until tender.
2. Wash and sort lentils under cold running water. Add to onion mixture along with remaining ingredients; heat to boiling.
3. Reduce heat to low; cover and simmer 2 to 3 hours or until lentils are done, stirring occasionally. Makes about 14 cups, 8 servings.

Senator Would Increase U.S. Food Donations

Senator Rudy Boschwitz next week will call for the U.S. to step up food donations to the world's hungry and to continue food sales to traditionally good customers who are presently credit risks because of faltering economies.

In the face of Africa's worst famine in decades, Boschwitz said he will offer two bills. The first will ask that $150 million be appropriated immediately to the giveaway title of the U.S. "Food for Peace" program (P.L. 480). The other will concentrate on efficiently upgrading U.S. food assistance programs to anticipate rising future responsibilities to Africa and elsewhere.

"It is a simple but critically important matchup," said Boschwitz, chairman of the Senate subcommittee on foreign agricultural policy. "On one side are people who desperately need food. On the other, we have the food — so much, in fact, that in some cases surplus commodities sometimes threaten to disrupt domestic markets.

"We have always been the world leader in helping care for those who cannot take care of themselves," he added. "And we will continue in that role."

In addition to his $150 million supplemental, Boschwitz supports the efforts of Senator John Danforth of Missouri who is expected to request immediate aid from Mozambique, where death due to starvation has been devastating.

Boschwitz hopes the Senate will consider his request by early February.

The other bill will try to better anticipate future needs, both in food assistance and shoring up future markets for our farmers.

Storing A Car Properly Saves Later Expense

Whether you want to store an expensive collectible automobile or just want to put your present car in mothballs, you'll need to store it properly to protect your investment, according to the Automotive Information Council (AIC).

If it will not be used for several months, just parking it in the garage is not enough. Ideally, it should be kept in a cool, dark, dry environment where the temperature won't go below freezing.

Fuel system should be prepared by using a siphon pump to remove as much gas as possible and letting the engine run until it is out of gas. If gas is left in the car it will evaporate, leaving a deposit that can damage the engine. Also remove the battery. This eliminates a possible source of corrosion.

Coolant should be drained, the system flushed and fresh coolant added in the normal strength. Oil should also be changed, along with the oil filter. Contaminates in the dirty oil could settle out and create problems later on.

Relieving tension on the fan, power steering and air conditioning belts — will prevent the belts from stretching. Finally, putting the car on blocks will prevent the tires from ending up flat-spotted, as well as ease strain on the car's shocks and wheel bearings.

Upon your return, just reverse the preparation process. After cleaning the car, tighten the belts, install the battery and add gas.

Cooperation Is Pledged To Cut U.S. Spending

Congressman Arlan Stangeland has pledged to work in the spirit of bipartisan cooperation in reducing the growth of federal spending that President Reagan requested in his 1984 state of the union address on Wednesday.

"The President was justifiably up-beat about our progress in the past three years," the congressman said. "Inflation has been tamed for the present, the prime interest rate has been halved, unemployment is dropping and more Americans are working than ever before.

"We have climbed a long way from the economic disaster of 1980," he said. "But unless Congress makes the hard choices on controlling defense and domestic spending and closing tax loopholes, we can slide back to disaster. The deficit could stop recovery in its tracks."

Stangeland noted that raising taxes is not the solution.

"Deficits and taxes are two sides of the same coin," he said. "Whether you strip funds from the economy through taxes or higher interest rates to finance the deficit, you are still taking dollars away from the investment that creates jobs."

Stangeland was pleased that President Reagan called for Congress to pass a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution. Such an amendment was passed by both the House and the Senate in 1982, although the House failed to reach the necessary two-thirds vote.

"Although improvement on interest rates has been dramatic, looming deficits are keeping the cost of borrowing money far above inflation levels," he said. "We could really get the private sector rolling if the deficit is reduced and interest rates fall in line with the rest of the improved economic picture.

$30,000 Grant For Incinerator Project Noted

Senator Rudy Boschwitz and Congressman Arlan Stangeland secured $30,000 Monday for the Bagley incinerator and district heating project.

"This package of funds gives the Bagley project some breathing room," Senator Boschwitz said. "It allows the Bagley industrial development corporation (BIDC) to continue its planning activities and provides for a feasibility study by an outside consultant."

The funds are a technical assistance grant from the Economic Development administration (EDA) of the U.S. department of commerce. The project would enable 12 northwestern Minnesota counties to burn waste at two proposed incinerators near Bagley. Heat from the incinerators would be used in various buildings in the town.

"For over a year, we have been seeking federal funds from a number of agencies," Congressman Stangeland said. "The Environmental Protection agency, department of energy, Farmers Home administration, EDA and other groups are interested."

NW ECSU To Demonstrate New Technology

Thief River Falls is one of 10 sites in Minnesota selected by the state board of education to demonstrate how technology can improve education. The demonstration projects involve 69 school districts. Northwest educational cooperative service unit (NWECSU) under the direction of Fred Rohde will administer the program for 16 school districts in this area.

Ten projects were chosen January 13 by the board from 50 proposals. Each demonstration project will receive about $125,000 in state funds. All are funded through June 30, 1985.

"The projects will make our schools better by increasing the quality of instruction, providing more courses, and making schools more interesting," said Gil Valdez, supervisor of the computer education program for the Minnesota department of education.

The program has a strong emphasis on in-service education — having teachers see other teachers working with technology in the classroom, Valdez said.

A 1983 state law, the technology and educational improvement act of 1983, created the program and appropriated $6.7 million.

Money is provided for teachers throughout Minnesota to visit the 69 districts.

Funds also are reserved for equipment, materials, consultants, program development and teacher training.

"The technology program will help schools face the challenges of the future," Valdez said. "Students will deal with greater amounts of information, communicate faster and analyze more complex factors than today."

LINCOLN SNOW-FEST activities reached a high point for seniors Jeff Langan and Nora Hushaugen on Friday afternoon when they were crowned king and queen of the festivities at an assembly in the school auditorium. A full week of activities was to have concluded with a dance on Saturday night, but the event was cancelled due to bad weather. The hockey game, however, was a big success, with the Prowlers defeating the Roseau Rams 3-2.

Grain Program Deadline Set

Deadline for farmers to sign up for the 1984 wheat and feed grain program is Friday, February 24, according to Leo Orpen, chairman of the Marshall county agricultural stabilization and conservation service.

He says that loan rates for 1984 crop wheat and feed grains have been lowered, and notes that sizeable deficiency payments could be earned by participating farms under the 1984 program. Maximum deficiency payments that could be earned are $1.15 per bushel of wheat, 52 cents for barley, 48 cents for corn and 29 cents for oats.

Orpen stressed that farmers should contact the county office to see how the program could benefit their operation.

HOUSEPLANTS, including this long table of African violets, get careful attention from Mrs. Harry (Nora) Hanson of rural Trail. She and her husband were selected Pennington county Valley Farmer and Homemaker this year. Nora is also an avid flower and vegetable gardener — particularly since they sold their hogs which always seemed to get out of their fence while the Hansons were away and make a shambles of the yard and gardens.

HARRY AND NORA HANSON enjoy the company of another "member of the family", their dog Lassie. Nora has taught the dog to sit up, walk and dance on its hind legs, roll over, jump through a hoop and other tricks. The Hansons have lived on their Hickory township farm since their marriage Oct. 16, 1940, and Harry was born on his parents' farm about a mile and one-half east of his present homesite. They have been named Pennington county Valley Farmer and Homemaker and will be recognized at a banquet with other county winners at the Red River Valley winter shows at Crookston.

Harry Hansons Are Valley Farmer And Homemaker

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Harry and Nora Hanson might not consider themselves innovators, but the Hickory township couple who had the first milking parlor in Pennington county have been in the forefront of several agricultural endeavors. The Hanson have been selected as the 1984 Valley Farmer and Homemaker for Pennington county and will be honored at the Red River Valley winter shows in Crookston Tuesday, February 21.

In addition to the milking parlor, the Hansons raised foundation and certified seed, were in the wild rice business three years and started their beef herd with animals dispersed from the Northwest experiment station at Crookston. Active in many community and area organizations, Harry estimates that he has driven 23,800 miles between his home and Gully for meetings of the Gully Farmers cooperatives alone. He has been on the board of directors there for 35 years.

Harry was born on the Hans T. Hanson farm only a mile and one-half east of his present farmsite. His parents homesteaded there in 1910 on 80 acres of land, soon added another quarter section purchased from a neighboring homesteader, and later bought another quarter section to the west. The Red Lake river channel was twisting and its flow restricted, causing frequent flooding after heavy rains which left flood water on the land for long periods of time.

Those early days were difficult ones for farmers in the area and the Hanson family was no exception. Money was scarce and farmers had to make-do with whatever they had at hand while trying to earn a living. Nora (Howard) was raised in the Highlanding area and when she married Harry on Oct. 16, 1940, at Harry's parents' home, they had something less than a palace to move into to start their life together.

"It was 14x14 and had been built as an addition to another building," Harry recalls all too well. "We built on a wall, insulated it with flax chaff mixed with 100 pounds of lime to keep the rats and mice out, and put in an upstairs floor."

Some family members had given the couple a kitchen stove for a wedding present, so the Hansons used the crate it was shipped in and the sides of some wooden apple boxes to make a cupboard. They lived in the house that first winter and through the next summer.

And when they moved from the Hans T. Hanson farm to the present homesite in the fall of 1941, they took their house with them. After snow fell they put the house on skids and pulled it the mile and one-half west, getting stuck in the mud in the wooded area at dusk. They stayed in the house that night and the next morning counted more than 20 rabbits in the brush around the house.

In the late 1940's they purchased a 24x14 house which had been moved from the Mud Lane area of Marshall county and built of solid tamarack. They moved it eight miles to the present farm and continue to use it today, with a large addition to the front and a garage which were built about 30 years ago.

The first barn was created from a large hip-roof structure about half a mile away which had rotted at the bottom. They braced it with poles at both sides, then cut the ends out as high as the bottom roof line. Then they pulled the props out from one side and the top came down — "just like a parachute," Harry laughs. One sidewall was inside the barn and the other on the outside. These were salvaged with the previously removed ends to reconstruct a lower barn.

"It was 40x28 and we cut lumber and built an upstairs floor," Hanson said. "That fall we threshed straw on top of the floor, covered the straw with tarpaper and put long swamp hay on top of the tarpaper, held in place with popple poles a couple of feet apart. It worked just perfect!"

It worked perfect for about six years until a summer storm scattered poles, hay, tarpaper and straw throughout the area. A year later the quonset building replaced the barn. And that "parachute" roof from the old barn was not wasted. It was sawed in half, hauled to the farm yard, reassembled and used as a chicken house for 500 laying hens.

The quonset building which replaced the barn included a four-stall milking parlor. It had five steps for the cattle to walk up and down to be fed and milked and initial power for the vacuum system was provided by a gasoline engine. While an exciting innovation for the Hansons, the milking parlor and milking machine was deep trauma for the cattle.

"We figured we would try our oldest and gentlest cows first," Mrs. Hanson laughs. "That was a mistake. They were too established in their patterns. That first time we had to practically drag them into the milking parlor and they just went wild. And when they would settle down enough to get the milkers on them, they wouldn't let down the milk."

After a few days the animals adjusted, however, and the system worked well. The Hansons continued dairying until 12 or 15 years ago when they opted to go into beef production instead. Their son Howard, who farms in the same section of land, attended the Northwest school of agriculture at Crookston and had purchased a registered beef Shorthorn at the NWSA herd dispersal. The resulting beef herd was expanded when the dairy operation was terminated.

Now the Hanson operation

HARRY HANSON of rural Trail is shown with some of the approximately 180 calves and replacement heifers in the beef operation he conducts with his son Howard in Hickory township. Hanson and his wife, Nora have been selected as Pennington county's Valley Farmers and Homemaker and will be recognized for the honor at the Red River Valley winter shows in Crookston. The calves in the bottom photo were following Hanson's tractor from a hay feeder to a feed bunk feeder.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Koropatnicki And Olson Vows Spoken At Trinity

Marriage vows were exchanged on November 26, at 4:00 p.m., at Trinity Lutheran church in this city by Kelly Koropatnicki, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Koropatnicki of Goodridge, and Tron Olson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Olson of Thief River Falls.

Officiating at the double ring ceremony were Rev. Berton Hushagen and Rev. Gene Broughton. Dorothy Larson was the organist. She played "Bridal Chorus" as the bride was escorted to the altar by her parents. During the ceremony, Jane Olson, a cousin of the groom, sang "Evergreen," and "Truly," and Annette Kofstad and Scott Walseth, cousins of the bride, sang "You and I."

Candelabra and arrangements of violet and white carnations on the altar formed the chancel setting. The pews were marked with white carnations and violet bows.

The bride was attired in a white bridal gown styled with a fitted bodice with long, lace sleeves gathered into fitted cuffs. Pearl trim outlined the Queen Anne neckline, and lace appliques enhanced the skirt and cathedral length train. Her hand-rolled veil of bridal illusion was attached to a white lace pearl trimmed hat with an upturned brim decorated with flowers and pearls. She carried a lace backed cascade bouquet of violet and white roses, accented with babies' breath and ribbon streamers in white and violet.

Koni Koropatnicki, Goodridge, attended her sister as maid of honor. Other attendants were Kim Swanson, sister of the bride, and Tricia Olson, sister of the groom. All wore identical gowns of violet polyester interlock knit. They carried round bouquets of violet and white roses, ribbon streamers and babies' breath. In their hair, they wore a cluster of matching flowers.

Serving as miniature bride, and attired like the bride, was Jessica Legg of Shakopee, a cousin of the groom. Miniature groom was Tim Hoglin, Brainerd, a friend of the groom's family. Like the groom, he wore a white tuxedo with a white ruffled shirt and a violet rose boutonniere.

Shirley Verbout was the bride's personal attendant.

Attending the groom as best man was his brother, Brent Olson. Groomsmen were Shane Legg, Shakopee, a cousin of the groom, and Myles Hogenson, a friend. Ushers were Rob Swanson, brother-in-law of the bride, and Bruce Swanson, a friend of the couple. Their attire included silver gray tuxedos with ruffled shirts, bow ties, and white carnation boutonnieres centered with a violet rose. Their boutonnieres, like all the corsages and bountonnieres at the wedding were made by the groom's grandmother, Lindy Olson, Thief River Falls.

The mother of the bride wore a burgundy velvet blazer with a matching tweed skirt. The groom's mother was attired in a burgundy woolen tailored suit with matching hat and pearl accessories. Their corsages were of burgundy roses and white carnations with baby breath accents.

Honor guests were Celia Koropatnicki, grandmother of the bride, Sophie Legg and Mr. and Mrs. Glen Olson, grandparents of the groom.

A wedding supper for 225 guests followed in the church parlors. Centering the serving table was a four-tiered wedding cake baked and decorated by Olive Wiskow. The cake was iced in white and decorated with violet roses and white sugar bells. It was cut and served by Donna Nelson, aunt of the bride, and Jody Hanna, aunt of the groom. At the coffee service were Beth Skallet, aunt of the bride, and Sherry Bugge, a friend of the groom's family.

Hosts and hostesses were Dale and Susie Anderson, uncle and aunt of the bride, and Ronnie and Kathy Olson, uncle and aunt of the groom.

Cindy Hess, a friend of the groom, was at the guest book, while Sheri VeVea, a friend of the groom's family, and Tammy Skallet, a cousin of the bride, ladled the punch. The gifts were arranged by Kim Bugge, a friend of the groom's family, and Michelle Skallet, a cousin of the bride. Waitresses were Jill Swanson, a friend of the bride, and Cindy Solem, a cousin of the bride. Debbie Legg and Phil Koropatnicki pinned the flowers, Todd Hanna distributed the rice packets, and Punky Ambuehl, the wedding scrolls.

Following a wedding trip to Duluth, Brainerd and Minneapolis, the couple is at home in Thief River Falls at 1516 Northland village, apartment 106. Both are graduates of Lincoln high school and are employed in this city. The bride is employed at Hardee's, and the groom is night manager at Piggly Wiggly. In addition, the groom is engaged in dairy farming. Photo, R.J. Nieland Studio, Thief River Falls.

Harry Hansons Farmer And Homemaker

includes about 175 stock cows which Howard handles at his farm, while Harry takes care of about 180 calves and replacement heifers at his location. Cross-breeding experimentation included use of beefalo, Gilby and Maine Anjou breeds but now consists primarily of Hereford, Simental and Red Angus along with the beef Shorthorn.

Hogs, chickens and sheep — all of which were raised to some degree by the Hansons — have now all been eliminated from the farm's production. The hogs went because they always seemed to break out when the family was away and make a shambles of the lawn and gardens.

A lifetime hunter and outdoorsman, Harry maintains about 100 acres of his 625 acres of land as wooded area for wildlife. He enjoys seeing deer and ruffed grouse and has even had coyotes follow his haying equipment, feeding on mice disturbed by the equipment as it passed. Despite the known wolf activity in the area, he has lost only one young beef animal, and Harry believes its disappearance was the result of a "two-legged wolf" instead of the four-legged variety.

"I did gain a lariat," he laughs. "I found a 40-foot rope in my pasture, stretched out in a straight line. Somebody must have caught more than he could hold."

Harry has been at the forefront of a number of area activities. He helped obtain right-of-way for Red Lake Electric to bring its rural electric lines to the area, resulting in electrical service in 1948. He raised foundation seed and has been a longtime member of the crop improvement association. He served on the Pennington county school survey committee which assisted in consolidation of rural districts and as a Pennington county representative with Stanley Radniecki on the community leader planning committee. He also served as Hickory township assessor.

Harry seems to enjoy sharing stories from years gone by, and they make entertaining listening. One deals with a financial matter, which seems humorous to Harry but gives a good insight into his character.

"We were always raised to think conservatively and to buy things only as we had the money to pay for them," he recalls. "But one year I got to thinking about getting a diesel tractor that was bigger than what I had, but I was about $1,000 short of what I needed to buy it.

"I had been to a meeting where the importance of having good information in applying for credit was talked about. So I put down on paper how that tractor would help get the field work done quicker, and I could get the crop off faster, and how the diesel would save fuel costs. And I took it to the banker and told him I needed $1,000."

The banker, who Hanson declined to name, must have been impressed. He told Hanson the loan was no problem, he would transfer the $1,000 to his checking account, and Harry could go ahead and buy the tractor. A few days later Harry received a phone call from a slightly red-faced financial wizard.

"Would you mind stopping in when you come to town?" the banker asked. "You showed me such a good record when you were in the other day that I just transferred the money. I'd appreciate it if you would stop in and sign a note."

Obviously Harry has had to have some financial dealing since then, but that first experience will be long remembered.

My neighbor complained because his kids were ruining his lawn with their vigorous games. I went home and cried . . . because I have lost a son and I would dearly love to see him scampering around the bases in back of our house again. I would care little about the appearance of my grass, the sight of my boy playing happily again would be a far more beautiful sight. My neighbor's pnorities are not mine, but then he has not felt the pain of loss that I have experienced. Enjoy your children now while they are with you.

Many Register For Service In Last 4 Months

During the last four months of 1983, 18-year-old men in Minnesota headed to the post office in greater numbers to register with selective service. Three major world events - downing of the Korean jetliner, bombing of the Marine headquarters in Beirut, and the invasion of Grenada - can partially explain the increase in registrations.

The 11,690 registrations received during the last four months of 1983 boost the total number of registrations in Minnesota to 224,647. This represents a compliance of 99.70 per cent which ranks Minnesota 15th in the country. Robert P. Knight, Minnesota state director, stated that, "this increase in registration shows me that young men today love their country and are willing to accept the responsibilities that living here entails. Over 11 million young men have registered so far and I'm very proud of those who are Minnesota citizens."

To date 11.3 million men have registered with selective service. Approximately 98.6 per cent of the draft eligibles (men born in 1960-1964) have registered. Alaska, Wyoming, Nevada and Florida are the highest ranking states in the country with compliance at 100 per cent. Ohio and Washington are at the median level with compliance of 99 per cent each. California is the lowest ranking state with a compliance of 89 per cent. Other examples are Montana 98 per cent, Georgia 97 per cent, Alabama 98 per cent and Vermont 98 per cent.

Young men born in 1960 and later years must register within 30 days of their 18th birthday. At this time a man must register with selective service to receive federal student aid and job training benefits.

Bjorhus Says Block Pushes Farm Programs

After meeting with Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block in Chicago on January 13, Russ Bjorhus, Minnesota FmHA state director, said the most immediate challenge stressed by Block for 1984 "is to achieve heavy participation in the 1984 farm programs."

Those attending the meeting included state directors for USDA's Farmer's Home administration and state executive directors of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation service. Both Block and Daniel Amstutz, under secretary for international affairs and commodity programs, emphasized the benefits producers would receive by signing up for the commodity programs.

Block said that both government and private sector analysts are saying basically the same thing: It will prove advantageous for the average American farmer to participate in these 1984 farm programs. He said the programs will not only provide a needed conservation effort, but they will also offer producers a protection against serious downward price fluctuations.

"It's essential that agriculture show its willingness to do its part in maintaining the thrust of its own recovery," Block said. "These programs and our federal crop insurance could be two of the best tools producers can work with in 1984."

Block said the farm programs, in combination with the federal crop insurance, will provide protection against the risks of drought, freeze, flood or other unanticipated acts of nature.

Frank Naylor, USDA under secretary for small community and rural development, told Bjorhus that while federal crop insurance has existed since 1938, the current insurance has been significantly revised, expanded and improved.

Weatherizing Program In MN Reaches 83,000

At year end, more than 83,000 Minnesota dwelling units had been weatherized through a state program begun in 1978, Gov. Rudy Perpich announced recently.

"Minnesota is the first state in the region to reach this level," Perpich said, "and one of only three states nationally to weatherize this many homes." (New York and Pennsylvania are the other two to reach this level.)

One reason Minnesota ranks so high nationally in weatherization assistance, Perpich said, is because of the commitment the state has to energy conservation. He said this is reflected in the strong support the state legislature has given the program since it started by appropriating additional state funds over those received from federal sources.

State weatherization assistance program is administered by the Minnesota department of economic security.

"We estimate that another 15,000 eligible households will receive weatherization assistance in 1984," Perpich said.

Priority for weatherizing dwellings is given to persons who are economically disadvantaged, elderly, handicapped and renters.

Weatherization of the units includes installation of attic and wall insulation, venting, caulking, weatherstripping, furnace work and window and door replacement or repair.

Department of economic security Commissioner Barbara Beerhalter said state studies show that weatherization of a house results in average gross energy savings of 14.4 per cent annually. "In some cases, annual fuel savings range as high as 50 per cent," she said.

Number of units weatherized each year in Minnesota are as follows: 1978-79, 9,500; 1980, 20,562; 1981, 19,903; 1982, 16,009; 1983, 17,804.

Minnesota's weatherization program is carried out at the local level by the state's 26 community action agencies, three county operations and eight American Indian reservations. Agencies take applications from homeowners or renters, provide required energy audits, order weatherizing materials and dispatch crews to do the work.

Funding for the weatherization is provided by the U.S. department of energy and state appropriations.

'83 Field Crops Third Highest In U.S. Total

Following massive PIK cutbacks, Minnesota harvested a sharply lower supply of field crops in 1983. Value of that harvest rang up a total of $3.56 billion, the third highest of any state in the nation, according to Carroll Rock, statistician in charge of the Minnesota Agricultural Statistics Service.

This is a 21 per cent drop from the value of the 1982 harvest of field crops in the state. When the state's fruit and vegetable crops are added in, total value reached $3.62 billion, fourth highest in the U.S.

Value of the state's 1983 corn crop was $1.16 billion versus $1.93 billion in 1982. This 40 per cent drop came about because of a 50 per cent PIK and drought-reduced crop. The PIK program had the effect of strengthening prices but, according to Rock, the preliminary season average corn price is expected to be only $3.15 per bushel, the third lowest in the nation. Only North and South Dakota are expected to be lower, at $3.10.

Minnesota's 1983 wheat crop was valued at $307 million versus $475 million in 1982. Of this total, $293 million is for the state's spring wheat crop, which is valued as the second highest in the nation. Average spring wheat prices for the season are expected to be $3.90 per bushel versus $3.75 last season.

Despite a smaller 1983 harvest, soybean prices have rebounded to such a degree that value of the harvest is 20 per cent higher than the 1982 crop. At average prices of $8.10 per bushel (versus only $5.81 for the 1982 crop year), Minnesota's soybean crop is valued at $1.19 billion versus $996 million in 1982. This means that, for the first time in the state's history, soybeans are Minnesota's leading cash crop.

More detail on Minnesota's 1983 crop production, prices and value for specific crops is available in the publication, "Minnesota 1983 Annual Crop Summary". Single copies are available free from the Minnesota Agricultural Statistics Service, P.O. Box 70068, St. Paul, MN 55107 (612-296-2230).

Mixed Emotions

Decision by the Lincoln high school band members and their parents to participate in a Sons of Norway concert tour in Norway this summer has been met with mixed emotions in the Thief River Falls community. Feelings run the gamut from excitement and anticipation to resentment and disgust.

Ask the question, "What do you think about the band's trip to Norway?" over coffee and most people won't be reserved about making a comment. Like most events that affect a community, just about everyone has an opinion on the idea.

There are those who believe that Lincoln band students are being offered an excellent opportunity to broaden their knowledge and gain a worthwhile experience at a comparatively modest cost.

There are those who insist that the Norway trip is an excellent motivator which should inspire the young musicians to concentrate on their lessons and practices so that they give the best possible account of themselves, their school and their community.

There are those who say that band students put forth a lot of effort in their practices and performances and as a result are deserving of some sort of a reward for that work.

There are those who would infer that the selection of the Lincoln band from among others to which the trip was offered is a point of community pride and that the band's representation will reflect well on Thief River Falls and improve its public relations image.

Conversely, there are those who believe that the trip is more the promotion of a travel agency than an honorary selection and that the total cost involved isn't all that much of a bargain for a touring group.

There are those who insist that high school students shouldn't expect to experience costly foreign travel at primarily parental expense when the majority of the parents themselves probably have not had the opportunity for a similar experience in a lifetime.

There are those who contend that a program which was facing severe cuts due to school budget reductions and required community effort to retain its instructor shouldn't be in a position financially to even consider such a trip.

There are those who say foreign travel as a learning experience on a two-week basis has negligible value and that more could be gained by using the time locally than by traveling overseas.

There are those whose opinion is that the community similarly stands to gain negligible value from the selection and tour from a public relations standpoint. And among that group are those who may remark that taking the band to Colorado last summer and to Norway this summer doesn't have the public relations value potential that the band's appearance at area summer parades or festivals would have. How is it justified, they reason, that the band can arrange to get to Norway for a Sons of Norway observance when it couldn't get to St. Hilaire for that city's Centennial last July?

Between these opposing viewpoints which are firmly held, lie the more moderate views of perhaps the vast majority of the community. They seem to believe that it's really O.K. for the band to go to Norway — or Greenland or Zaire or Trinidad — as long as the members' parents want them to go and are willing to foot the bill. But they aren't overly enthusiastic about a whole lot of fund-raising to subsidize the costs.

So where do we stand in the public opinion column? Probably somewhere in the middle. We don't think it is necessary for high school students to experience foreign travel when they have a lifetime to do so on their own, but if enough people are willing to pay their way for a supervised trip, we don't see any harm in the students going.

We have offered the band boosters organization some free advertising space to use in its fund-raising efforts to support the trip. Contributing to the cause is voluntary and nobody should be too critical of something that they are not required to support. In other words, those who don't like it don't have to contribute to it and therefore shouldn't knock it.

But one criticism we hear might be a point to consider. The allure of faraway places may be tempting and the aura of being a select group may be flattering, but taking care of the home folks first goes a long way toward public respect and appreciation.

After the kids have a good time in Norway, at least in part through community and area support, perhaps they have an obligation to cooperate with appearances on the area scene. There's a lot of good will to be earned and opportunities to earn it. A little extra effort in that direction may be justified.

Pay Now, Save Later

Following editorial is from the Sacramento Bee:

A recent advertisment in the Wall Street Journal — headlined "Massachusetts Tax Amnesty, a Warning and an Opportunity" — could not have been less subtle.

Massachusetts, it said, is "cracking down hard" on tax evaders. Penalties have been increased, 200 new auditors have been hired, collection of delinquent taxes is up 70 per cent. "If you, your company or clients have any unresolved or unreported Massachusetts tax obligations," the ad goes on, "be warned."

And then comes the good news: Through Jan. 17, Massachusetts allowed you to settle your tax problem "with no penalty charges or legal repercussions." All you have to do is apply for the amnesty and pay your taxes and interest by the deadline.

According to the ad, over 12,000 individuals and corporations have already taken advantage of the amnesty — filling Massachusetts' badly depleted state coffers with over $10 million in back taxes and interest, obtained with no expenditures on the state's part for lawyers or courts.

It's a tactic we'd heard of libraries using before. And on library amnesty days took the value of the "long lost" books returned is usually much greater than the income from fines that the libraries lose. It's something for other taxing agencies to think about, isn't it?

Applauds Settlement

Editor Les Strand of the Detroit Lakes Tribune wrote the following editorial following apparent settlement of the 1983-84 and 1984-85 teacher contract at Detroit Lakes:

We applaud what appears to be the successful conclusion of salary negotiations between Detroit Lakes teachers and the school board. The teachers will vote on their new contract Monday. It seems likely that they will approve the contract, and that will be good news.

Considering how painful a strike can be, everyone can rejoice that one didn't happen here. Cool heads prevailed, and that's the way it should be. However, let's not assume that negotiations in Detroit Lakes were not harrowing, although in a less obvious way than a strike. In terms of the time alone expended by both the teachers and the school board, the long process was costly. Negotiations have never before dragged on into February. Contracts must be renewed every two years, and each time around the negotiations become a tug of war that is more fierce.

This is unlikely to change because teachers continue to feel underpaid. The contract that local teachers will vote on Monday won't do much to ease that feeling. Compared with other Minnesota teachers can agree to some progress. (Detroit Lakes teachers can agree to raises of 15.95 per cent whereas the average settlement so far this year is 15.10 per cent, according to the Minnesota Education association.)

But compared to other professions and trades, teachers are paid miserably. The starting salary for a beginning teacher in Detroit Lakes next year will be $16,330, if the contract is approved. The most a teacher can make in Detroit Lakes in 1984-85 will be $29,281 (salary alone). That is the potential for a teacher with 45 credits beyond a masters degree and experience of at least a dozen years.

It isn't fair, but the law of supply and demand governs the situation. As long as there are more teachers than teaching jobs, salaries will be low. Unions like the Minnesota Education association are growing stronger because teachers have seen the handwriting on the wall. Collective bargaining is the only lever they have to pry loose more reasonable pay. And who do they pry it loose from? Us. The taxpayers.

We taxpayers may rightly fret about our overpaid employees (starting with presidents, senators and congressmen), but teachers don't belong in that category. The least we can do is not to begrudge them their raises in pay. They earn it.

Borrowed Nonsense:

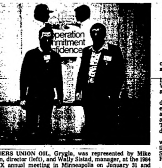
Wife: "Why do you object to housewives being paid a salary?"

Husband: "It just doesn't make sense, that's why."

Wife: "Well, I certainly do a full day's work around here . . . and besides, we could use the extra money."

MACRAME is one of the hobbies of Mrs. Harry Hanson of rural Trail. The Hansons are Pennington county's Valley Farmer and Homemaker for 1984. Her macrame hobby goes well with her flower raising hobby, since several of the macrame creations hold potted plants which brighten the Hanson home.



FARMERS UNION OIL, Grygla, was represented by Mike Hanson, director (left), and Wally Sistad, manager, at the 1984 CENEX annual meeting in Minneapolis on January 31 and February 1. More than 2,000 delegates, representing 1,600 affiliated cooperatives, participated in the meeting under the theme "Cooperation, Commitment, Confidence."

Twin Stars Are Visible In February Sky

A scintillating star that is often mistaken for a UFO and a pair of twin stars that lie at the root of the expression "by jiminy" shine brightly in the February sky.

Sirius, a very bright star low now on the south to southeast horizon in early evening, glistens and even seems to change color from yellowish to reddish to greenish and back again, causing it to be mistaken for a UFO. Reason for the star's coruscation is not well understood, but probably involves both refraction and dispersion of its white light by thick layers of earth's atmosphere near the horizon. Our eyes simply playing tricks on us in the low light is also a factor, according to Robert Kennicutt, astronomer at the University of Minnesota.

Each year at about this time, the university's astronomy department receives several calls, asking whether this object might be an alien spaceship. The planet Venus, hot air balloons and various satellites and airplanes are also sometimes mistakenly thought to be UFOs, Kennicutt said.

The star Sirius, the brightest in our sky, other than sun, is 8.7 light-years (or about 52 trillion miles) away and is actually two stars seen as one from this distance. The larger star shines with a heat of 10,000 degrees Celsius — considerably hotter than our sun — and has such strong gravity that, on it, a 160-pound person would weigh 40,000 tons. The smaller star is merely a burnt-out companion in orbit around it.

Though this "binary" or double star is one of the closest to earth in the universe, there is probably not a lot of hope that it holds planets in orbit around it. Multiple stars seem less likely to have planets, Kennicutt said.

Another pair of prominent stars in the winter sky are Castor and Pollux, the two brightest stars in the constellation Gemini — found halfway up from the eastern horizon to the zenith, well below the bright star Capella, which is now almost at the zenith. Stars were named in Roman mythology for the twins born of Leda, the Queen of Sparta, and the Swan, the god Zeus in disguise. The expression "by jiminy" originated in the Latin "O, Gemini," an invocation of these stars for good luck.

Though they appear as twin stars when viewed from Earth, Castor and Pollux are really 10 light-years (60 trillion miles) apart and are not bound together by gravity. Castor is actually a "family" of six stars, and Pollux is an orange star, a bit cooler than our sun but about 34 times as bright. Neither is now thought to have planets, based on the latest infrared survey of the sky, though other information could emerge later.

Chemical Abuse Treated With Family Help

"Effects of alcoholism on the family are devastating," states Bob Wittenstrom, executive director of Glenmore Treatment center, a chemical dependency center at Crookston that focuses on treatment for the family.

"It may appear to outsiders that only the alcoholic is affected by the disease, but we've seen and treated too many families to let that myth go on unchallenged," said Wittenstrom.

As the alcoholic gets sicker and sicker, family members get sicker and sicker, too. The progression of the disease in the family can be identified by specific roles or behavior patterns they adopt, according to Wittenstrom.

Usually the co-alcoholic or spouse first becomes the "protector", making apologies to family and friends for his or her anti-social behavior which results from drinking. The "protector" is usually seen in the early stages of alcoholism when drinking bouts are less frequent.

"Assuming the role of the 'controller' is the spouse's next defense for dealing with the alcoholic by attempting to 'limit' the amount of alcohol the alcoholic consumes," Wittenstrom said. "Somehow he or she has come to believe that he or she is the cause of the excessive drinking and anti-social behavior. And, in a subconscious attempt to regain some other feelings of worth, tries to control the spouse's drinking."

Next the co-alcoholic assumes the role of "blamer", blaming others for feelings of anger, hurt, fear and failure. He or she threatens, uses sarcasm, admonishes and accuses with silences and cold-eyed stares.

"As the spouse slips into the next stage — the "loner" — people tend to be uncomfortable around him or her," said Wittenstrom. "Roles such as the martyr, super-mom, or Mr. Self-Righteous are acted out. As a result of this type of growing hostility and self-pity, the family and friends become alienated. But, because the defense system is no highly developed, he or she, like the alcoholic, is unable to identify these actions for what they really are.

"The children, too, become caught up in the disease," he said. "They also adopt roles and defense systems to cope with dad's or mom's drinking."

"The kids become the hero, the scapegoat, the lost child or the mascot," according to Wittenstrom. "It's pretty tough for family members who don't drink to realize they, too, are suffering from a disease."

For full recovery, however, the alcoholic himself or herself, and the family members must have a program of recovery.

"Treatment for the family includes information and education about the disease of alcoholism or chemical dependency and how it has affected each member of the family. Group therapy and family counseling are part of treatment, along with reestablishing the lines of communication," he added.

"At Glenmore we insist the family become involved in recovery. We have a full aftercare program involving the family. And they are introduced to Alcoholics Anonymous, Alanon and Alateen for ongoing, lifetime support.

"Three-fourths of all recovering alcoholics whose families receive no counseling will either leave their family or return to drinking," Wittenstrom said. "So it's not enough for the alcoholic alone to get treatment. The whole family suffers from the disease and the whole family must get treatment if full recovery is to happen."

Glenmore Treatment center provides free information about alcoholism and family treatment. Those interested can call 1-800-862-5582.

Tax Relief In Store For Dual Career Couples

Today's hardworking two-income couples are in line for substantial tax relief.

General across-the-board reductions in tax rates will favorably impact the budgets of households headed by singles as well as married couples. The larger the amount of taxable income under consideration — such as in two-paycheck households — the more noticeable the reduction.

Personal tax rates were cut 10 per cent as of Jan. 1, 1983. Another cut in the tax rate will become effective Jan. 1, 1984. Some 17 million working American couples are eligible for easing of the so-called "marriage penalty."

For 1983, a married couple filing a joint return is allowed a deduction of 10 per cent of the first $30,000 in net earnings of the spouse with the lower earned income, for a maximum deduction of $3,000. For 1982, the percentage was five per cent and the maximum deduction was $1,500. This deduction is available whether or not the taxpayers itemize and may be claimed on either the long or the short form.

Significant for the many married — as well as single — working parents is the child care credit. The maximum credit ranges from $960 for families with income over $28,000 to $1,440 for families with incomes not exceeding $10,000. A credit of between 20 and 30 per cent (depending on the amount of income) is allowed for employment-related child care expenses.

With the effect of inflation on family finances and the need for careful money management, the dual-career couple stands to benefit greatly from close attention to these and other important aspects of the tax law.

Farmers To Be Polled On Farm Expense Totals

In 1982, the average Minnesota farmers saw 85 per cent of his farm income taken up by soaring farm production costs, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. Did the farm income picture improve in 1983?

Uncertainty exists over how severe the cost-price squeeze for Minnesota farmers has become. Production expenses continue to take a large share of farm income each year. The average Minnesota farmer had farm production expenses of almost $62,000 in 1982. As production costs continue to rise, it becomes important that the general public be aware of the financial burden many farmers are facing. To accurately tell the story, the Minnesota agricultural statistics service will be conducting a farm production expenditure survey to gather the necessary information.

The service's field representatives will be contacting a cross-section of Minnesota farmers during February. Farmer cooperation is voluntary and all individual information is confidential and only used in combination with other reports. The survey will bring the farmer's economic situation into better perspective.

Current farm prices are broadcast daily, weekly and monthly by many sources, according to Carroll Rock, director of the service. However, the farmer's costs are measured by USDA once a year so their accuracy is crucial. "It all hinges on the cooperation and accuracy of the farmers we contact," says Rock.

Minn. Turkey Growers Set New Record

Minnesota turkey growers raised a record 27 million turkeys in 1983, up four per cent from 1982. Causing the increase was an eight per cent increase in heavy breed turkeys to 23.5 million; light breeds fell 19 per cent to 3.5 million.

Despite this record, Minnesota was unable to regain its No. 1 national ranking from North Carolina. Minnesota has not held that ranking since 1980.

A four per cent cutback in turkeys raised is indicated for this year as producers roll back light breed production. Of the 26 million turkeys intended to be raised this year, heavy breeds will account for 24.8 million (up six per cent), while light breeds will fall to 1.2 million (down 66 per cent).

A tabulation of the Dec. 1, 1983 turkey breeder hen inventory in the state showed 443,000 birds, down 15 per cent from a year ago. Their average value per head was $21.60, up $5.90 from the previous year. This pushed value of the state's breeder hen flock up 17 per cent to $9.6 million.

Members of the Northland community college hockey team made it tough on themselves by blowing two three-goal leads Saturday in a 5-4 overtime loss to previously winless Mesabi.

Northland won Friday's series opener 7-4, but by losing the second half of the Minnesota Community College Conference weekend series in the sports arena the Northmen put themselves in a position where they must sweep a regular season-ending series in Rochester this weekend to earn a post-season state playoff berth.

A Northland sweep over Mesabi would have necessitated only a split in the Saturday-Sunday Rochester series for the Northmen to finish in fourth place in the six-team MCCC standings behind Hibbing, the University of Minnesota-Crookston and Rainy River. If Rochester wins one of the two games this week the Yellowjackets would replace the Northmen in the playoff field.

Those playoffs will be two-game, total-goal series starting the following week, with the No. 4 finisher (either Northland or Rochester) at No. 1 (Hibbing) and No. 3 (Rainy River) at No. 2 (UMC) in the semifinals.

League leaders Hibbing and UMC are the only fully-staffed 21-player MCCC hockey teams this winter. Mesabi and Rochester dress only 11 players, Northland had 14 in uniform Saturday and Rainy River has 17.

Word around the MCCC is that Rochester is playing chippy hockey this winter. UMC coach Jim Clauson told Lori Mateer of the Crookston Times that Rochester has been assessed as many as 30 penalties in some games. "Those games usually last about six hours and don't accomplish anything," he said.

Prowlers Sweep Pirates

By beating Crookston 58-54 Friday night to go along with an earlier 45-44 overtime victory over the Pirates, the Lincoln high school basketball team completed its first two-game regular season sweep over rival Crookston since the 1977-78 season.

In fact, the Pirates had beaten the Prowlers nine of ten previous meetings coming into this season.

Coupled with a 50-33 victory over Mahnomen the previous Friday, the triumph over Crookston gave the 5-9 Prowlers back-to-back wins for the first time this winter. But after an 0-4 start, the Prowlers have played .500 ball, and in their last six games they've been very competitive.

Thief River Falls will have a tough assignment Friday when a strong Fergus Falls squad, expected to be a North Sub-Region 8AA challenger, will be in the Lincoln gym. They have an outstanding scorer in Tim Swenson, a 6-4 senior forward. Middle River, a team that beat Thief River Falls 59-55 a year ago, will be here Saturday.

Hockey Team Continues Climb

Thief River Falls' bid for a top four position among the Section 8 hockey coaches' post-season seeding voting was enhanced by a pair of 3-2 wins last week — Tuesday at Crookston and Saturday at home against sectional leader Roseau.

After a 1-4 start, which included a 5-1 drubbing at the hands of Roseau, Thief River Falls has now won nine of 11 games to stand 10-6. The Prowlers, if they can avoid an emotional letdown, have a chance to pick up two more wins this week against struggling Hallock and Detroit Lakes teams, then finish their Section 8-counting campaign at Warroad Feb. 14. A Fri., Feb. 17, regular season finale here against Fergus Falls should provide some great hockey entertainment, but will not count in the sectional voting.

Penalties obviously played a major role in Saturday's Thief River Falls-Roseau outcome. Roseau coach Gary Hokanson was upset with the officiating, and it was reported that way in the game story appearing in today's Times.

It wasn't written to demean the officials, but instead to show a Roseau point of view we felt was necessary to convey. In no way would we ever personally criticize an official through the media. They have a tough job, and they undoubtedly do it to the best of their ability. Roseau had a tough time of it with penalties Saturday, something you don't normally associate with the Rams. But the officials called what they saw and heard, in the case of a bench penalty late in the game when the frustrated Rams simply lost their composure.

Officials also played a role in Friday's Thief River Falls basketball win over Crookston when steady parade of Prowlers to the free throw line insured the 58-54 victory over the Pirates. But, again, officials don't win or lose ball games. Their calls can certainly affect play, but the teams themselves still end up deciding the issue. You play a little better and you score or prevent another goal; you play a little better and you make or block a couple of more baskets.

TOGETHER, THIEF RIVER FALLS goalie Steve Solheim (1) and forward Mitch Semanko (16) were able to keep this Roseau shot out of the net during the second period of Saturday's Section 8 high school hockey game played in the sports arena. The Prowlers upset the highly-regarded Rams 3-2, handing Roseau its first loss in Section 8 play in 13 games this winter.

Prowlers Edge No. 4-Rated Rams 3-2 In Section 8 Hockey Upset

Penalty-plagued Roseau saw its 12-game Section 8 high school hockey streak come to an abrupt end Saturday when Thief River Falls upset the Associated Press No. 4-rated Rams 3-2 in the sports arena.

Roseau handled Thief River Falls with ease in their first meeting earlier this winter, 5-1. But the Rams had to contend with an inspired Thief River Falls squad this time, and they made it hard on themselves by accumulating 18 minutes worth of penalties — nine minors that took them out of their game.

While Thief River Falls got just one power play goal out of it, the penalties kept the Rams off-balance throughout the contest. It was especially upsetting in the final stages of the one-goal game when the Rams' comeback attempted were thwarted by a string of three successive penalties in the last three-minutes, three-seconds.

First, Stacey Monkman was called for an elbowing penalty the Rams vigorously argued. In fact, they argued to the point where Roseau head coach was slapped with a bench penalty, forcing the Rams to skate two men short for two minutes starting at 11:57. Just 33 seconds later goalie Don Johnson was called for slashing, a penalty the Rams wouldn't begin serving until one of the others expired — meaning, in essence, the Rams would skate shorthanded the rest of the night.

Hokanson was obviously upset with what he felt was one-sided officiating by Curt Howe and Jeff Reese — called on to replace Buzz Olson and Bill Olson, who were unable to make the trip from East Grand Forks and Grand Forks, respectively, because of the blizzard-like weather.

"We're one of the cleanest hockey teams in the state," said Hokanson. "We're not a chippy hockey team, and we don't get stupid penalties like that. Obviously there was only one team on the ice as far as they (officials) were concerned."

No matter how Hokanson and the Rams viewed the officiating, it wound up as a 3-2 loss for a team that was 13-2 coming into the game. And it was a come-from-behind Thief River Falls victory, at that.

Roseau's Paul Broten put in a rebound from the right side when David Drown cranked one from the point at 7:41. The Rams controlled play until Ryan Bakke quickly converted Steve Wiskow's centering pass from behind the net for a tying goal at 12:20.

Thief River Falls scored its only power play goal of the night to take a 2-1 lead at 1:51 of the second period. Defenseman Tom Pederson, who was the Rams' best player Saturday, according to Hokanson, was off 33 seconds on a checking-from-behind penalty when Wiskow fired one in from the left wing as the Prowlers worked the puck around the Roseau defense.

Then just moments after an ineffective power play, the Prowlers got what proved to be the eventual game-winner when Joe Blankenfeld finished off a length-of-the-ice rush at 5:10 to make it 3-1.

Pederson scored on a power play at 7:55 to make it 3-2, slipping a soft shot by Thief River Falls netminder Steve Solheim.

That was the end of the scoring, but not the end of the excitement.
